This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. You can search through the full text of this book on the web at `http://books.google.com/`

PUBLICATION OFFICE, FRANKLIN SQUARE (330 PEARL STREET), NEW YORK.

VOL. XXXIX. No 1. NEW YORK, January 3, 1891. WHOLE No. 988.

D. APPLETON & CO.'S NEW BOOKS.

A WASHINGTON BIBLE-CLASS.

By GAIL HAMILTON. Large 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A year ago this brilliant author's interpretations of the Bible gathered about her the most distinguished representatives of official life in Washington. In this book, prepared at the special request of the eminent members of the class, Gail Hamilton offers her incisive, lucid "Bible talks" to a larger audience.

THE PRIVATE JOURNAL OF WILLIAM MACLAY,

United States Senator from Pennsylvania, 1789-1791. With Portrait from original miniature. Edited by EDGAR S. MACLAY, A.M. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.50.

As the early sessions of Congress were held with closed doors, little is known of their proceedings. "The Journal of William Maclay" throws a flood of light on this important chapter of American history, giving a detailed description of debates, sketches of Congressional life, official dinners, State ceremonies, etc., Tariff for Protection, and "Nobilimania," as discussed in the First Congress; also strong side-lights—Washington, Adams, Hamilton, Jefferson—and on the Senators and Representatives. This Journal has been jealously withheld from public scrutiny by the descendants of William Maclay for a hundred years, owing to the sharp and candid observations it makes on personages whom we are accustomed to reverence. An unreserved publication is now, for the first time, given to the public.

NEW EDITION OF

STUDIES IN HEGEL'S PHILOSOPHY OF RELIGION.

With an Appendix on Christian Unity in America. By J. MACBRIDE STERRETT, D.D., Professor of Ethics and Apologetics in the Seabury Divinity School. 12mo, cloth, $2.00.

"A scholarly book, in which Hegel's Philosophy of Religion is neither rendered nor paraphrased, but analyzed and considered in a sympathetic manner, and from an enlightened point of view."—New York Tribune.

NEW EDITION OF

EVOLUTION OF MAN AND CHRISTIANITY.

By the Rev. HOWARD MACQUEARY. 12mo, cloth, $1.75.

"There can be little doubt," says Prof. Le Conte, "that we are now on the eve of the greatest change in traditional views that has taken place since the birth of Christianity. This change means not a readjustment of details only, but a reconstruction of Christian theology." It is because I am firmly convinced of the truth of these profound words that I have written this book. Evolution is "in the air," and its fundamental tenets are being accepted (perhaps unconsciously) by all classes of minds. It behooves us, then, as religious teachers to recognize this fact, and adjust our theology accordingly."—From the Preface.

"A bright and most entertaining novel."

THE NUGENTS OF CARRICONNA.

An Irish Story. By TIGHE HOPKINS. No 65 in THE TOWN AND COUNTRY LIBRARY. 12mo, paper, 50 cents.

"Humor, truth, kindliness of feeling and good taste are the principal ingredients. Most of the people in the story are human, natural and individual to an uncommon degree, and their talk is like them."—The Athenæum.

"A most delightful and original story, told with force, freshness and prevailing humor."—The Spectator.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. LOTHROP & CO. have in preparation a library edition in four 16mo volumes of "The Arabian Nights," edited by W. E. Griffis, author of "The Mikado's Empire," etc.

PETER PAUL & BRO., of Buffalo, N. Y., have just issued a volume entitled "Recollections of Buffalo, or, fifty years since," by S. M. Welch. It is neatly gotten up and a creditable specimen of the work put out by this enterprising firm.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & CO. announce for immediate publication author's editions of the following: "Spiritual Development of St. Paul," by Rev. George Matheson; "The Psalmist and the Scientist," also by Mr. Matheson; and "Can the Old Faith Live with the New?"

LITTLE, BROWN & CO. have just ready a sumptuous small folio volume entitled "Typical Elms and Other Trees of Massachusetts." The plates are by Henry Brooks, reproduced by the photo-gelatine process, and represent upwards of fifty of the largest elms and oaks in Massachusetts, many of them celebrated in history and poetry. The descriptive text is by Lorin L. Dame and the introductory chapter by Oliver Wendell Holmes. They have also just ready the first volume of the new revised edition of Smith's "Dictionary of Greek and Roman Antiquities."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

The Surrogate, published from 102 Broadway, N. Y., and edited by John L. Branch, is the title of a new monthly magazine for "lawyers, executors, administrators, trustees, guardians, heirs and legatees."

ONE of the most remarkable lists of famous contributors ever brought together in a single number of a magazine will be presented in the January issue of The Ladies' Home Journal, of Philadelphia. The authors in that number will include Henry M. Stanley, Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes, Ex-President Hayes, Hon. John Wanamaker, Joseph Jefferson, Hon. Hannibal Hamlin, Madame Albani, James Whitcomb Riley, Gen. Lew Wallace, George W. Childs, Dr. T. De Witt Talmage, Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, Robert J. Burdette, Edward Bellamy, Will Carleton, Charles A. Dana, Sarah Orne Jewett, George W. Cable, Julian Hawthorne, Mrs. Lyman Abbott, Mrs. Margaret Bottome, and nearly twenty others.

A NEW departure has just been made in periodical literature in the form of a quarterly en titled The Critical Review of Theological and Philosophical Literature. It is edited by Prof. S. D. F. Salmond, of Edinburgh, and contains able reviews of all the notable new books in the fields indicated by the title, giving a chronicle of all publications in these departments, and noticing the most important articles in magazines and journals. The reviews will be the work of eminent writers, and will be signed. The quarterly is published by Messrs. T. & T. Clark, of Edinburgh, and is controlled in this country by Messrs. Scribner & Welford. The first number, now ready, contains articles by Principal Rainy, Prof. A. B. Davidson, Canon Driver, Prof. A. B. Bruce, Prof. Marcus Dods, Prof. W. G. Blaikie, and other well-known authors.

Kipling, Rudyard. The light that failed. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 186 p. D. (Lovell's Westminster ser., no. 25.) pap., 25 c.

Mr. Kipling has brought to his first novel some new material. The scene is in the Soudan, during the late English campaign, and the chief characters correspondents and artists of a London illustrated journal. Graphic scenes, apparently from life, are given of a correspondent's exciting experience in pursuit of news. The story is then carried to London, and the life of the studio dwelt upon. One of the heroes meets again a girl friend of his childhood, who has also become an artist. Her studio is the scene of numerous art discussions, and she is the heroine of the love-story. The ending is full of pathos.

Robinson, F. W: Her love and his life: a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1891. 3+212 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new series, no. 689.) pap., 30 c.

Michael Garwood was born in the slums of London. His father was a thief, his mother a drunkard. Naturally he follows in their footsteps, though he has moments of struggling against his fate. When fifteen years old, in one of these awakenings of conscience he determines to give up the old life, and seeks out an uncle, his mother's brother, on the Cornish coast, who is a serpentine-worker. Life here is well described. Mike's ill-fate follows him; but after a number of miserable episodes he becomes a better man in morals and education. His life is strongly influenced by a famous artist, who discovers in him the germs of genius, and affords him the opportunity of studying art in France and Italy.

Sargeant, Adeline, and Ewing, Lester. Name and fame. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 2+380 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 126.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

Sydney and Lettice Campion are the children of the Rev. Lawrence Campion, rector of Angleford. Sydney's extravagance ruins the rector, and he dies broken-hearted. Sydney is a handsome, brilliant man, who pursues his own pleasures in a ruthless, selfish way. He is successful in his profession, becomes a member of Parliament, and marries an heiress. His sister comes to London after her father's death, writes a novel that the critics praise, and is enabled to make a home for herself and mother. Her independence irritates her brother, who has decided opinions as to woman's proper sphere, the breach between them being further widened by her interest in Alan Walcott, a poet of some fame, whose vicious, intemperate wife makes life miserable for him. The writers make a strong point between true and conventional morality, and describe in quite a realistic manner English literary and political life of the present.

WHEN.

From "When," published by D. Williams, N. Y.

WHEN your acquaintance with the details of your business broadens, your success is more assured.

When you furnish the capital, and another the experience, don't swap.

When a business is said to run itself, it is generally the result of the force of gravitation. Gravity is always downward.

When you find yourself inclined to be rash in buying stock, remember that it is better to cry after the goods than over them.

When you are able to effect a saving in your expense account, you have practically gained the same result as if you had effected a sale in amount many times in excess of the retrenchment.

When there has been a business depression of from three to five years, prepare for an advance.

INPROVEMENT IN THE TASTE FOR GOOD BOOKS.

ONE of the encouraging signs of the times is the growing taste among the bookbuying public for better-made books, and, above all, for better books. This public seems to have broken away from old traditions, or at least traditions of ten years' standing, and is calling, not for what has been lauded in threadbare phrase as "the books no self-respecting person can very well be without," but for the best in literature, and that in the best shape obtainable. The day of "cheap and nasty" books has passed, and now the day of the poor grade of books, even in substantial form, seems to be waning. The sale of standard books—of works in the departments of philosophy, poetry and good literature generally—during the past three months at least, has been encouragingly good, and promises to continue.

The publishers who have been in touch with the public seem to have taken their cue, and are making every effort to supply this demand for better books. The season just drawing to a close has brought out better books in more appropriate forms than ever before. There have been fewer books of elephantine or microscopic form, and the édition de luxe seems more and more to become a realization of the true meaning of the term. It was once thought that an unwieldy book with a profusion of ill-adjusted margin, a smattering of blurred daubs designated as etchings, a hideous binding, and a limited number of copies, made up an édition de luxe. The public for awhile accepted this form because it was the "fad." But that has passed away, and what is now called for are books, printed in legible type on paper of the best quality and put up in exquisite and appropriate shape, regardless of the number printed. For this class of books enough buyers can be found willing to pay any price within reasonable bounds; and on this line the publisher can and will make money. It has taken the trade years to learn this lesson. We trust its experience will be used to lasting profit.

WE remind the trade that our Annual Summary Number will be issued in the fourth week of this month, and ask that they will promptly forward copy for their advertisements for that number. This number we believe to be one of the most useful of the year, and not least to the smaller publishers, whose lines are difficult to keep track of in any other way. It is the latter who lose most by not keeping themselves before the reading public and the booksellers, and we therefore urge upon all such whose books we cheerfully record through the year free of cost to them, to give us their proportionate contributions to the advertising pages of this number.

II.

COLLOTYPES IN COLORS.—Albert, Bierstadt, Frisch and others have succeeded in producing very beautiful pictures in colors, by preparing several gelatine plates, each plate bearing particular parts of the picture, and being used for printing the appropriate colored ink. As many as seven different plates are employed successively in producing the picture.

There are different methods in use for preparing the several plates.

One plan is to make a separate negative for each color. This is accomplished by interposing a suitable screen of colored glass, or colored liquid, between the object and the photographic plate in the camera. For example, a screen which shuts out all colors except blue will permit only the blue portions of the pictures to be photographed on the negative, and a gelatine plate from this negative may be used for printing with blue ink. In a similar way another screen will furnish a negative and plate for the red portions of the picture, and so on.

Another plan is to prepare the gelatine plates from one and the same negative by "stopping out" all of the picture except that of one color.

LEIMTYPES.—In 1887, Husnik, of Prague, invented a process for preparing high relief plates of gelatine that can be used for typographic printing in an ordinary printing-press, either for the reproduction of pictures or letterpress. Husnik uses a thick plate of chromatized gelatine and exposes it under a negative as usual. He then attaches this by means of gutta-percha to zinc or wood, thus making a firm but somewhat elastic foundation for the printing surface. He then develops the surface by treatment with a solvent, such as a saturated solution of an alkaline bichromate. This not only dissolves the gelatine upon which the light did not fall, but it also deepens and strengthens the relief. The development is stopped before any of the finest lines or dots are injured. The plate is dried and the lights are covered with a solution of opaque printer's ink, by means of a camel's hair brush. The plate is then exposed for a second time to the action of light, by which it is hardened and strengthened, not only on the surface, but also on the flanks of each line and dot. The black is then removed and the solvent is again applied to deepen the whites. These plates may be used directly in the press, and will print 100,000 copies. By making wax moulds from these plates they may be reproduced in copper by electrotyping.

PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHS.—Various plans were suggested for securing on lithographic stone a photographic impression which could afterward be used for printing the fatty inks. The process of J. W. Osborne, formerly of Melbourne, now of Washington, was made public in 1861, and proved to be a great improvement. It is what is called a "transfer process." A sheet of paper is coated with a solution of albumen, gelatine and bichromate of potash. It is then dried in the dark, and subsequently placed, face down, on a sheet of smooth copper, and passed through a lithographic press, in order to glaze and flatten it. It is then exposed under a negative, and afterward coated uniformly with greasy lithographic transfer ink. In order to coagulate the albumen in the film, the paper is now floated, inkside upward, on boiling water. At the same time the unaltered gelatine, which was protected by the opaque portions of the negative, absorbs moisture and swells, leaving the unaltered gelatine, the lines of the picture, depressed. The print is now placed, face upward, on a smooth board and washed off gently with a sponge dipped in water. It is then pinned to the board and the washing is completed with a stream of boiling water. The print is then dried, and the picture is transferred to stone by simply placing it upon the stone, face downward, and passing it through the press. The stone is now ready for lithographic printing in the steam press at the rate of 1000 copies an hour. One hour is sufficient for taking the negative, preparing the transfer and placing it upon the stone.

The picture may, if desired, be transferred to a zinc plate instead of stone.

INK PHOTOS.—This name is given by Sprague, of London, to photo-lithographs in half-tone, prepared by a process which is kept secret. The pictures do not show the decided dotted characacter of the Meisenbach negative, but are very fine grained and soft.

PHOTO-ELECTROTYPES.—Many processes have been proposed for producing electrotypes from gelatine relief surfaces. Among the most successful are those of Paul Pritsch, of Vienna, 1857; Alphonse L. Poitevin, of Paris, 1862; Paul Emil Placet, of Paris, 1864; W. A. Leggo and G. E. Desbarats, of Quebec, 1865; W. H. Mumler, of Boston, 1875. All of these consist substantially in exposing a sheet of chromatized gelatine under a negative to the action of light. The effect is to render the parts reached by the light insoluble and non-absorbent for water. While the parts protected by the negative remain soluble in warm water and other solvents, and retain the property of absorbing cold water and swelling. After the exposure under the negative, the gelatine is either simply soaked in water to swell the whites, or it is treated with warm water, acetic acid or some other solvent to wash them away. In either case, by making moulds of wax or plaster, it is easy to electrotype a copper relief block for typographic printing. By the use of Meisenbach, or other grained negatives, half-tone effects are obtained.

PHOTO-ENGRAVINGS. — In this neighborhood this term has been applied to type metal relief blocks for typographic printing. These blocks have been made from gelatine reliefs prepared as described under ELECTROTYPES; plaster moulds being used for casting the type metal. The Moss process belongs to this class. It is said that the peculiarity consists in first taking a mould from the gelatine relief with a mixture of asphaltum, rosin, sulphur and india rubber, and with this mould making a second mould in plaster-of-paris for the casting of the type metal.

PHOTO-ZINCOGRAPHS.—This name is sometimes given to pictures printed from zinc plates to which the design has been transferred in adhesive transfer ink, from paper, in the manner described under PHOTO-LITHOGRAPHS. The plate is then treated with acid to sink the whites, thus producing a low relief.

ZINCOTYPES.—High relief plates for typographic printing. The zinc is coated with bitumen or with bichromatized albumen. It is then exposed under a negative and subsequently developed. The bitumen picture is developed with oil of turpentine. The bichromatized albumen is first coated with printer's ink, then developed by gently rubbing in cold water with a tuft of cotton. By suitable etching agents the whites are dissolved away, leaving the picture in high relief.

The Ives process, invented by F. E. Ives, of Philadelphia, in 1881, is a most ingenious process for producting half-tone negatives for making relief blocks. The picture is converted into a series of dots of varying sizes. The Meisenbach negative has been already referred to. It was devised by G. Meisenbach, of Munich, in 1882, and is available for many different photomechanical processes. William Kurtz, of New York, has a process of similar character, which gives very fine results.

TYPO-GRAVURES.—This is the name given by Boussod, Valadon & Co., successors to Goupil & Co., of Paris, to half-tone pictures printed from copper relief plates, which are apparently etched, either by means of bitumen, chromatized albumen, or some other similar sensitive coating. The surface of the metal is grained substantially in the same manner as plates prepared under Meisenbach negatives. The plates are much used in Paris by the illustrated papers.

CHROMO-TYPOGRAVURES are produced by the same process as typo gravures, except that several plates are used with different colored inks. Figaro Illustre is embellished with pictures of this kind. They are made by Boussod, Valadon & Co.

PHOTO-GRAVURES.—Numerous processes have been invented for producing copper intaglio plates by the aid of photography, beginning with the process of Niepce, 1827. In some of these processes the picture was etched into the copper; in others a mould was prepared and the plate was electrotyped into existence. Many firms in Europe and this country now prepare these plates, and the results are very fine. The processes, however, are rarely given to the public.

The process of Mr. Woodbury, 1870–72, which was worked with the greatest success by Goupil & Co., of Paris, consisted in preparing just such a gelatine relief film as was made in the Woodburytype process already described. There was one modification, which consisted in adding a gritty powder, like pulverized glass, to the gelatine, to produce a grain in the relief film. This relief is used to make a mould which is used for electrotyping the final copper plate. Another process consists in coating the metal with chromatized gelatine, exposing under a transparent positive, and etching through the gelatine with perchloride of iron.

PHOTO-AQUATINTS are pictures also printed from intaglio copper plates. The process is said to be simpler than the photo-gravure. It is adapted for reproducing portraits direct from life.

GOUPIL-GRAVURES are fac-similes of water-color paintings. They are printed in colors from photo-gravure plates. The plate is inked by hand in different colored printing inks, and the picture is printed by one impression. The plate is then cleaned and again inked in colors for another impression, and so on.

In concluding this sketch of photo-mechanical processes the writer would claim indulgence for any inaccuracies which may be detected in it. Accurate information with regard to details of the processes in actual use is rarely accessible.

THE BROTHERHOOD OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELLERS—SIXTH ANNUAL DINNER.

THE annual banquet of the B. C. T., held at the Hotel Marlborough, December 30, was a family reunion of an unusually happy character. Many who had become indifferent to the old Association have experienced a change of heart during the year, and the banquet, in a measure, was a feast of rejoicing over the happy turn of the tide and the affairs of the Brotherhood, which seems to have passed through the inevitable season of discontent and tribulation peculiar to the first years of the existence of every organization, and is now in good condition and ready for good work in the future.

Before the dinner a business meeting was held in an adjoining parlor, at which a number of new members were elected, and a letter read from the widow of Richard E. Bennett, thanking the Brotherhood for its gift of $1250, which had reached her on Christmas eve.

About fifty members then gathered around the banquet tables, which were presided over by President J. F. Hitchcock. After the cloth was removed, President Hitchcock congratulated the Association upon its growth and the beginning of practical work. He dwelt with considerable earnestness upon the desirablility of establishing an "Immediate Relief Fund," which might be drawn upon when needed, and which would do away with the necessity of taking up collections or circulating subscription sheets. At the conclusion of his remarks, which were heartily applauded, Mr. Hitchcock surrendered his position as presiding officer at the banquet into the hands of Brother John H. Black, the chairman of the Committee of Arrangements. Fearing that his physique would not suffice to maintain order, he presented Mr. Black with an enormous mallet, to be rapped on the table, or the head of a refractory member, as occasion required.

Ex-President Plummer was next called upon to bestow upon retiring President Hitchcock the emblem which it has been customary to present on these occasions. It is a neatly turned ivory gavel suspended by a gold clasp from a watered silk ribbon—the color in this instance being a delicate shade of heliotrope. Brother Kelley responded touchingly to the toast, "The Brethren who have gone before."

Edward Salt responded to the call for a song, and rendered two in a fine baritone voice, calling out the liveliest applause. Mr. Gustav Tuck, of Raphael Tuck & Son, responded to the toast, "Our Guests;" C. E. Hopkins spoke on "Our Foreign Relations," and W. B. Walker responded for "The Ladies." Among the others who responded to calls for brief remarks were Col. Ammon, R. W. Weissenborn, John McQuillan, Homer P. Beach, F. W. Bailey and others. The session was adjourned at a seasonable hour in the morning.

The dinner itself was excellent both as to the viands and the service. The menu was a fancy edged folder, the opening leaf of which was decorated with an embossed colored spray of wild flowers, a bow of ribbon and B. C. T., 1890, decorating the lower right hand corner. On the back was printed a medallion, in which appeared one of Gilmore's regulation trunks, with a bucket of champagne "rampant." The guest cards were pretty New Year's greetings, on the envelope of which the name of the guest was written in gold letters. The sentiment was as follows:

> "May kindest fortune bless your lot,
> Your wishes half way meeting;
> Your joys be sweet as flowers, yet not
> So fragile, nor so fleeting."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

"SERGIUS STEPNIAK" (Michael Dragomanoff), according to the N. Y. Sun, was "born in 1841 at Hadjatsch, in the Ukraine Mountains, in the Government of Poltawa, and comes from a seminoble family descended from the Cossacks of Little Russia. He studied at Kieff from 1859 to 1863. In that time he published several works in the Little Russian dialect, which were prohibited by the Government in 1862. In 1865 he became docent in ancient history in the University of Kieff, and in 1870 he became a professor, but was removed from his chair three years later by the Government. His criticisms on the system pursued by Count Tolstoi, one of the Ministers of Justice, led to his exile in 1876. He went to Geneva then and settled there, producing popular writings in the Little Russian dialect. In 1877 he began a series of reviews in the Ukraine dialect called 'Hromada,' which means 'common things.' At the same time he worked hard for the establishment in Russia of equal political rights for all people, and declared against socialism as well as absolutism. Some of the principal works which Stepniak has produced are 'The Turks Within and Without,' 'Tyrannicide in Russia,' and 'Little Russian Internationalism.' He has also contributed to the magazines papers on east European people and the propaganda of socialism, and 'Historical Poland and the Muscovite Democracy.' He is also known for his works on the ethnography, history and literature of Little Russia and, with M. Antonowitch, has edited a collection of Little Russian folk songs."

A NOTEWORTHY work has just been completed by a niece of Count Leo Tolstoi. This lady, who is a daughter of Mme. Kuseminskaya, has transcribed the book "War and Peace" in raised characters for the use of the blind. The book, which is the outcome of two years' constant labor, numbers 5000 pages.

ZOLA, it is reported, has received 30,000 francs from a French evening paper for the right to print his new novel, "Money."

OBITUARY NOTES.

DR. HEINRICH SCHLIEMANN died suddenly at Naples, December 27. He was born at Ankershagen in Mecklenburg in 1822. As a boy he was apprenticed to a grocer in Fürstenburg, whom after a five years' drudgery he was obliged to leave on account of a serious accident to himself in lifting a heavy parcel. After his discharge from the Hamburg hospital he shipped as midshipman in a sailing vessel bound for a Venezuela port. His ship was wrecked on the Island of Texell in the North Sea, in December, 1841, and penniless and ill he was taken to a hospital in Amsterdam. Through the agency of some friends he secured a position as book-keeper and correspondent in the trading house of B. H. Schroeder & Co. Such leisure time as he could command he devoted to the study of ancient and modern languages, and so remarkable was his faculty in this direction that he became an accomplished linguist without the assistance of any instructors. He mastered ancient and modern Greek, and in addition was able to converse fluently in Russian, English, French, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Dutch, Polish, Swedish and Arabic. His business prospered greatly, and in 1858 he started upon a prolonged tour of European travel, visiting Sweden, Denmark, Germany, Italy and Egypt, and returning to St. Petersburg by way of Syria and Athens. In every place that he visited he pursued enthusiastically the studies in which he delighted. Having made a fortune, he made his first excursion through the Troad in 1863. Then after travelling in Asia and Japan he settled in Paris to study archæology. He returned to Athens in 1868 to marry his wife, a scholarly Greek woman, who became imbued with all his enthusiasm, and aided him faithfully in his subsequent researches. With 150 workingmen he conducted at Hissarlik from 1870 to 1882 his famous search for the treasures of prehistoric ages.

In his first book on his discoveries he maintained that the remains of Ilium were confined to the first six feet beneath the surface, and that all the ruins below, to a depth of fifty-two and a half feet, were prehistoric. The ruins beneath Ilium he divided into five groups, representing five cities. In a second book he added a sixth city to this list. In both books he drew the conclusion that the third city from the bottom was the Troy of Homer. In his third book he took back this opinion and identified the second city as Troy. Since 1871 he lived almost constantly in Athens. His literary works are: "Ithaca, the Peleponnesus and Troy," "Trojan Antiquities," "Mycenæ," with a preface by Gladstone; "Ilias" with a preface by R. Virchow; "Orchomenos," "Troy," "Travels in the Troad," "Tiryns," and a book on China and Japan.

OCTAVE FEUILLET, the well-known French novelist and dramatist, died December 29, aged 78 years. At the age of 32 he contributed, in conjunction with Paul Bocaje and Albert Aubert, to a romance called the "Grand Viellard," in the National. His psuedonym was "Desire Hazard." In 1862 he was elected to the French Academy to fill the chair left vacant by the death of Eugene Scribe. Subsequently he was appointed Librarian of the Imperial Residences. He held this position till the revolution of Sept. 4, 1870. The most remarkably successful of all Feuillet's works has been "La Morte," published in 1886. Among his chief dramatic works may be mentioned "La Nuit Terrible," "La Fée," "Le Village," "Dalilah," "La Tentation," "La Rédemption," "Mountjoye," "La Belle au Bois Dormant," "Le Cas de Conscience," "Julie," and "La Cléf d'or." Among his other works are "Polichinelle," "Le Cheveu Blanc," "Le Roman d'un Jeune Homme Pauvre" (well known here in its dramatic form), "La Petite Comtesse," "Histoire de Sybille," "Monsieur de Camors, "Julie de Trécour," "L'Histoire d'une Parisienne," and "La Veuve."

THE ARCHBISHOP OF YORK (Rev. William Thompson) died December 25, aged 71 years. Among his works are "An Outline of Necessary Laws of Thought" (1848), "Sermons Preached at Lincoln's Inn Chapel" (1861), "Life in Light of God's Word" (1868), "The Limits of Philosophical Inquiry" (1868), "Word, Work and Will" (1879). He also edited "Aids to Faith" (1861). He was one of the projectors of the "Speaker's Commentary to the New Testament" and was a contributor to Dr. Smith's "Dictionary of the Bible."

As we go to press the news reaches us of the death of Theophilus B. Peterson, senior member of the firm of T. B. Peterson & Bros., which took place at Philadelphia, December 30, at the age of sixty-nine years. In our next issue we shall print particulars of his career.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE AMERICAN AND FOREIGN ELECTROTYPE AGENCY, 834 Broadway, N. Y., and 299 Washington St., Boston, elsewhere call attention to their fine and extensive stock of electrotypes, steel plates, etchings and photogravures of every description.

THE AMERICAN ECONOMIC ASSOCIATION at its recent meeting in Washington decided on a step which will do much for the student unversed in foreign languages. It voted $1000 as a subsidy toward the translation and publication of the latest and best foreign literature in economics. The works of Cohn, Wagner, Knies, and some of the leading Italian authorities will very probably begin a series, several volumes of which are to appear this year.

BLACKIE & SON, Limited, the well-known publishing firm of Glasgow and London, have opened an office in New York, at 73 Bible House, for the sale of their popular subscription-books. Their list comprises attractive new books on various subjects, such as encyclopædias, histories, literature, art, etc., which are all first class in matter, illustration, paper and print, and are issued at popular prices. Those desiring to act as agents will do well to make application at once, as their representative is already making engagements with parties in various cities.

THE holiday season rarely brings to us a more delightful instance of mutual kindliness and generosity between employer and employed than that which marked the closing of the relations of Messrs. Ivison, Blakeman & Co. as a firm with a large number of those who have been in their service for many years. It is known to all our readers that the firm has sold its entire list and publishing rights to the American Book Company, and the house of Ivison, Blakeman & Co., is fast closing up its accounts. A day or two before Christmas the firm addressed a letter to each one of about forty of the employés, expressing its appreciation of his services and inclosing a check which in no case was for less than $100, and ranging from that sum to $1000. It is needless to say that from chief clerk to porter every man passed a happy and joyous Christmas. The return came just before New Year, when an old porter who had been in the service of the house for thirty-five years, waited upon the senior member of the firm and presented him with a handsome testimonial signed by each one of the recipients of the Christmas gifts, expressing their warmest thanks and most sincere personal regard. Most of the men are now in the employ of the American Book Company, and the generous liberality of the old house is the more notable as it came upon the closing up of its business when it had no longer any reason to command service or even to need it. Messrs. Ivison, Blakeman and Cathcart never earned a happier Christmas, nor was money ever more royally bestowed.

THE memoirs of Lasalle, the founder of the German Socialist party, are announced for early publication. They were bequeathed by Lasalle to his friend, the Countess of Hatzfeldt, who on her death left them to her husband, Count Hatzfeldt, the German Ambassador to Great Britain.

PERCIVAL & Co., London, have in preparation the series of critical articles on various English authors, from Crabbe to Borrow, which George Saintsbury contributed during the past four years to Macmillan's Magazine. The volume will be entitled 'Essays in English Literature, 1780–1860." It will have an introductory paper on "The Kinds of Criticism," and an appendix discussing some questions concerning De Quincey and Lockhart which have presented themselves since the original publication.

"ENGLISH as she is spoke" by the foreigners has time and again furnished amusement to the English speaking world. Those of us who saw the point have grown merry over the "night-horses," the "chicken's eyes," the "hand-shoes" and what not of the man who wished to "work himself in the high," but few things have struck us more funny than the following production in the shape of a circular advertisement sent out by an English contemporary to explain to its German brethren its reason for existence. The writer evidently knew of the existence of the um aut, therefore he put in an odd one just to make the thing look right:

Warum Wir Erscheinen—"Der Buchhändel, welches heute unregelmässig entwickeln ist, sollen ein zuverlässige, central, metropolitanische, zum eigenthümlichen Nothwendigkeiten gewidmet, wochentliche Zeitung haben, welche, zu gleicher Zeit, schnell und sicher gegenseite Gemeinschäft gebt. Die Herausgebern glauben, dass für ein Papier zu den Forderungen der Buchhändler und Verlagsbuchhändler ganz gewidmet, und besonders ein bequem und sicher central Medium für die 'Verkaufen' und 'Bedürfnisse' hervorbringend, es gibt zu dieser Zeit eine weite Offnung.

"The —— ——, von eine Londoner Firma, mit der Buchhändel während fünfzig Jahre vornehmliche zusammenhängend verkundigt, diese Lücke zu füllen ausgedehnt ist.

"Die auslandische Buchhändler wir wurden versprechen, dass alle Listen sorgfaltig gedruckt werden.

"Als nur die quantität unterschreibt die Ausgabe vergüten kann, so die Herausgebern innige Mitwirkung des Buchhändels vertrauensvoll aufforden; der glückliche Erfolg The —— —— in Ihre Hände ganz bleibt."

AUCTION SALES.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

Houses that are willing to deal only on a cash-on-delivery basis, will find it to their advantage to put after their firm name the word [Cash].

The American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular.

PUBLICATION OFFICE, FRANKLIN SQUARE (330 PEARL STREET), NEW YORK.

NILE PUBLISHING COMPANY'S NEW BOOKS.

The large demand for the two following French classics has led us to believe that an expurgated edition of them would find ready sale and be a boon to those readers who desire an acquaintance with these famous books, but who are unwilling to read also the indecent language contained in the editions heretofore in the market.

The Heptameron of Margaret, Queen of Navarre.

Great care has been exercised to make this a handsome volume. It is illustrated, containing 540 pages, and is ornamented with head and tail pieces. Paper cover, 50 cents; cloth cover, $1.25.

THE HEPTAMERON is the best known of the most popular of all the old collections of tales in the French language. Like the "Droll Stories" of Balzac, it has been the delight of the unlearned, scholars have commended it, and men of talent have borrowed from its pages.

"The subjects of the tales do not differ much from those of Boccaccio, though they are, as a rule, occupied with a higher class of society, and of necessity display a more polished condition of manners. The best of them are animated by the same spirit of refined voluptuousness which animates so much of the writing and art of the time, and which may indeed be said to be its chief feature. But this spirit has seldom been presented in a light so attractive as that which it bears in The Heptameron."—Saintbury's History of French Literature.

"It is a delightful book."—Encyclopædia Britannica.

"The Heptameron is an old French classic."—The American Encyclopedia.

"As an authoress the Queen of Navarre has been ranked among the first writers of her age."—New Quarterly Review.

"What lover of fiction is unacquainted with The Heptameron of that queen of queens, Margaret of Navarre?" —London Magazine.

Droll Stories by Honoré de Balzac,

One of the Greatest French Novelists and the most Successful Expounder of Human Nature. In "Contes Drolatiques," Honoré de Balzac has built up an unsurpassable work of art. This edition contains over 460 pages, and is illustrated with a number of designs by GUSTAVE DORÉ. The paper used is of good quality, and it has a beautiful and artistic cover. Paper cover, 50 cents; cloth cover, $1.25.

Of all modern literature, the novels and stories of Balzac are at once the most powerful and the most subtle.

LIBERAL DISCOUNT TO THE TRADE.

ROBERTS BROTHERS

WILL PUBLISH NEXT WEEK:

Dreams.

By OLIVE SCHREINER, author of "The Story of an African Farm." With portrait of the author. One volume, 16mo, cloth, $1.00.

CONTENTS: The Lost Joy—2. The Hunter—3. The Gardens of Pleasure—4. In a Far-Off World—5. Three Dreams in a Desert—6. A Dream of Wild Bees—7. In a Ruined Chapel—8. Life's Gifts—9. The Artist's Secret—10. I Thought I Stood ——— 11. The Moonlight Fell Across My Bed.

The success of Miss Schreiner's first book should insure a ready sale for this new one.

The Future of Science.

By ERNEST RENAN. One volume, demy 8vo, $2.50.

"The real subject of my book," says M. Renan, "is science; and by this I mean the exercise of human reason in its highest form. I speak particularly in the work of historical sciences, of which I have made a special study. I consider history as the science of humanity, and on this point only do I touch upon the social question."

The book contains the first and positive expression of his philosophical faith, and will be extremely useful to future biographers of the eminent writer. It will have, besides, a still higher bearing—an historical one, so to speak; for it is not only M. Renan but our entire century that has been called to choose between science and revelation, all compromise having become impossible.

Mireio.

A Provençal Poem. By FRÉDÉRIC MISTRAL. Translated by Harriet W. Preston. A new edition of this popular poem in a pretty binding. 16mo, cloth, $1.25.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly a volume of five dialogues selected and translated from Plato, under the title of "Talks with Athenian Youths."

THE NILE PUBLISHING CO., 346 Dearborn Street, Chicago, announces expurgated editions of "The Heptameron" and of Balzac's "Droll Stories." They are gotten up in cheap paper editions and in cloth binding.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. will publish shortly, an American edition of Mr. Wemyss Reid's "Life, Letters and Friendships of Richard Monckton Milnes, First Lord Houghton," one of the literary successes last year in London.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT issue this week Judge Tourgée's new novel, "Murvale Eastman: Christian Socialist." This original and picturesque writer has left his earlier scenes, so stirring in their time, and has plunged with characteristic vigor into the all-absorbing topic of to-day. His new octavo promises to "take hold."

ROBERTS BROS. will publish on the 15th "Dreams," a series of essays by Olive Schreiner, author of "The Story of an African Farm," with a portrait of the author; "The Future of Science," by Ernest Renan, which is said to contain the first and positive expression of the author's philosophic faith; also, a new edition in a new binding of "Mirèio," a Provençal poem, by Frederic Mistral, translated by Harriet W. Preston.

A NEW edition of "The Evolution of Man and Christianity," by the Rev. Howard MacQueary, will be published immediately by D. Appleton & Co. The general interest shown in the ecclesiastical trial of Mr. MacQueary, which is now taking place in Cleveland, Ohio, will direct special attention to this new and enlarged edition of the now famous book which is the cause of this animated theological controversy. In the new preface Mr. MacQueary answers his critics, and restates his views on some of the most important points.

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish at an early date a translation of Father Didon's "Life of Christ," which has created such a sensation in Paris. They publish this week "The Journal of William Maclay," a valuable and interesting private diary kept from day to day while Mr. Maclay was a United States Senator, serving in the first Congress, which held its early sessions in New York. Mr. Maclay was a Democratic leader before Jefferson had had an opportunity to lead. He was doing battle against the Federalists when Jefferson was absent in France.

THE UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY is just publishing Henrik Ibsen's new play, "Hedda Gabler," which is to appear simultaneously in Copenhagen, London and New York. The English translation has been prepared by Edmund Gosse with the express approval of Ibsen himself. The new play will, it is understood, take rank among the social dramas. It is occupied with the study of an unhappy marriage, and the character who gives her name to the play is sketched with remarkable power. As an example of determined and vindictive womanhood, she makes a strange companion portrait to Norah in "A Doll's House." It is evident that Ibsen's view of womankind is in no way one-sided. The posthumous works of Thomas De Quincey have now been arranged by Dr. Japp, and are to be issued immediately in this country by the United States Book Company. The collection contains not only a large number of essays altogether new but also a number of additions to essays already before the public. The additional "Suspiria," for instance, are quite necessary to a complete understanding of the significance of the "Suspiria" already published. The work covers a very wide field, including as it does essays in history, speculation, criticism and theology. The latter embrace a series of reflections on Christianity, which will give the reader a closer access to the life and thought of the real De Quincey than can be obtained through any of his former writings. The U. S. Book Co. will also issue at once Tolstoi's "The Fruits of Enlightenment."

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—A. C. McClurg & Co. have purchased the stock of Maxwell & Co. Particulars are given elsewhere.

CINCINNATI, O.—Alfred Warren, now at 278 W. 6th St., and Fred. C. Ziegler, of 217 Central Ave., have combined and formed a stock company to be known as "The Alfred Warren Company," which will do its business at No. 217 Central Ave. The store at 278 W. 6th St. will be discontinued after the expiration of the present lease in March. The location of the company is the same as originally occupied by Alfred Warren when he began the business in 1854, and is considered one of the best stands in the city. The consolidation will give the Company facilities for doing a large jobbing trade in addition to their extensive retail business, which is already one of the largest in Cincinnati.

NEWARK, O.—The report is that Hammond & Son have sold out their book business. They have established themselves in the wall-paper business in Columbus, O., and that requiring their entire attention, they are contemplating the sale of their book business here. They consider that their bookstore, being the only one in a city of 15,000 inhabitants, would be a fine opportunity for a live person who wished to go into the business in the West.

NEW YORK CITY.—John Ireland, 1197 Broadway, suffered damage to his stock by water at the fire of the Fifth Avenue Theatre, January 2, to the extent of $500. Fortunately, Mr. Ireland was insured.

NEW YORK CITY.—Charles Scribner's Sons and Scribner & Welford announce that the branch of their business heretofore conducted under the name of Scribner & Welford will hereafter be carried on under the name of Charles Scribner's Sons, which title will thus include all departments of their business. This will involve no change in their business of importing books, and is made solely to simplify their methods of work and for the convenience of customers.

NEW YORK CITY.—A. C. Armstrong & Son have removed to more commodious quarters at 51 East 10th Street, next to John Wiley & Sons and about four doors east of Broadway.

NEW YORK CITY.—Fleming H. Revell has transformed his business into a corporation, which is to be known as the Fleming H. Revell Company. Mr. Revell becomes President of the Company, and with increased facilities hopes to considerably extend its business.

WILMINGTON, DEL.—The Delaware Printing Company's establishment, printers and dealers in books and stationery, has been closed by the Sheriff. B. F. James, President of the company, said he had no statement to make, except that the company was unable to meet its engagements.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 10, 1891.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

SINCE the passage of the Copyright bill by the House, the opponents of the measure have been at their wits' ends to devise some scheme to hamper its passage by the Senate. The bill recently introduced in the Senate by Senator Teller, of Colorado, is supposed to indicate the line of battle which the opponents of international copyright legislation will adopt. Mr. Teller's bill is said to have been drawn up by Mr. John M. Ela, a Chicago lawyer. It makes provision to retain the present system of reprinting the works of a foreign author, but stipulates that ten per cent. of the proceeds of the sale of every republication shall go as a royalty to the foreigner, in lieu of all claims of exclusive control or ownership. By the proposed bill, American publishers of foreign works are required to submit correct monthly accounts of their receipts from sales to the United States District Court, and to deposit with the clerks of these courts ten per cent. of the retail prices which such works bring; and those amounts are to be paid to the foreign author on demand. The law is to apply only to works which are copyrighted in the foreign country of which the author is a citizen, and the protection it affords is to expire twenty-eight years from the date of such copyright.

This idea in one form and another has come up so often, and has been refuted so completely, that we trust Mr. Teller's bill will be allowed to repose undisturbed in the Committee on Patents. Now that the wrangle over the Elections bill seems to have been brought to an end, we expect the Copyright bill to be brought up for action. We earnestly hope the good sense of the Senate will prevail, and that amendments and such countermoves as that through Mr. Teller and others will be ignored. Sooner or later it must pass. Literary piracy is on its last legs, and, as Prof. Max Muller, in a recent letter on the subject, tersely puts it, "being no longer considered honorable, will die out, and very soon its few surviving desperadoes will find it unprofitable." Delay may even be more dangerous than open hostility. The immediate and pressing duty, therefore, is the passage of the bill.

S. A. MAXWELL & CO. SELL OUT TO A. C. McCLURG & CO.

ONE of the surprises the opening of the year has brought with it is the report of the purchase of the entire stock and good-will of Maxwell & Co.'s wholesale and retail book business, and also their retail stationery business, by A. C. McClurg, of Chicago. The purchase is to be finally consummated on the 15th inst., the terms and conditions having been agreed upon two months ago. Messrs. Maxwell & Co. retire entirely from the book business, and devote themselves in the future exclusively to the wall-paper business, wholesale and retail, and to the wholesale stationery and fancy goods business.

It may be properly said that during the years they were in business at Bloomington, Ill., and even more, during the eight years in which they have been in business in Chicago, Maxwell & Co. have built up a very large business in books. It may naturally be inferred, however, that they did not find bookselling so profitable as their other branches of trade, and that the latter offer sufficient reward to induce them to concentrate all their energies upon them.

It may seem a little strange that fifteen or twenty years ago Chicago could boast of four large jobbing-houses in books and stationery: W. B. Keen, Cooke & Co., Hadley Bros. & Co., Cobb, Andrews & Co., and the house which is now A. C. McClurg & Co. Of these houses, the first two successively failed in business, and Cobb, Andrews & Co. withdrew to Cleveland, O. Messrs. Maxwell & Co. are the only other large house which has figured in the book jobbing business in Chicago since that time. It would seem evident that concentration and the survival of the few large concerns is the rule in the book business, as it seems to be the rule in almost every other branch of modern trade. It is quite possible that the only house which remains does a business to day larger by far than the combined business of the four houses of former years. This singular history is, perhaps, also only another evidence that the book business requires for its conduct not only business capacity and close attention, but other qualities as well; and it is probably because these other qualities, as well as business enterprise, are found most strongly marked in the house that survives, that it has been able to gather the growing book business of the West into its own hands. With the large business of Maxwell & Co. added to it, the house will certainly have few, if any, rivals in the amount of business transacted.

Messrs. McClurg & Co. contemplate no changes of policy. Prices will continue as heretofore, and with the additional force taken with the stock and business of Maxwell & Co. they hope to provide even more satisfactorily than heretofore for the wants of the booksellers and stationers of the great and rapidly growing West.

CANADA'S DEMAND FOR COPYRIGHT.

ADVICES from Canada show that the Dominion Parliament seems determined upon taking a firm stand on the copyright question. Sir John Thompson, Minister of Justice, has made public a communication addressed by him to the Secretary for the Colonies, setting forth the injustice under which Canadian manufacturers of books and Canadian readers labor because of the present state of the copyright law. His argument supports the Canadian Copyright Act of 1889, which is still waiting the imperial proclamation to go into force as law. We give below a condensation of his statements and arguments:

The correspondence between the British and Canadian authorities, after the passage of the British Copyright Act of 1842, resulted in the British Government suggesting that the Colonial legislators should themselves deal with the matter, so as to do justice to all concerned, and promised to obtain the imperial sanction for such legislation. Almost half a century has since elapsed, the situation has become worse, and the reasons for the fulfilment of the promise or for the remedying of the grievance have increased tenfold. The high price of British books almost entirely prevents their importation into the Colonies, the wants of which are supplied mainly by American reprints.

The American publisher, unrestrained by any international copyright law or treaty, is free to reprint any British work, and to supply it not only to the reading public of the United States, but to the reading public of Canada, while the Canadian publisher is not free to reprint any such work on any terms unless he can obtain the permission of the holder of the copyright in Great Britain.*

In some instances this has actually led to the transfer of printing establishments from Canada to the United States. In other cases English publishing houses have set up branches in New York and other American cities, with a view of reprinting for the United States and Canada the copyright works which they have issued in London. It has been to their interest to establish such branch houses in the United States, because they obtain thereby the American market, whereas in Canada, even with the permission of the holder of the copyright, they would only have the Canadian public for purchasers, and without that permission could not set the type of a single page.

The system of circulating libraries and periodical sales which gives to the British reader the benefit of British literature, has found no place in the Colonies, while in Canada the means of reprinting British publications are now, though they were not then, entirely adequate to the wants of the reading public, if it be permitted to carry on operations with a reasonable regard for the interest of British copyright holders.

An American publisher, if he desires to make any arrangements with the British copyright holder for the right to reprint the work of the latter, can easily outbid the Canadian publisher, not only on account of the greater facilities he possesses for the production of the book, and not only on account of the more extended market which he has in the United States, but because he will have the Canadian market of 5,000,000 readers at his command, inasmuch as the Imperial Copyright act forbids the reprinting of copyrighted works, but permits the importation of American reprints. In many modern instances the British copyright holder has preferred to sell his right to an American publisher rather than to a Canadian, and has bound himself by the terms of the sale to prosecute any Canadian who may reprint his work for sale in Canada, which is the operation which the American sets himself about at once.

In 1869 the vexed question was considered by the Imperial Board of Trade, and was deferred in the hope that some international arrangement might be made with the United States.

In 1889 the Canadian Parliament believed that the act then passed looking to a change in existing conditions would receive a favorable consideration at the hands of Her Majesty's Government; but in a despatch dated March 25, 1890, it was again suggested that it would be desirable to leave the law as it now stands, until the United States had decided upon the action to be taken on the subject of copyright.

Sir John Thompson points out that the only measure which has been offered in the United States Congress, looking to international arrangement, has exacted as an indispensable condition to American copyright (whether treaty or statutory) reprinting in the United States. "It is not too much then, I hope," exclaims Canada's Minister of Justice, "to ask that a final decision of the case of Canada should no longer be postponed to await the action of the United States."

*[NOTE.—The Canadian provisions are that if a British author does not enter copyright in Canada, which necessitates printing within the Dominion, then foreign reprints may be imported, on payment of 12½ per cent. customs royalty.—ED. P. W.]

ENGLAND'S NEW COPYRIGHT BILL.

From the Athenæum, December 20.

THERE has been more talk of late years about international copyright with the United States than about copyright at home. Yet no part of our law stands in greater need of reform than that relating to copyright. There are eighteen acts on the subject, some of which are so obscure as to be incomprehensible, while others are so defective as to be useless. One of the most obvious defects is the absence of uniformity. The copyright which is considered good enough for an author is not thought suitable for a musical composer, a painter of pictures, or a playwright. The law is in a state of confusion and uncertainty which might be appropriate in Wonderland, but which is a disgrace in a well ordered community.

The grievances of authors, artists, composers and dramatists with regard to copyright are of old standing, and their reality is unquestionable. In order that a method for redressing them might be ascertained, a Royal Commission was appointed fifteen years ago. That Commission examined those who were interested or aggrieved and presented an elaborate report in 1878. In 1879 a bill was introduced into the House of Commons by the Government of the day, and the provisions of that bill embodied the recommendations of the Royal Commission. Lord John Manners, who introduced the bill, has done nothing in the matter since 1879. The grievances of authors, artists, composers and playwrights are as many in number and as acute as they were before the appointment of the Royal Commission. The still-born bill of Lord John Manners, now Duke of Rutland, has not afforded them any consolation.

A new bill has been read a first time in the House of Lords, at the instance of Lord Monkswell. A more carefully prepared measure has seldom been submitted to Parliament. Some time ago it was announced in these columns that a sub-committee of the Society of Authors, under the presidency of Sir Frederick Pollock, was engaged in preparing a measure on copyright, and the result is the bill which the House of Lords will be asked to read a second time after Parliament reassembles.

The distinguishing characteristics of the new Copyright bill are simplicity and comprehensiveness. In a single measure of ninety-four clauses the provisions of the existing eighteen acts are digested and consolidated, while each part of the bills deals separately and completely with the various subjects of copyright, such as (1) Literature, (2) Music and Dramatic Works, and (3) Works of Art. Nearly all that was contained in the bill of Lord John Manners is repeated in this one, while the provisions in the bill of Mr. Hastings relating to works of fine art, introduced into the House of Commons in 1886, are also reproduced. The principal recommendations of the Royal Commissioners have been accepted by the framers of this measure; in short, the bill as a whole is thoroughly practical, and, we should think, will prove acceptable to all concerned.

The principal points in the measure may be summarized, chief among them being the duration of copyright, which is to run during the lifetime of the author, artist, composer, or dramatist, and for thirty years after his death. At present an author's term of copyright is his lifetime and seven years, or else forty-two years from the date of publication, whichever term is the longer. In printed and published lectures the term is understood to be the writer's lifetime or twenty-eight years; in engravings the term is twenty-eight years; in pieces of sculpture it is fourteen years, with a possible extension for a like period; while the state of the law is unsettled as to the duration of copyright in musical works and lectures which have been publicly performed or delivered, but not printed. At present the writer of an article or essay in a collective work, other than an encyclopædia, cannot reprint it, without permission, till twenty-eight years have elapsed; in the new bill the term is reduced to three years. At present an author may see his labor lost by some one abridging his work, while in the new bill abridgment is rendered a part of the copyright. A novelist may now see his work dramatized, and is as impotent to forbid the operation as he is to profit by the result; whereas, should the new bill become law, the right of the novelist to dramatize his work, and of the playwright to convert his into a novel, is expressly reserved. The exhibition of photographs taken on commission is rendered illegal in the new bill without the consent of the person for whom they have been taken. In all cases except paintings and sculptures, registration is to be compulsory should the new bill become an act.

Those who seek for novelties in the new bill may complain of their absence, the design of the framers having evidently been to insert nothing in it about which there is a marked, if not irreconcilable difference of opinion. The only new thing is that the deliverer of sermons is to retain copyright in them, and to have the right of prohibiting a report, should he think fit. The Royal Commissioners recommended the withdrawal of the existing privilege under which certain universities and libraries receive copies of all new books, and that the privilege should be confined to the British Museum. The new bill maintains the existing law in this matter. As regards international copyright, the clauses are reproduced from the act of 1886 giving effect to the terms of the Convention of Berne, while provision is made by order in Council for extending copyright to aliens who are subjects or citizens of the countries which have not joined that convention.

Whether registration should become compulsory or remain optional is the only point on which opinions are likely to be divided. As regards the other provisions of the new bill, the wisdom of Parliament will be clearly shown by sanctioning them as they stand. The Congress of the United States may possibly pass into law the Bill for International Copyright at present before it. It is to be hoped that the Parliament of the United Kingdom will be quite as ready to legislate and pass into law such a just and comprehensive measure for home copyright as that of which Lord Monkswell has taken charge.

FUNK & WAGNALLS' STANDARD DICTIONARY.

One of the chief objects of Funk & Wagnalls in undertaking the immense work of preparing a new dictionary of the English language is, they claim, to make a dictionary that will be exact, comprehensive, and yet, to a person of average education, easy to understand. In their prospectus and sample pages of their vast enterprise, they quote the dictum of "an author of wide experience, whose reputation is international:" "Our dictionaries are difficult to consult. My daughters have a collegiate education, and yet I never send them without misgiving to a dictionary to look up for me the meaning of a word." The publishers are keeping before their numerous co-laborers the threefold aim of simplicity, accuracy and comprehensiveness. "The average man," they explain, "refers to a dictionary to find one or more of three things about a word: (1) its correct spelling, (2) its correct pronunciation, (3) its most common present meaning. It is our purpose to enable him to get this information with ease and certainty, and hence we permit nothing to stand between the vocabulary word and its most usual or important present meaning."

To the following departures from the usual methods pursued by lexicographers they call special notice. They place the etymology after the definition, arguing that many persons are confused and repelled by the signs and abbreviations and the foreign and other strange words that make up the etymology when it is placed between the vocabulary word and the definition, and that they do not find it necessary to sacrifice the needs of the masses in order to meet the requirements of scholars. For the same reason in giving the definitions of words they are substituting for the historical order what they call the order of usage, giving as the first definition the meaning most generally accepted, followed by the meanings less generally accepted, the obsolete meanings being given last. Technical language is avoided in definitions as far as accuracy and reasonable brevity will permit. Of course in the departments of the various arts and sciences the technical and scientific names will be given, yet in nearly all cases, simple, commonplace names will be added, which will give at once a clew to the meaning. They will also adopt a system of verifying the quotations given to illustrate the use of words. In addition to the author's name they propose to "locate" the quotation in every instance, giving the name of the book and the chapter and page of a specified edition where the quotation can be found.

More than a thousand persons are reported engaged in assisting in this branch of the work. A very large proportion of the quotations will be selected from the standard writers of the day. Between two verifying quotations from writers of equal authority, the preference will in every case be given the American above the English author. In an appendix to the dictionary will be given the date, as far as known, of every book from which a quotation is taken. The branch of pronunciation is under the editorial charge of Prof. F. A. March, of Lafayette College, who has adopted the scientific alphabet recommended by the American Philological Society, which it is thought will prove "a great aid in pronunciation and a long stride toward simplicity and common sense." The various departments of the Standard Dictionary are being placed under the head of leading specialists.

The Appendix will give with pronunciation: (1) The Proper Names found in the Scriptures; (2) The Names of Prominent Men of History, ancient and modern, with dates of birth and death; (3) Geographical Names; (4) Prominent Names in Fiction (the author and book given as far as practicable); (5) Pseudonyms; (6) The Titles of Prominent Books of difficult pronunciation; (7) Foreign Phrases and Words (with pronunciation indicated); (8) Foreign Musical Words and Phrases; (9) Caterer's Terms, used in bills of fare; (10) Foreign Medical Terms, etc. Besides, there will be much classified cyclopædic matter, as Scriptural Events, the Principal Events which have occurred on Each Day of the Year, etc. There will also be a department called "Faulty Pronunciation and Faulty Diction." In this department thousands of examples of incorrect current speaking will be given. There will also be grouped the technical terms used in different trades, as in carpentering, watchmaking, etc.

It is estimated that the "Standard Dictionary" will contain over 2100 pages, and there will be nearly 4000 illustrations made specially for the work.

IMMORAL BOOKS IN CHINA.

THE Chinese officials appear to have a prompt and no doubt efficacious method of suppressing the sale of immoral literature, to judge from the following proclamation published last year in the North China News. It is for the benefit of the province of Kiangsu, and is as follows:

"Proclamation issued by Wong, Provincial Treasurer of Kiangsu:

"I hereby strictly prohibit bookshops from selling immoral books. According to law, officials who print immoral books will be degraded, and common people who do so will be punished with 100 blows of the bamboo, and banishment for 3000 li. Those who sell such books will be punished with 100 blows and banishment for three years. Those who buy such books to read will be punished with 100 blows of the bamboo. I now give fair warning before enforcing the law I have ascertained that Governor Ting had formerly issued a proclamation prohibiting the sale of certain immoral books, but the booksellers are now again violating the law. Within one month after the issue of this proclamation the types of the immoral books must be destroyed, and those already in print must be burnt. Those who dare to disregard my orders will be punished according to law." Dated Kwang Hsu, 16th year, 5th moon, 16th day.

A TOPEKA BIBLIOMANIAC'S MODESTY.

From the Chicago News.

THE reputation of being a bibliomaniac has its disadvantages. This is illustrated in the experience which Mr. W. I. Way, of Topeka, had some years ago. Though never a Crœsus, he has, nevertheless, been a buyer of good books and of handsome books for a long time, and it doesn't take a century for other bookbuyers to find out all about their fellows in mania. At any rate Mr. Way's name became known across the sea, and in no time the post-office in Topeka was flooded once a week with catalogues from London, Edinburgh and Glasgow booksellers, announcing rare and costly wares for sale. This rather flattered Mr. Way. He was not so old in the mania as he is now, nor so ripe in experience. What flattered him most was a circular letter that came from London one day inviting him to subscribe to a fund to be devoted to raising a monument to the memory of the poet Wordsworth. This circular bore upon it the imposing signature of Edmund Gosse. Of course Mr. Way was flattered—yes, he was delighted—and he read the circular over thrice, and then, confirmed in the intention he had at first conceived, he proceeded to the nearest bank to buy a draft on London. This draft was for £8, or, in native money, $40. It was not a large sum, thought Mr. Way, but it was perhaps as much as could be expected of Topeka. So Mr. Way accompanied his subscription with a modest letter expressing his regret that he was unable to contribute more handsomely to the noble cause, etc.

The receipt of the subscription was duly acknowledged by Mr. Gosse, and in about six months along came an announcement that the list had closed, sufficient money for the purpose having been obtained. Accompanying this announcement was a printed list of all subscribers, and Mr. Way then learned that next to that of the Duke of Portland his subscription was the largest!

It was this incident, presumably, that inspired Leigh Hunt's immortal couplet:

> With one exception, he who lived out West
> Led all the dukes, the baron, and the rest.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. VAN RENSSELAER CRUGER, it is reported, has determined to issue all her works hereafter under the pseudonym of "Julien Gordon."

A MEMOIR of Mrs. Felicia Hemans has been written by Mr. Sutton, the librarian of the Manchester Free Library. The book will be published at an early date.

THE novel on which Thomas A. Edison and George Parsons Lathrop have been working conjointly will probably be ready for the press this month. The book will contain a number of sketches made by the inventor to illustrate his predictions.

OBITUARY.

THEOPHILUS B. PETERSON.

THE death of Theophilus B. Peterson, the senior member of the firm of T. B. Peterson & Bros., takes one more from the fast-thinning ranks of the "self-made men" of the American book trade. Mr. Peterson was born in Philadelphia in 1823. His father came from New Jersey, and was descended from the original Swedish emigrants who antedated William Penn. His mother was a native of Boston, with a long line of New England ancestry. The laws of heredity certainly entitled the son of such parents to the courage, enterprise and self-reliance which were throughout his busy life his distinguishing characteristics.

Young Peterson took very unkindly to school-life, and at the age of thirteen absolutely refused to submit to the daily routine any longer. He left the class-room and secured a place as errand-boy in a dry-goods store. After six months he again became restless and transferred his talents to a shipping-house engaged chiefly in South American trade. Here again he found, after a year's trial, that he could not rise as fast as his ambition demanded, and he decided to learn a trade. He entered a foundry and type-setting establishment, and by resolute hard work managed to make himself sufficiently master of type-setting and stereotyping to fill the position of foreman at the age of eighteen on the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post, at that time one of the leading papers of the country, edited by George R. Graham, afterwards at the head of the phenomenally successful Graham's Lady's and Gentleman's Magazine. But a subordinate position, even when one of great trust, did not long satisfy the restless spirit in young Peterson. He chafed under the thought of being an employé, and, when he had saved up a capital of less than $300, he resigned his position and opened a news-stand at 98 (which afterwards became 302) Chestnut Street.

After a short time he concluded to try a new idea and deal in cheap publications that could be sold at very low price. By carefully watching his sales he learned that for cheap sensational fiction there was a demand for which, thus far, no provision had been made. The young dealer determined to manufacture the wares of which the sale proved so profitable, and in 1846 made his first venture as publisher by reprinting Lady Charlotte Bury's sensational novel, "Ensnared," which had been published in London in a three-volume edition at $7.50. Mr. Peterson furnished the story in one volume at 25c., and it had an immense sale. This encouraged the young publisher in his idea of stereotyping all the most popular foreign and American works of fiction of which he could get possession and publishing them at the smallest price for which they could be manufactured with a living profit. His enterprise and almost unerring judgment of the popular taste laid the foundation of the house of T. B. Peterson & Brothers. In 1853 his business had outgrown the building in which he started, and he made arrangements to lease one of the new Girard Stores, at 306 Chestnut Street, into which he moved as soon as the building was completed. In 1858 he took his two brothers, George W. and Thomas, who had for some time been with him, into partnership, changing the style of the firm to T. B. Peterson & Brothers, which name has remained unchanged, although George W. Peterson died in 1861. The history of the firm is one of uninterrupted prosperity, and its imprint is known, especially in circulating libraries and on the railroads all over the country. The publications of T. B. Peterson & Bros. have always been widely read. Of Charles Dickens' works alone the house has issued twenty different editions of every size and style of type and binding. Their list also includes twenty-six of Walter Scott's novels; twelve of Wilkie Collins; the same number of Charles Lever; fourteen of Marryat; seven each of Anthony Trollope and of Harry Cockton; thirty-three of Mrs. Henry Wood, and many other less known English novelists. The translations from the French have also been very profitable. Their catalogue includes thirty of Alexander Dumas' novels; ten of George Sand's; Eugene Sue's works, and several of the later writers, notably Emile Zola.

But it was in romantic and sensational fiction produced on American soil that this firm found their "bonanza." Their most popular author for many years has been Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth, and their list contains forty-three volumes from her pen. Mrs. Southworth walked into Mr. Peterson's office one afternoon toward the close of 1854 and frankly told him she had published several novels with various publishers who had not made money on them and refused to take another story. She insisted that her new story would prove successful, and finally induced Mr. Peterson to accept "The Lost Heiress." By judicious and lavish advertising the book was brought prominently into notice, and proved so successful that the publishers bought the plates of former novels, and since that time have published all of Mrs. Southworth's novels. When it is known that this writer's royalties insure her an income of $6000 a year, the profit to the publishers can be approximately estimated. Most of her stories were first published in Robert Bonner's New York Ledger, by special arrangement with Mr. Peterson. Mrs. Ann S. Stephens, Eliza Dupuy, Caroline Lee Hentz and T. S. Arthur also appear among the money-making investments of the firm. The firm strangely enough has also made a specialty of cook-books, and have twelve selling volumes on their list, the most important being "Francatelli's Modern Cook," for which there is still a steady sale. During almost half a century Mr. Peterson had been an untiring worker. His health had always been good and his energy and endurance seemed inexhaustible. About a year ago he began to feel the first approach of weakness. The doctors feared heart disease, and for the last few months he began for the first time to take care of himself. He was only confined to the house three weeks, and died on December 30, at his residence in Philadelphia.

ALPHONSE PEYRAT, the noted French author and Senator, died on the 2d inst., at Paris, aged 78 years. Among his recent works may be cited "Correspondence from England" (1854); "A New Dogma" (1855); "Critique of Some Men of the Day" (1855); "The Empire Impartially Viewed" (1856), and "History and Religion" (1858).

ARTHUR E. ROWE, the son of Arthur C. Rowe, of Charles Scribner's Sons, died at his home, in Orange, N. J., last week, from pneumonia, at the age of twenty-four. He was a student at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, and was about to be graduated. He was a young man of unusual promise.

ALEXANDER W. KINGLAKE, the historian of the Crimean war, died on the 2d inst., at London, aged about 78 years, the date of his birth at Taunton being given variously as 1802, 1809 and 1811. In 1837 he was called to the bar, and attained high reputation in chancery practice. In 1856 he abandoned law for politics. He was elected to Parliament, where he held a seat as a Liberal until 1868, when he was unseated on petition and retired from political life. His fame, however, rests chiefly upon his literary work, though he was the author of only two works, "Eothen," a volume published in 1844, which told the story of his travels in the East, and a "History of the War of the Crimea." Kinglake accompanied Lord Raglan to the Crimea, and his history is practically a defence of Lord Raglan's conduct of that famous campaign, he being a strong friend and admirer of the General, whose plan of campaign has been the subject of much criticism by other historians. In spite of the author's evident bias, his history is so minutely and carefully written and known to be compiled from official sources, that it is accepted as the best history of the war published, though it has called out much bitter criticism.

PERSONAL NOTES.

MISS MARGARET GORDON HALL, daughter of George D. Hall, of Boston, was married on New Year's Day to Aaron F. Adams, the New York representative of the John Church Company, of Cincinnati, in the parlors of the Church of the Strangers, by the Rev. Dr. Charles F. Deems. We congratulate the happy pair.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MACMILLAN & CO. announce a volume by Mr. Goldwin Smith, to be entitled "Canada and the Canadian Question."

THE WORTHINGTON COMPANY claims to have secured from the Patent Office a trade-mark upon the word International, which they use in connection with their series of novels.

THOMAS WHITTAKER publishes this week Canon Lubbock's "Intermediate State Between Death and Judgment," a sequel to his work entitled "After Death." He has also in the Theological Educator Series "The Writers of the New Testament: their style and characteristics," by Wm. Henry Simcox.

BENJ. R. TUCKER, of Boston, publishes this week an English translation of Count Tolstoi's latest work, "The Fruits of Culture." The book has never been published in Russia. It is a twofold satire on "culture" and Spiritualism. The follies of the so-called "cultured" classes are exhibited in a humorous picture of their fashions, "fads" and mental freaks, and the story hinges upon the effect of Modern Spiritualism on an aristocratic family in Russia.

FLEMING H. REVELL CO. will publish on the 15th inst. a "Syllabus of Old Testament History," by Prof. Ira M. Price, of Morgan Park Theological Seminary. It will greatly assist readers and Bible students, and especially Sunday-school workers, in mastering the outlines of their lessons for the next six months. They will publish on the 21st David Baron's "Israel—Present and Future, or, the solution of the Jewish problem." Mr. Baron is a converted Jew and well known in connection with the Mildmay mission in England

GINN & CO. have just ready Fénelon's treatise on the "Education of Girls," translated by Miss Kate Supton, of Vanderbilt University. While dealing primarily with the education of girls—a subject much neglected in Fénelon's day—the book is largely taken up with the discussion of the elementary principles of education, and gives careful and detailed directions for the proper training of children of both sexes. It anticipates the methods of the modern kindergarten and gives practical suggestions for carrying them out.

ELKIN MATHEWS, of Vigo Street, London, is about to issue a pamphlet "addressed to authors and others," by Mr. C. T. Jacobi, the manager of the Chiswick Press. It is to be called "On the Making and Issuing of Books."

A NEW edition of the "Rig-Veda," with the well-known "Bháshya" or commentary of Sàyanàchàrya, has been prepared by Ràjàràm Shàstri Bodas. The Samhita and Pada texts of the "Veda," as well as the text of the "Bháshya," have been collated with MSS. obtained from the pandits of Benares, Poona and Ratnagiri, and also from the libraries of the Bombay Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society and the Deccan College, Poona. The edition, which is copiously annotated and contains variorum readings, is published in eight volumes at fifty rupees, and is on sale by Mr. Tookaram Tatya, 17 Tamarind Lane, Fort, Bombay. Only a limited number of copies has been printed.

HAVE JUST PUBLISHED:

History of the United States.

By HENRY ADAMS.

Vols. VII., VIII. and IX. SECOND ADMINISTRATION OF JAMES MADISON. 1813–1817. 12mo, $6.00.

Complete set, 9 vols., in a box, $18.00.

With the three volumes treating of the Second Administration of President Madison, Mr. Adams' great work, which has received the highest praise from both reviewers and the public, is completed. No more important contribution to American historical literature has been made in this generation. The entire work covers the four administrations of Jefferson and Madison from 1801 to 1817.

"A great mass of new materials has been put in requisition for the preparation of this treatise. The springs of many a movement which were before obscure are here brought to sight. The narrative style of Mr. Adams is vigorous in its grasp of materials, dignified in its tone and correct in point of literary form."—The Nation.

Principles of Political Economy.

By Prof. A. L. PERRY, of Williams College. 8vo, $2.00.

In this entirely new book, which is distinct from its two others, "Political Economy," now in its twenty-first edition, and "Introduction to Political Economy," Prof. Perry deals chiefly with the great principles of the science, history being used incidentally to illustrate each topic.

Outlines of Physiological Psychology.

By Prof. GEORGE T. LADD, D.D., of Yale University. With illustrations. 8vo, $2.00.

The entire subject is surveyed in this work, though with fewer details and references than in the author's "Elements," the purpose of the book being to give the beginner a clear knowledge of the outlines of the science.

Ballads.

By ROBERT LOUIS STEVENSON. 16mo, $1.00.

"Like everything that Mr. Stevenson does, they are full of picturesque movement and the warmth of life. One turns to re-read over and again with increasing fascination."—Boston Times.

Besides having at hand the resources of the New York Market, we are Special Agents for Boston and Philadelphia Publishers, and for S. C. Griggs & Co. and A. C. McClurg & Co., of Chicago.

This House is Characterized by its Promptness, Carefulness, and Low Price.

Three-quarters of the books now published contain illustrations.

Ten years ago not one quarter of the books were illustrated.

The cheapening of illustrating has caused this wonderful increase.

WE supply cheap illustrating in this way: We have the sole right to furnish electrotypes from the wood of the entire stock of engravings of some of the largest publishers in this country and in Europe. An electrotype of an engraving which originally cost the publisher $50 will cost you $5; the engraving can be used in all of your publications and answers your purposes just as well as though YOU paid the $50.

Let us know what you will publish.

A WASHINGTON BIBLE-CLASS.

By GAIL HAMILTON. Large 12mo, cloth, $1.50.

A year ago this brilliant author's interpretations of the Bible gathered about her the most distinguished representatives of official life in Washington. In this book, prepared at the special request of the eminent members of the class, Gail Hamilton offers her incisive lucid "Bible talks" to a larger audience.

One reason given for the existence of "A Washington Bible-Class" is the desire of mothers to have some reasonable system of faith to teach to their active-minded children. Thoughtful mothers will find in the book suggestions that cannot fail to be helpful to them in presenting Bible stories to their children without making too great a draft on their credulity. It is a book of hints rather than systems, but the hints are in the direction of nature and common sense.

THE PRIVATE JOURNAL OF WILLIAM MACLAY,

United States Senator from Pennsylvania, 1789–1791. With portrait from original miniature. Edited by EDGAR S. MACLAY, A.M. Large 8vo, cloth, $2.25.

As the early sessions of Congress were held with closed doors, little is known of their proceedings. "The Journal of William Maclay" throws a flood of light on this important chapter of American history, giving a detailed description of debates, sketches of Congressional life, official dinners, State ceremonies, etc., Tariff for Protection, and "Nobilimania," as discussed in the First Congress; also strong side-lights—Washington, Adams, Hamilton, and Jefferson—on the Senators and Representatives. This Journal has been jealously withheld from public scrutiny by the descendants of William Maclay for a hundred years, owing to the sharp and candid observations it makes on personages whom we are accustomed to reverence. An unreserved publication is now offered for the first time.

A NEW EDITION OF

EVOLUTION OF MAN AND CHRISTIANITY.

By the Rev. HOWARD MACQUEARY. 12mo, cloth, $1.75. With a new Preface, in which the Author answers his critics, and with some important additions.

With a new Preface, in which the Author answers his Critics, and with some important Additions.

"'There can be little doubt,' says Prof. Le Conte, 'that we are now on the eve of the greatest change in traditional views that has taken place since the birth of Christianity. This change means not a readjustment of details only, but a reconstruction of Christian theology.' It is because I am firmly convinced of the truth of these profound words that I have written this book. Evolution is 'in the air,' and its fundamental tenets are being accepted (perhaps unconsciously) by all classes of minds. It behooves us, then, as religious teachers to recognize this fact, and adjust our theology accordingly."—From the Preface.

"The ecclesiastical trial of the Rev. Howard MacQueary will attract the attention of Christians of every name."—New York Times.

HANDBOOK OF AMERICAN WINTER RESORTS.

FOR TOURISTS AND INVALIDS. With Maps, Illustrations, and Table of Railway Fares. New edition, revised for the Season of 1890–'91. Large 12mo, paper cover, 50 cents.

D. APPLETON & CO., Publishers, 1, 3 and 5 Bond Street, New York.

A NEW EDITION DE LUXE OF

Thackeray's Complete Works.

LIMITED TO 1000 NUMBERED COPIES.

The extraordinary favor accorded to the Edition de Luxe of Charles Dickens' Novels recently issued by us, and the immediate absorption of the edition by the public, lead us to announce the above-named works.

It will be unquestionably the handsomest edition of Thackeray's writings, the nearest approach to the highest ideals of perfection in bookmaking ever attempted in this country. The type is from a new font especially cast for it, and never used for any other purpose. The paper, also especially made for it, combines the qualities of excellence in finish and in the materials used with a lightness of weight that prevents the volume from being uncomfortably heavy to hold and read. The illustrations, a distinguishing feature on account of the great variety and excellence, consist of 210 woodcuts, mainly from drawings of the author which have become as thoroughly identified with his literary work as have the drawings of Cruikshank and Phiz with those of Dickens. To these will be added two etched portraits, a series of twenty original etchings, drawn and etched especially for the publishers of this edition, six photogravures from the Character Sketches of Frederick Barnard, forty photogravures, reproduced for this edition from photographs of real scenes referred to, and forty half-tone illustrations from recent photographs of places in the Levant and Holy Land.

The etchings and woodcuts will be printed on imperial Japanese paper; the half-tone drawings on metallic surface paper, especially adapted to this character of illustration; and the photogravures on Tileston & Hollingsworth's best steel plate paper.

The set will be completed in thirty volumes, at the rate of about two volumes per month. Price, bound in vellum cloth, gilt tops, uncut, $2.50 per vol.

☞ Issued by subscription only, and no orders taken except for complete sets. Prospectus with specimen, showing type, page, paper, etc., with specimen illustration, mailed free upon application.

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN WILEY & SONS have just ready "Memorabilia of George B. Cheever, D.D., late pastor of the Church of the Puritans, Union Square, New York, and of his wife, Elizabeth Wetmore Cheever," in verse and prose—a book sure to be of great interest, to old New Yorkers especially.

W. M. GRISWOLD, 25 Craigie St., Cambridge, Mass., is now printing the second part of his Descriptive List of Novels and Tales, namely, "Novels and Tales dealing with American City Life," which will include notices of a few works belonging in Part I. but accidentally omitted, and, altogether, will describe over 200 books. Booksellers who have not yet made themselves acquainted with this valuable help would do well to supply themselves with sample copy. It will be found useful to themselves as well as to their customers.

THE UNITED STATES BOOK CO. announce for immediate publication Jameson's "Story of the Rear Column of the Emin Pasha Relief Expedition," which will make a large volume of 500 octavo pages, with upwards of 100 illustrations from original drawings by the author, and an appendix on the natural history researches of Mr. Jameson, carefully edited by experts. Mr. Jameson paid the Committee £1000 for the privilege of being enrolled among the subordinates of Mr. Stanley, and met his death on the expedition after intense sufferings.

HENRY HOLT & CO. have just added a new volume to their successful edition of Taine's writings, entitled "The Modern Régime." The work is in two volumes and the translation is by John Durand. Napoleon Bonaparte naturally occupies an important part in this history of modern France. The firm has also ready the "Shorter History of the United States for Schools and Colleges," by Alexander Johnston, who had already given a final revision to his work before his lamented death. The maps in this book are prepared with great care, and are a special feature of the author's plan.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish shortly "A Practical Guide to Whist," by Fisher Ames; "The Science of Fairy Tales," a new volume in the Contemporary Science Series, dealing with tales which contain a supernatural element; "The Adventures of Count George Albert of Erbach," by Princess Henry of Battenberg, a biography of great value, especially in its connection with the history of the Knights of St. John and the Island of Malta, and "Mrs. Thrale, Afterwards Mrs. Piozzi," the new volume in the series of celebrities edited by L. B. Seeley, composed chiefly of her diaries and letters.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will publish next week, as the fourth volume in the series of American Leaders, a book on "Francis Wayland," for many years the distinguished President of Brown University. The book is excellently written, by Prof. J. O. Murray, of Princeton, and is a valuable addition to this series. At the same time will appear a book somewhat of the "Looking Backward" order. It is entitled "The Crystal Button," and in it the author, Mr. Chauncey Thomas, of Boston, describes what he foresees as the possible condition of the world in regard to conveniences, comforts and social order three thousand years hence. The book is not a mere fancy, but gives the results of what may be regarded as the natural development of the scientific knowledge and processes now understood, and also of the forces working in the religious world. It seems hardly possible that it should not attract quite remarkable attention. At the same time Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will publish a second series of "Captains of Industry," by James Parton, giving brief sketches of about fifty persons who in various ways have been and done something for which the world is better; a popular edition of Mr. Lowell's "Biglow Papers," including both series in a single volume; a book by Dr. Weir Mitchell, entitled "A Psalm of Deaths, and other poems," and a third edition from entirely new plates of Gen. Cullum's "Biographical Register of the Officers and Graduates of the Military Academy at West Point from its Establishment until the Present Time," which will all be welcome to readers of the various tastes to which the subjects appeal.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which he edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.) D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Adams, H: History of the United States of America, v. 7, 8, 9: During the second administration of James Madison, 1813–1817. 3 v. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1891. c. '90. 4+417 p. map, D. cl., $6.

With these three volumes Mr. Adams' great work is completed. The entire work covers the four administrations of Jefferson and Madison from 1801 to 1817. An index to the complete work (9 v.) is contained in the last volume.

Adventures (The) of a bashful bachelor, by Clara Augusta. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1891.] c. '90. 4–288 p. D. (Peerless ser., no. 28.) pap., 25 c.

Armstrong, Le Roy. An Indiana man. Chic., F. J. Schulte & Co., 1891. c. '90. 3–218 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The scene opens in a church, and after the congregation is dismissed shows the tempter and tempted in the shape of an adroit machine politician holding out the lure of sheriff's office to a young, strong and upright farmer. An old-fashioned spelling-match is next described, and then follow the machinations incidental to the process of nominations in conventions. The power of the saloon in practical politics is very strongly developed, and is indeed the central idea of the story. The author is connected with the Chicago Herald.

Mary E. Burt is a member of the Chicago Board of Education, was formerly teacher of Literature in the Cook Co. Normal School, and is the author of "Literary landmarks." The present work, to be comprised in four volumes, offers a systematic and logical plan of the world's literature. Individual authors are largely quoted from and their works described. Pt. 1 covers the age of myths, the Homeric age, and the period between the Homeric age and the first Olympiad.

Although written in the form of a story, the exact history of Kentucky is given. Two historical authorities carefully examined the manuscript and proofs—one a literary member of the State Historical Society at Louisville, the "Filson Club." The author ranks Kentucky "no mean member of the National Household." She dwells in her preface upon the literary interest recently directed to this State by the books of popular writers, and aims to prove that the men and women of Kentucky contribute more than is realized to the progress and prosperity of their country.

Intended specially for the non-medical public, who desire information not only with regard to the final result, but also concerning the method by which that result was reached. The author endeavors to present to readers who do not possess scientific preparatory knowledge as clear an exposition as possible of Dr. Koch's discovery.

Fielding, Howard, and Burton, F: R. The victim of his clothes; il. by T: Worth. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1891.] c. '90. 2-176 p. D. (Sunnyside ser., no. 12.) pap., 25 c.

Fuller, Alvarado M. A.D. 2000. Chic., Laird & Lee, 1890. c. 3-415 p. D. (Library of choice fiction, no. 8.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The plot of the story is laid in San Francisco in the year 1887; the hero is a lieutenant of the U. S. army, who is in love with the daughter of an old French chemist. The officer and the chemist together make an ozone which suspends animal life, with the aid of a battery, for any space of time. The hero arranges to be put to sleep for 100 years, but sleeps beyond that period for several years. The conditions which he finds throughout the country on his awakening are very amusing. He travels from Chicago to San Francisco by a "pneumatic line." Chicago is the great national metropolis, and a great part of the land above Pittsburg to the Mississippi River has been sunk by explosions of natural gas, etc., etc.

Halloway, Charlotte Molyneux. A story of five. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1890. c. '90. 2-447 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Jared Sterling, a prominent Boston bookseller, embarrasses himself financially by speculating, and then dies of grief. The action of his five daughters in this crisis, and the way they made themselves self-supporting, is the theme of a bright story which conveys much practical information to young girls in a like position.

Hart, Albert Bushnell. Introduction to the study of federal government. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1891. c. '90. 2-200 p. O. (Harvard historical monographs, no. 2.) pap., $1.10.

This monograph is intended in two ways to aid to a knowledge of federal government. The first or historical portion is an outline of the political history of the successive federations, with some account of the literature of each. The second or comparative part is presented in the appendix, containing a parallel view of the four leading federal constitutions now in operation. Each of the constitutions is meant to serve as a practical commentary upon the others. A very full bibliography of federal government is given with notes; it embraces both works and articles in periodicals.

Heart of St. Jane Francis de Chantal: thoughts and prayers, by the Sisters of Divine Compassion. N. Y., Benziger Bros., 1891. 174 p. 32°, pap., 50 c.

Hopkins, Tighe. The Nugents of Carriconna an Irish story. N. Y., Appleton, 1891. 4+300 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 65.) pap., 50 c.

In a little out-of-the-way Irish hamlet, Sir Anthony Nugent, who has been very poor all his life, comes into a fortune, left him by his brother, who has died in Australia and disinherited his daughter. Sir Anthony wishes to learn astronomy and advertises for a lady instructor. His niece, a young widow, accepts the position and a very clever story is the result, in which the characters are original and their actions wholly interesting.

Jay, W. L. M. Bellerue; or, the story of Rolf. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., 1891. c. '90. 2-478 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Some tragic incidents, a rather sad love affair, and the life of two friends in the quaint little city of Bellerue makes a very charming novel that points several morals.

Johnston, Alex. A shorter history of the United States for schools; with an introductory history of the discovery and English colonization of North America; with maps, plans and references to supplementary reading. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1890. c. 14+340 p. D. cl., 95 c.

The author's larger history was published in 1885. At the time of his death the text of this shorter history had already received two careful revisions. It is a complete rewriting of his former work, and is not made briefer by mere omission. The dates to be learned are reduced to a minimum; each chapter is supplemented with references to pertinent poetry and fiction, giving volume and page where they may be found, and special pains have been taken with the maps. Mr. George P. Butler, of the Lawrenceville School, N. J., has prepared the maps and seen the book through the press. The author prepared the article on the United States for the "Encyclopædia Britanica."

Ladd, G: Trumbull. Outlines of physiological psychology; a text-book of mental science for academies and colleges. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1891. c. '90. 9+505 p. O. cl., $2.

The entire subject is surveyed in this work, though with fewer details and references than in the author's "Elements," the purpose of the book being to give the beginner a clear knowledge of the outlines of the science.

Maclay, W: Journal of William Maclay, United States Senator from Pennsylvania, 1789-1791; ed. by Edgar S. Maclay. N. Y., Appleton, 1890 [1891.] c. 13+438 p. por. O. cl., $2.25.

As the early sessions of Congress were held with closed doors, little is known of their proceedings. "The journal of William Maclay" throws a flood of light on this important chapter of American history, giving a detailed description of debates, sketches of Congressional life, official dinners, State ceremonies, etc., tariff for protection, and "nobilimania," as discussed in the first Congress; also strong side-lights—Washington, Adams, Hamilton and Jefferson—on the Senators and Representatives. This journal has been jealously withheld from public scrutiny by the descendants of William Maclay for a hundred years, owing to the sharp and candid observations it makes on personages whom we are accustomed to reverence. An unreserved publication is now offered for the first time.

Osborne, Mrs. S. McAllester. A country boy's centennial. [Also] Little Buttons. N. Y., Belford Co., [1891.] c. '90. 3-71p. il. sq. O. bds., $1.

Two very cleverly illustrated stories for children. The first tells of the adventures of a little country boy whose ardent desire to see the recent New York centennial celebration caused him to run away from home and make his way to the city. His experience has a pathetic touch, and is not without humor. "Little Buttons" is the bright little page of an apartment-house. After some childish adventures, he turns out to be the lost boy of a rich and beautiful lady who has been very kind to him.

Outlines of liturgics; on the basis of Harnack in Zöckler's Handbuch der theologischen Wissenchaften; Englished [sic] with additions from other sources by E. T. Horn, D.D. Phil., Lutheran Pub. Soc., [1891.] c. 153 p. D. cl., 50 c.

Liturgics is that branch of theological science which treats first of the theory of Christian worship, and secondly of its fixed forms. Contains chapters on the nature and essence of Christian worship; the expression, sacramental acts and sacrificial acts in Christian worship; history of the development of the Christian liturgy, matins and vespers; history and literature of liturgics.

Payne, F. M. Business pointers and dictionary of synonyms; with much other information not generally known. N. Y., Excelsior Pub. House, [1891.] c. '90. 2-207 p. S. pap., 25 c.

A handy book of information constantly needed in business. Comprises United States customs laws, passport regulations, rates of postage, naturalization laws, educational statistics of the world, interest laws of United States, tables of compound interest, weights and measures, patent laws, copyright law, foreign words in use in business correspondence, dictionary of synonyms, etc., etc.

Pearson, F. W. A forced marriage: a novel. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1891.] c. '90. 3-173 p. D. (Sunnyside ser., no. 11.) pap., 25 c.

Perry, Arthur Latham. Principles of political economy. N. Y., C. Scribner's Sons, 1891. c. '90. 11+599 p. O. cl., $2.

An entirely new book, distinct from Prof. Perry's "Political economy" and "Introduction to political economy." It deals chiefly with the great principles of the science, history being used incidentally to illustrate each topic. The chapters are devoted to the subjects of "Value," "Material commodities," "Personal services," "Commercial credits," "Money," "Foreign trade," "Taxation." Designed for a college text-book, and for a book of reading and reference for technical purposes.

Ross, Albert, [pseud. for Linn Boyd Porter.] Her husband's friend. N. Y., G. W. Dillingham, 1891. c. '90. 4-361 p. D. (The albatross novels.) pap., 50 c.

Edmund Darrell loves Laura Casson. Laura refuses him, to marry her old guardian, to whom she is deeply indebted. Darrell marries a young country girl out of pique, and learns in a fortnight after his wedding that Laura's intended husband had died at the altar. After a short time he again meets Laura, they pledge themselves to an eternal friendship, and edit together a magazine devoted to social reforms. The wife is neglected and very unhappy. The husband's friend, Harold Mordaunt, endeavors to reunite the estranged pair, and loses his heart to the young wife. These two love-affairs are managed without outraging the proprieties—death and divorce removing obstacles and bringing the story to a conclusion. France and Massachusetts are the scenes.

Sanburn, F., comp. A Delsartean scrap-book; health, personality, beauty, house-decoration, dress, etc.; with a preface by Walter Crane. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 15+250 p. D. (Lovell's literature ser., no. 124.) pap., 25 c.

François Delsarte devoted his life to the study of the laws which underlie human expression. His work includes observations upon the laws of motion, color, sound and form, etc, as applied to physical development, and as a basis of art criticism. This little book is called "Delsartean" because it gives form to a number of lectures on dress, grace, style or expression, physical development, etc., by two students of Delsarte—a Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Russell—who have lectured on his system and have addressed many audiences in this country and Europe. Their pleasant art-talks are supplemented by papers from many sources, rich in advice to the fair sex in keeping young and growing beautiful.

Shakespeare, W. King John: with introd. and notes by K. Deighton. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 27+187 p. 16°, cl., 40 c.

Sharp, Mrs. W., ed. Women poets of the Victorian era; ed. with introd. and notes. N. Y., [A. Lovell & Co.,] [1891.] 32+295 p. T. (The Canterbury poets.) cl., 40 c.

Forty-eight women poets are represented. They are arranged chronologically, beginning with Harriet Martineau, born in 1802, and also by date of poems published, when date of birth is not given. The little volume is dedicated to "My friend, Mona Caird, the most loyal and devoted advocate of the cause of woman."

Sister Agatha, [pseud.] Confessions of a nun. Phil., Jordan Bros., 211 N. 9th St., 1891. c. '88. 6+337 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Family misfortunes and the loss of a lover are the influences which made Sister Agatha the inmate of a convent in France. Her experience here and the stories of most of the inmates are told in this volume. Some revelations are made which reflect severely upon convent life.

Smith, Rev. G. Adam. The book of Isaiah. In 2 v. V. 2, Isaiah xl.-lxvi.; with a sketch of the history of Israel from Isaiah to the exile.

N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1890 [1891.] 12+474 p. D. (Expositor's Bible, new [3d] ser.) cl., $1.50.

Steele, G: M. Rudimentary economics for schools and colleges. N. Y., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1891.] c. '90. 15+211 p. D. cl., net, 90 c.

The author is Principal of Wesleyan Academy, Wilbraham, Mass., and Member of the American Economic Association. Most of the large number of books on political economy are too abstruse and elaborate for young pupils, and many intended for them are condensations rather than simplifications of the subject. The principles of political economy are here stated briefly and clearly, and questions now agitating different political parties are stated from the several points of view. The conflicting views of eminent thinkers being clearly stated.

Stratmann, Francis H: A middle English dictionary, containing words used by English writers from the 12th to the 15th century; rev. and enl., by H: Bradley. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 23+708 p. 4°, cl., $8.

Stredder, Eleanor. Archie's find: a study of Australian life. N. Y., T: Nelson & Sons, 1891. 160 p. 16°, cl., 60 c.

Taine, Hippolyte Adolphe. The modern régime; tr. by J: Durand. In 2 v. V. 1. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 2+359 p. D. (The origins of contemporary France.) cl., $2.50.

This, the third and last part of the "Origins of contemporary France," is to consist of two volumes. After the present volume, the second is to treat of the church, the school and the family, describe the modern milieu and note "the facilities and obstacles," the author says, "which a society like our own encounters in this new milieu." In this volume the historical importance of Napoleon Bonaparte's character and genius are considered in the first book; the other books treat of the formation and character of the new state; object and merits of the system; the defect and effects of the system.

Talmage, T: De Witt, D.D. Twenty-five sermons on the Holy Land. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, [1891.] c. '90. 6-324 p. D. (Sunnyside ser., no. 15.) pap., 25 c.

Tolstoi, Count Lyof N. The fruits of culture: a comedy in four acts; tr. by G: Schumm. Bost., B: R. Tucker, 1891. c. '90. 185 p. D. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

In this book, never published in Russia, and now published first in English by Mr. Tucker, Count Tolstoi continues the war which he began in "The Kreutzer Sonata," but substitutes for the weapons used there the piercing shafts of ridicule and satire. The follies of the so-called "cultured" classes are exhibited in a humorous picture of their fashions, "fads," dress, habits, morals, vices and mental freaks, and the story hinges in particular upon the effect of the craze of modern spiritualism upon an aristocratic family in Russia.

Vaughan, C. J., D.D. The church of the first days: lectures on the Acts of the Apostles. New ed. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 20+597 p. 12°, cl., $2.75.

Wells, Webster. College algebra. N. Y., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1891.] c. '90. 6+544+33 p. D. cl., $1.50.

"Designed as text-book for colleges and scientific schools. The first eighteen chapters are arranged with reference to the needs of those who wish to make a review of that portion of algebra preceding quadratics. In Appendix 1 are graphical demonstrations of the fundamental laws of algebra for pure imaginary and complex numbers; and in Appendix 2, Canchy's proof that every equation has a root. In a department of Answers all those are omitted, which if given would destroy the utility of the example."—Preface. The author is Associate Professor of Mathematics in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Winter, J: Strange, [pseud. for Mrs. H. E. V. Stannard.] The other man's wife: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro. [United States Book Co., 1891.] 1+182 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1721.) pap., 20 c.

LAREDO, TEX.—C. W. McNeil has opened a new book and stationery establishment.

MARION, IND.—Ed. L. Weesner has opened a new book and stationery store on South Washington Street in this city.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—We regret to hear that J. C. Eyrich has been obliged to place his affairs into the hands of his creditors. As by his showing his assets are $11,438 in excess of his liabilities, there seems to be no question of his solvency. He is obliged to ask for extension simply.

NORMAL, ILL.—G. W. Stuart has opened a book and stationery store here.

PONCHATOULU, LA.—George H. Biegel has opened a book and stationery store at this place.

EAST ST. LOUIS, ILL.—S. A. Friess has opened a fine book-store at 330 East Broadway.

ST. PAUL, MINN.—S. T. White & Co. has opened a stationery and book store.

SEARCEY, ARK.—N. P. Bleakley, formerly of Pocohontas, Ark., has opened a book and stationery store here.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 17, 1891.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE announcement that the world-famed collection of Mr. Brayton Ives is to be sold has filled collector and bookseller with amazement. Although Mr. Ives has often claimed he should sell his books some day, the assertion has never been taken seriously, and the intelligence, therefore, is quite startling. So rich a collection and one so conscientiously gathered has never been offered for sale in New York before. Every book is a "gem" and has value. What the effect of the recent financial disturbance will be on prices next March, when the library is to be offered, it is hard to say. Mr. Ives may comfort himself with a curious fact, however, and that is, no matter how scarce money is, no matter what disturbing influences are at work, no matter what storms arise in the financial world, the effect on prices of rare books at auction is practically nil. Hence it is a wise man who puts his money into rare books. But let it be remembered he must put it, as Mr. Ives has done, into the very crême de la crême of valuable books, and so put it as to satisfy the most fastidious, and the chances are that when the day comes when he from any cause wishes to dispose of his collection, he will come out ahead—in a monetary sense.

But another question arises. Can a man whose collection has so to speak become a part of his very personality, who has devoted himself for years to its study, can he ever be compensated for the loss which its distribution means? There are instances on record of men toiling for years to secure a fortune. They become rich, give up their businesess to their sons, and "retire" to spend their last days quietly and in comfort in some retired spot. How long does it last? In a month or so, if the enforced idleness has not killed them, they are to be seen back in their old places, guiding and directing their successors and doing as much work as ever —or perhaps more. So it is with collectors. It is very safe to say that it will not be long before Mr. Brayton Ives will once more be on the hunt, seeking with superhuman energy the lost treasures that he now permits to be cast to the winds. Booksellers at least should not object to this; but even they, much maligned as they are, have some feelings, and we are sure that all the dealers in rare books have heard the news of Mr. Ives' determination with unfeigned regret. To distribute such a collection to the four quarters of the earth, to tear down a monument reared with such taste and care, seems to most of us almost sacrilege. The sale will probably have the effect of creating new collectors, and perhaps what is more important, give the booksellers a chance to show their mettle and settle the doubt as to who really may be termed the Quaritch of the United States. It goes without saying that whoever determines to secure the best books in the Ives sale must be possessed of more than ordinary capital, must be a man of more than ordinary courage, of more than ordinary knowledge, and needless to say, of more than ordinary taste. We await the issue of the catalogue with great interest.

MR. H. O. HOUGHTON ON AMERICAN LITERATURE.

MR. HOUGHTON, of Houghton, Mifflin & Co., was "interviewed" last week in Washington, by T. C. Crawford, an account of which is printed in the N. Y. Tribune, January 11. Among other things, he is reported to have said that "American literature has had small chance. Now that we have international copyright American authors will have the necessary stimulus and encouragement to enable them to do great things. . . . We have great topics, unusual phases of existence; and, as a class, Americans have very keen powers of observation. There is no reason now why we should not have in time a very striking and original literature."

In discussing the literature of the past in this country Mr. Houghton very clearly admitted that few authors could make more than a bare subsistence in writing books. Book-writing is as much a profession as anything else; but, up to the present time, it has been one of the poorest paid. The incentives being meagre, the best men have gone into other professions. It is the exceptional author who can make enough by his writings to pay the expense of most moderate living. Occasionally there is produced a book which fits into an exceptional period, and the consequence is a great sale, realizing a handsome sum for its writer. But these occasions are rare. Mr. Bellamy's book "Looking Backward" owed, in a great measure, its popularity to the particular time in which it was produced. There was a current sentiment throughout the country of uneasiness, which gave the book its run. Over 400,000 copies of this work have been sold. It is one of the largest sales of modern publications.

Yet the book is equalled and surpassed, from a literary and artistic point of view, by many publications which have not reached a tenth of its sale.

When asked if it were not true that there was not a prejudice in well-established publication houses against new and unknown writers, Mr. Houghton said that it was possible that there was some such prejudice, or, to put it differently, there was a natural preference for known writers. This was very easy to explain. It was the same feeling which makes people prefer to employ well-known people in other professions. The physician of experience and the lawyer in wide practice are considered more desirable to have in a case than young and unknown practitioners. Yet it was true that all the great men were at one time unknown, and consequently publishers scrutinize very carefully everything that comes in to them from unknown sources. Mr. Houghton said that he had with him a gentleman whom he called an expert, a high class critic, who could discern all of the faults of a book at the first examination. He has become so critical, through long observation, that few books meet with his entire approval. If the publisher were to follow out his recommendations strictly he would soon cease to publish any books. At the same time his advice and critical judgment were so valuable in the direction of the publications that it was very exceptional when any publication brought out by their house was severely reviewed by the newspapers. Yet, even the best and most experienced judgment errs often in an estimate of the possible popularity of a book from the examination of the manuscript. One particular book which it is not necessary to name came to him in manuscript form, and it had three separate examinations by three different people. The current of their judgment was against the book. But this rejected book was brought out by a New York house, and some 60,000 copies were sold in the first six months. One disadvantage in bringing out the work of a new writer is the need of making it known. However excellent the book, or however great may be its ultimate success, the public has to be educated to the fact that there is such a book. A work of a well-known author to a certain extent advertises itself. There are a number of people in the country who always buy the publications of certain writers. There is a steady demand for them. One of the most popular writers of the present day, Mr. Houghton says, is Mrs. Whitney. Her books have a very steady sale. Publishers generally prefer in the trade writers whose books have a steady sale from year to year, rather than a phenomenal or sensational sale for a short period, even though the total reached by each may not be very different.

As an illustration of the important fact of time and book fitting together in order to produce a great sale, Mr. Houghton spoke of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Many of the critics condemned this story from the point of artistic finish and in its proportions as a story. But it came at a time when the public mind was inflamed with the topic treated, and it contained so many touches of nature that it became one of the great selling books of its time, and has since gone into all modern languages. It is an interesting fact that the sale of this book still continues to a most remarkable degree. Mr. Houghton says that he sells upon an average 30,000 copies a year. Several years ago he got out a special edition of this book of which he sold 60,000 copies.

One of the discoveries of an unknown writer came in the form of a little Christmas book called "The Bird's Christmas Carol." This book was originally prepared for a church fair in San Francisco by a young lady of that city. It had such a success locally that some of her friends thought it good enough to be brought out by an Eastern house. A copy was given to Mr. Houghton. He looked it over himself and decided to republish it without consulting with any of the copy readers or experts. The result justified his judgment. It had a phenomenally large sale and now sells every year as a Christmas book. It has become a Christmas classic, and has some touches in it quite equal to the Christmas carol of Dickens.

STATIONERS' BOARD OF TRADE—ANNUAL MEETING.

THE annual meeting of the stockholders of the Stationers' Board of Trade, January 6, was well attended. President George L. Pease, presided. In his address he remarked among other things that the work of the association had been administered with more than ordinary care and despatch. Owing to the advance in dues it has been possible to increase the number of correspondents, thereby raising the reports on business houses to over thirty-eight thousand. In conclusion he again urged the necessity of an adequate bankruptcy bill.

From the Treasurer's report it appears that the receipts were $14,549.74, and the expenditures $14,461.50, leaving a balance of $88.24.

The Executive Committee's report was as follows:

A number of cases in this department have been settled at an increased percentage over original offer.

There has been received and disbursed by both the collection and failure and assignment departments the sum of $98,952.99. The books have been audited monthly and found correct.

Our redemption fund still remains intact and we close the year with a balance in the treasurer's hands of $88.24, and interest due us from trust company, $59 50; also balance in Nassau Bank of $1,381.94. Dues uncollected, $105.

The annual election for eighteen trustees resulted in the choice of the following: Messrs. Agar, Aikin, Bainbridge, Berlin, Brower, Dillingham, Fairfield, Foye, Horn, Horsman, Knight, Lyon, McLoughlin, Pease, Squier, Von Auw, Wood and Young.

THE BRAYTON IVES COLLECTION.

THE talk of the hour is the startling announcement of the sale in March next of the valuable collection of art treasures and of the library of Brayton Ives, of New York, a collection of world-wide fame. Though the latter has been forming but twenty years, it ranks easily now as in many respects the rarest private collection of books in this country. Begun in connection with a course of historical study, Mr. Ives avoided buying in the haphazard style peculiar to the average bibliomaniac. Every addition to his library ran the gauntlet of cool deliberate judgment as to its right to a place in the collection—once it had passed muster, money was no obstacle in acquiring it. And so year by year, book by book was added until the collection now represents a money value of over half a million of dollars.

The most valuable portion of Mr. Ives' collection must of course be his Americana. We know that his "Champlain's Voyages" has the reputation of being the only complete set to be found in any private library in this country, and that it is in the very best condition. His manuscripts relating to Columbus equal in number and rarity those of the Astor Library, and include a unique copy of Columbus' letter in Spanish to Louis de Sant Angel—believed by some anthorities to be the first printed account of the first voyage to America—as well as the two editions in Latin to Gabriel Sanches, the Royal Treasurer of Spain.

Among the missals the Pembroke "Book of Hours" written for William Herbert, first Earl of Pembroke, about 1440, is the king. It is a large folio containing 267 miniatures in water-colors, and is bound in boards with Italian silverwork. This missal is said by experts to be the finest manuscript of English workmanship in existence. It was bought of F. S. Ellis, of London, in 1883, for £2000 sterling, and ranks with the famous "Bedford Missal" in the British Museum.

In the department of early printed books we remember the Mazarin Bible, bought in 1885 at the Hamilton Cole sale. Previous to that time it reposed in the library of Brinley. Mr. Cole paid $8000 for it in 1880; five years later it had almost doubled in value, Mr. Ives paying $15,000 for it. It has the reputation of being the tallest copy of the Bible known, and is still in the original binding of wooden covers, strengthened with pigskin and iron knobs.

In addition to all the book treasures, to which we will refer later when the catalogue is published, Mr. Ives has a large and valuable collection of oriental procelains and jades, swords, lacquers and carvings.

A. HOWARD HINKLE.

ON New Year's day Mr. A. Howard Hinkle, long and honorably connected with the book trade, retired from the direction of the sales and credits and finances of the Cincinnati office of the American Book Company, and though he retains his place in the general Directory of the company, will, we are glad to learn, take life a little easier. Mr. Hinkle, boy and man, has been connected with this publishing house and its predecessor for twenty-eight years, entering the concern when it was known as Sargent, Wilson & Hinkle, the last named being his father, the late A. H. Hinkle. Continuing through the days when the firm style was Wilson, Hinkle & Co., upon the retirement of O. J. Wilson and the late A. H. Hinkle he became a member of the succeeding firm of Van Antwerp, Bragg & Co., and when this latter was merged into the American Book Company Mr. Hinkle's abilities were recognized, and he was placed in the very front rank of the managers of that vast enterprise.

The attendant cares have become somewhat irksome, and feeling, as he expresses it, that he has an assured income sufficient to keep the wolf from the door, he proposes to devote his attention to his immediate personal interests, and give some other bright young man the opportunity of achieving a fortune where he has accumulated his.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinkle and their children sail, January 21, on the Lahn, for a six-months' tour abroad.

On the evening of January 7, a number of Mr. Hinkle's employés and assistants called at his home, and presented him with a beautiful "loving cup," with this communication:

CINCINNATI, January 1, 1891.

DEAR MR. HINKLE: Please accept this "loving cup," full of our good wishes and esteem.

It carries, with the memories of many years, the hope that those to come may be as many and as full of life and prosperity as those that are past.

T. H. Dustin, Joseph Hart, W. B. Thalheimer, Frank R. Ellis, George A. Howard, C. E. Miller, M. T. Collard, Charles D. Thomas, George Fox, Wm. D Innes, F. A. Gottlieb, Wm. W. Innes, Ralph L. Bower, H. T. Ambrose, Isaac Roose, Oliver J. Cook, F. W. Bergmeier.

The gift is an elegant and artistic piece of work. The cup is of heavy cut-glass beautifully designed, and the rim is circled with a collar of fretted silver. The handles are also of silver of similar pattern. On the unique silver surface is the following inscription:

Presented to

THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA SUITS.

ARGUMENT was continued on the 9th inst., before Judge Wallace, in the United States Circuit Court, in New York, in the case of Adam and Charles Black, of Edinburgh, against Samuel W. and Julius Ehrich, of New York, for alleged infringement of copyright. The arguments on both sides were continued on the lines reported in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, December 13, 1890. As the arguments presented on the part of plaintiffs were but additional proofs, we omit particulars until decision is given. It is expected that a decision will be handed down in ten or fifteen days.

OBITUARY NOTES.

CHARLES S. CORNISH, a prominent real estate dealer in New York, died on the 8th inst., aged seventy years. The fact will be of interest to those who remember the old bookselling and publishing firm of Nafis & Cornish, who were in business in New York about fifty years ago. Mr. Cornish was born in Lexington, N. Y., and came to New York when about fifteen years of age. He was apprenticed to Mr. Nafis, who was then in the book business on Pine Street. He subsequently married his employer's daughter and was admitted into full partnership. On the death of Mr. Nafis, which occurred about 1852, Mr. Cornish gave up the business and devoted himself to the buying and selling of real estate. Nafis & Cornish were among the first to make a specialty of children's books and books for the young, the latter being chiefly of a patriotic character, tales of the Revolution and the like.

As we go to press the news reaches us of the death of Mr. Wesley Redhead, the senior member of Redhead, Norton, Lathrop & Co., of Des Moines, Iowa, on the 9th inst., after a long and painful illness, at the age of 65. We must defer to our next issue a sketch of his life and work.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

UNDER the hammer recently, in London, a copy of Milton's "Poems," dated 1645, containing a scarce portrait of him, realized £65. 10*s*.

THE desk in which the manuscript of "Waverley" lay neglected and almost forgotten, till Sir Walter Scott came upon it in looking for some tackle, has lately come into the possession of Mr. John Murray, Jr. It was given by Scott to Daniel Terry.

Two diaries kept by John Brown have just been added to the anti-slavery collection of the Boston Public Library. They were presented by Mrs. Sarah A. McKim, mother of the architect. They cover the periods 1838–45 and 1855–9. W. P. Garrison is writing an article about them for the Andover Review.

A HARD STUDENT.—Cobble: "How are you getting on with your reading at the library? I see you go round there every day as regular as clockwork." Stone: "I am making fair progress, but I haven't been introduced to her yet."—Brooklyn Life.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

IRA. D. SANKEY, the evangelist, has written a book containing the account of how some of his most famous gospel songs were written and of incidents connected with their conception.

MISS ELAINE GOODALE, the poet and philanthropist, who is now at work in the Sioux country as Superintendent of Schools, is engaged to be married to Dr. Charles A. Eastman, a full-blooded Sioux, who was graduated last summer from the Boston University.

A REPORT from France says the Montesquieu family are about to print seven or eight volumes of letters from the celebrated author which have never yet been published. One of them will contain a "Discourse on the Difference Between Consideration and Reputation."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

Arnold's Literary List is the title of a new journal devoted to the interests of booksellers, librarians and bookbuyers, to be published in London by E. Arnold, 18 Warwick Sq., Paternoster Row, E. C. It will devote itself exclusively to American and French literature. Its American office is at 743 Broadway.

WM. M. & J. C. GOLDTHWAITE, 107 Nassau Street, New York, have just issued the first number of Goldthwaite's Geographical Magazine, a new journal to be devoted to geographical news, carefully collected and presented in a bright, crisp and authentic manner. A prominent feature will be made of the illustrations and maps, which will show the primitive, modern and progressive geography of countries, the various means of locomotion, the relations railroads bear to modern geography as compared with remoter periods, etc. The publishers have long given their attention to the field their magazine is to cover, and now feel confident they have made all necessary provision to make their enterprise a success from the outset.

The Art Interchange opens its 26th volume with a charming number dated January 3, 1891. Several improvements are noticeable; among them a new colored cover and smooth finished paper and the addition of a Home Decoration department. The most pronounced feature of the issue is a picture of primroses in color, which is very cleverly painted. It shows a row of earthen flower-pots, each bearing a mass of blooming flowers well worth a frame. Other illustrations are a pretty parlor, bluebirds and golden-rod for chair-back, arbutus design for after-dinner coffee-cup and saucer, cut-work border for embroidery, head of "Medusa" for brass-work, wood-carving design for leg of stool, design for carved seat for stool, decorative initials "M and P." The text includes directions for carrying out all the designs, notes on current art events, a New Year's ghost party, latest fashion in home decoration, a course of art reading, a cotillion—Sir Roger de Coverly—decorations for dining-room at golden wedding, over-mantel treatment, etc. The issue is filled with information valuable alike to the art student and to women interested in pretty homes.

HENRY HOLT & CO. have just issued the first number of a new magazine to be published in the interests of education, bearing the self-explanatory title Educational Review. It is to be edited by Nicholas Murray Butler, Professor of Philosophy at Columbia College, and President of the New York College for the Training of Teachers, assisted by E. H. Cook, Head-Master Rutgers Preparatory School, New Brunswick, N. J., William H. Maxwell, Superintendent of Schools, Brooklyn, N. Y., and Addison B. Poland, Superintendent of Schools, Jersey City, N. J. It will appear on the first day of every month, August and September excepted. The scope of the Educational Review is as broad as education itself, and subjects relating to elementary, secondary and higher education will be given equal prominence and attention. Every number will contain signed articles on topics of current interest, critical notes and discussions, editorial comments on contemporary educational thoughts and practice, reviews of new publications, including text-books, and a summary of the contents of the leading educational journals published abroad. Contributions have already been secured from some of the best known educators in this country and Europe. The contents of the first issue include articles by Daniel C. Gilman, William T. Harris, Josiah Royce, Andrew S. Draper and Charles De Garmo; and shorter discussions and comments by John Bascom, Elaine Goodale, Richard Watson Gilder, and J. J. Mapel. Contributions for publication should be addressed to the editor and all business communications to Henry Holt & Co.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE GROLIER CLUB is giving an exhibition of books on alchemy and early chemistry. The collection may be seen every afternoon from 2 to 6 until the 26th inst.

W. S. GOTTSBERGER & Co. will issue Wednesday, January 21, "A Child's Romance," by Pierre Loti, translated by Clara Bell and revised and corrected in this country.

THE remarkable favor with which the recent story of "Edward Burton," by Henry Wood, has been received has induced the publishers, Lee & Shepard, to issue a new edition in paper covers to give it broad circulation.

WARD, LOCK & Co. have just ready "Prof. Koch's Cure for Consumption clearly explained for the general reader," by Dr. H. Feller, an eminent Berlin physician. The volume contains a sketch and portrait of Prof. Koch.

SABISTON & MURRAY, 916 Sixth Avenue, N. Y., have in preparation the eighth edition, revised, of Prof. Williams' well-known work on "The Principles and Practice of Veterinary Surgery." The price of the seventh edition has been reduced from $7.50 to $5.

THE works of Mr. D. L. Moody are said to have attained a sale of over six hundred thousand copies. This comprises only the volumes prepared by Mr. Moody and issued by his authorized publisher, Fleming H. Revell, and does not include the large number of unauthorized reports of sermons, sketches, etc., that have been pirated STREET & SMITH will issue immediately in their Select Series "The Grinder Papers," by Mary Kyle Dallas, who wittily tells the ludicrous experiences of a plain country maiden of inquiring mind on a visit to New York City; "The Widowed Bride," by Lucy Randall Comfort; and "Lost, a Pearle," a love-story by Mrs. Georgie Sheldon.

A. D. F. RANDOLPH & Co. have just ready a unique volume entitled "The Great Discourse of Jesus Christ, the Son of God." It is a topical arrangement and analysis of all the words of Christ recorded in the New Testament, separated from the context. The book is handsomely printed on fine white paper, and has a rubricated title-page.

D. G. BRINTON, Philadelphia, has under way "The American Race: a linguistic classification and ethnographic description of the native tribes of North and South America"—the first attempt, he claims, ever made to classify all the Indian tribes by their languages. The work will treat also of customs, religions, physical traits, arts, antiquities and traditions.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish shortly Bishop Perry's Bohlen Lectures on "The Constitutional History of the Church," and "Primary Doctrines," a volume of charges prepared for his clergy by the late Bishop Vail. "Reason and Authority in Religion," by Prof. J. Macbride Sterrett, announced for publication in November, was unavoidably belated, but is now ready.

HOWARD LOCKWOOD & Co. will publish in the spring a "Dictionary of Printing and Bookmaking," by W. W. Pasko, librarian of the Typothetæ. It will be a royal octavo volume, in small type, and copiously illustrated. Besides the matter usually contained in such works, it will define the terms bibliography, bookbinding, engraving and bookselling, and will have a glossary of the corresponding printers' terms in German, French and Italian.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS' first announcements for the new year comprise "The Vikings in Western Christendom, A.D. 789–888," by Charles F. Keary; "Pilgrims in Palestine," with a preface by Thomas Hodgkin, and "The Battle of Manassas," a reply to General Joseph E. Johnston, by Gen. G. T. Beauregard. Of literary interest will be "English Prose, its elements, history and usage," by John Earle, and "A Literary Manual of Foreign Quotations" (Latin, Italian, French and German), by John Devoe Belton. In the Heroes of the Nations Series there will be "Pericles and the Golden Age of France," by Evelyn Abbott, and in the Knickerbocker Nuggets "Representative Irish Stories," in two volumes, with introduction and notes by W. B. Yeats, and "Letters of Philip Dormer, Fourth Earl of Chesterfield." "How We Went, and What We Saw" will be an account of a trip through Egypt, Syria and the Ægean Sea, by Charles McCormick Reeve.

WALTER SCOTT, London, has just published the Fabyan Essays on "Socialism," delivered before the Fabyan Society during 1889, by G. Bernard Shaw, Sydney Oliver, Hubert Bland, Sydney Webb, Annie Besant, Wm. Clarke and G. Wallas. A. Lovell & Co., 3 East 14th Street, N. Y., supply the American market.

GUSTAV HEDELER, the enterprising publisher of the Export Journal, of Leipzig, has just issued the second part of his collection of the copyright laws of the world, under the title of "Gesetze über das Urheberrecht im In- und Ausland." This part contains the laws on the subject of literary property of Belgium, Denmark, Finland, Greece, the Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Rumania, Russia, Sweden, Spain, Turkey and Hungary. Another part containing the international treaties and an index will complete this useful and valuable work.

"CONTRIBUTIONS to the History of My Own Life" is the final volume in the complete edition of the works of Leopold von Ranke just published in Germany. It has been edited by Prof. Adolf Dove, and contains, besides interesting descriptions of the historian's childhood and youth, a selection of letters ranging over nearly seventy years, from 1819 down to his death, and extracts from his diaries containing notes of Ranke's interviews with the most famous men of his time and his remarks upon them. An English edition of the work will probably be announced shortly.

FRANK MURRAY, Moray House, Derby, Eng., will publish at once "The Wordsworth Dictionary of Poems and Places," compiled by J. R. Tuten, who prepared "The Bibliography of Wordsworth." The work is to contain (1) an index of all the persons named or described in Wordsworth's poems; (2) an index of all the places mentioned or described; (3) a collection of the familiar quotations from Wordsworth; and (4) a chronological list of the best of Wordsworth's poems. There will also be a limited large-paper edition of the work issued uniform with Prof. Knight's library edition of Wordsworth's Works.

HUTCHINSON & Co., London, have in press "The Poets and Poetry of the Century," in ten volumes, under the editorship of Mr. Alfred H. Miles. It will consist of selections from the British poets of the century, together with signed critical articles on them. Volumes I., II., and IV. will appear at once. They will contain articles on Byron by Mr. Roden Noel; on Mr. Swinburne, by Mr. Arthur Symons; on Mr. William Morris, by Mr. Buxton Foreman; and on Sir Aubrey De Vere and Mr. Theodore Watts, by Mr. Mackenzie Bell. Among future contributors are mentioned the names of Mr. J. A. Symonds, Mr. Austin Dobson, Mr. Joseph Knight, Mr. W. E. Henley, Mr. J. A. Noble and Mr. M. Le Gallienne.

MR. STEAD a short time ago made a statement that 125,000 copies of Gen. Booth's book, "In Darkest England, and the Way Out," had been sold, and the demand was still as great as ever. The work was being translated into Japanese, French, Dutch, Swedish and German. Mr. Stead thought this was, however, a less remarkable illustration of the popularity of the book than the fact that he was threatened with legal proceedings by the directors of Mudie's Library for having stated in the Review of Reviews that they had refused to put the book into circulation. In hastening to make a correction of this statement, he says, he has learned that at Mudie's there has never been a hint or a suggestion that the book should not be put liberally into circulation, and at the time his paragraph appeared between 900 and 1000 copies had been issued by Mudie's. Mr. Stead is of opinion that the hold of the book upon the reading public must indeed be immense when to state that Mudie's have refused to put it on their shelves does such serious injury to their business that it is resented as a libel and punished by threats of legal proceedings.

4 Supplement Vols. to match for $13.50.

Three-quarters of the books now published contain illustrations.

Ten years ago not one quarter of the books were illustrated.

The cheapening of illustrating has caused this wonderful increase.

WE supply cheap illustrating in this way: We have the sole right to furnish electrotypes from the wood of the entire stock of engravings of some of the largest publishers in this country and in Europe. An electrotype of an engraving which originally cost the publisher $50 will cost you $5; the engraving can be used in all of your publications and answers your purposes just as well as though YOU paid the $50.

Let us know what you will publish.

WE HAVE THE ILLUSTRATIONS and will send you proofs.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & COMPANY

WILL PUBLISH, SATURDAY, JANUARY 24:

The Crystal Button.

Or, Adventures of Paul Prognosis in the Forty-ninth Century. By CHAUNCEY THOMAS. Edited by George Houghton. 1 vol., 16mo, $1.25.

This story is a long look forward, to the vast progress which may be made in the next three thousand years, both in material processes and achievements, and in social order. The former is the development of the present knowledge and methods in science and mechanics; the latter is due to the prevalence of the Order of the Crystal Button, pledged to truth and honesty in every act, word and thought. This vast progress is made to seem no baseless fabric of a social dream, but actually possible, and reasonably to be anticipated, in the orderly evolution of the great forces and controlling intelligence now operating in the world of science, and hardly less in the realm of religious thought.

Francis Wayland.

Vol. 4 of "American Religious Leaders." By JAMES O. MURRAY, Professor at Princeton. 16mo, gilt top, $1.25.

Professor Murray was a pupil of Dr. Wayland, and a hearty admirer of his great qualities of mind and character. In the Preface he says of Dr. Wayland: "He was distinctively a religious teacher all his life, in the class-room, on the platform, through the press, and in the pulpit. Dr. Arnold of Rugby moulded the religious thinking of his pupils, and so ultimately that of wide circles in England. The same may be said of Dr. Wayland in America." Professor Murray tells the story of this career with excellent judgment, and adds a very valuable book to an important series.

Captains of Industry: Second Series.

By JAMES PARTON, author of "Lives of Benjamin Franklin," "Thomas Jefferson," "Voltaire," etc. 16mo, $1.25.

Brief biographies of nearly fifty persons who have contributed to the world's progress. Among those included are Gov. Winslow, David Rittenhouse, Count Rumford, Nathaniel Bowditch, George B. Emerson, George Peabody, Abbott and Amos A. Lawrence, Thomas Brassey Alvah Clark, Elizabeth Fry and Henry Fawcett.

The Biglow Papers.

By JAMES RUSSELL LOWELL. First and Second Series in one volume. Popular edition. 12mo, $1.00.

A new and desirable edition of this work, which has won unbounded admiration for Mr. Lowell.

Biographical Register of the Officers and Graduates of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point,

FROM ITS ESTABLISHMENT, MARCH 16, 1802, TO THE PRESENT TIME. By Bvt. Major-General GEORGE W. CULLUM. Third edition, from entirely new plates. 3 vols., 8vo, $18.00.

THE STORY OF

THE REAR COLUMN

OF STANLEY'S

Emin Pasha Relief Expedition.

BY THE LATE

JAMES S. JAMESON.

This work of five hundred octavo pages is composed of Jameson's daily record of the scenes, incidents and associations of his journey up the Congo, portions of his letters to his wife, who has edited the work and written the preface, with letters also to his brother and others, followed by an appendix on the Natural History of Jameson's trip, a letter from Tippu Tib, and various documents of particular interest at this time, when controversy has arisen over the fate of the rear column, the murder of Major Barttelot and the unfortunate death of Jameson.

Jameson's diary bespeaks a lovable, patient, faithful and Christian character which might, under more favorable circumstances, have added lustre to his name and cast much light upon the darkness of Africa, in departments which Mr. Stanley has not seen fit to particularly consider.

The tone of Mr. Jameson's diary is too even and truthful to admit of doubt as to the sincerity of the writer, and his occasional outbursts of impatience at the lack of consideration shown by Stanley to subordinates leads to the belief that possibly the fate of the rear column may have been largely due to positive carelessness or neglect on the part of the great explorer, rather than to the shortcomings of the subordinate officers, as Stanley has claimed.

The subordinates, Barttelot, Jameson, Troup, Ward and Bonny, were under military rule, and Stanley's orders were imperative.

The rear column was left in charge of supplies with orders to follow Stanley after the arrival of six hundred carriers and an escort, which were to have been sent by Tippu Tib.

Days, weeks and months passed by; still Barttelot waited vainly for the contingent from Tippu Tib.

Messengers failed to produce results, and finally, frequent personal communication having been necessary, much less than half the promised men under insufficient command were allowed to proceed, with the disastrous results depicted in the five hundred pages of absorbingly interesting and accurate information. Mr. Jameson's version of the unfortunate affairs of the rear column is corroborated by Mr. Troup's recently published work.

A Natural History appendix, ably edited by specialists, shows that Mr. Jameson did good work, considering the difficulties under which he labored, for the scientific and historical societies of London.

One hundred illustrations from original drawings by the author and a map of the Congo, from Stanley Falls to Kassongo add graphically to the complete understanding of the movements of the expedition.

In one large octavo volume, five hundred pages, one hundred illustrations and a map of the Congo River.

The Brave, the Peerless Book.

Confessions of a Nun.

BY SISTER AGATHA.

12mo, Cloth, $1.00. - - - - Paper, 50 Cents.

FIRST EDITION, 5000; SECOND EDITION, 25,000.

The phenomenal success of Sister Agatha's book is beyond all precedent. Two thousand copies were sold in Philadelphia in five days. It has caught on! Our watchword is "Forward! until the book reaches every city, town and hamlet in this broad Union."

PRESS NOTICES.

"We have pictured for us the inner life of a convent and the confessions of not a few of the nuns. The position of the recluse is attacked mainly upon the ground of its unnaturalness. This theory, or truth, as the reader may regard it, will certainly find great favor. The book is destined to commend itself very forcibly to the understanding of all, and will have a large sale."—Philadelphia Item.

"'Confessions of a Nun' is another record of painful experiences in a nunnery."—Philadelphia Press.

"All lovers of fair play will be anxious to read this realistic work. It is sure to have an immense sale."—Philadelphia News.

"We know that Sister Agatha has written a pure and honest book; despite the threats of her enemies, she has told the truth."—Sisters M. and A.

AUCTION SALES.

[We shall be pleased to insert under this heading, without charge, advance notices of auction sales to be held anywhere in the United States. Word must reach us before Wednesday evening, to be in time for issue of same week.]

JANUARY 26—Library of Adolph Strauch, late Superintendent of Spring Grove Cemetery.—Ezekiel & Bernheim.

JANUARY 26, 27, 3 P.M.—Miscellaneous. (811 lots.)—Bangs.

JANUARY 28–30, 3 P.M.—Standard English books chiefly on America, Napoleon and French Revolution, and Judaism. (1044 lots.)—Bangs.

FEBRUARY 2.—Choice library of standard English books.—Ezekiel & Bernheim.

FEBRUARY 11, 12, 3 AND 8 P.M.—The Baker Collection of Washington's books. This is one of the most important sales of works of purely American historical interest offered in twenty years—in fact, since the bulk of this collection was bought by John R. Baker, Sr., of Philadelphia, at the sale of Washington's library in 1876. It includes upwards of one hundred volumes from the library of Washington, nearly all of them containing his autograph, book plate or annotation; a large number of letters and documents written by Washington, and many other objects of value to the booklover and antiquarian. The catalogue, prepared by Mr. Stan. V. Henkels, will be ready shortly. It will in itself form a rare bibliographical treasure, containing facsimiles, illustrations and plates. The price has been fixed at $1 per copy.—Thos. Birch's Sons, 1110 Chestnut St., Phila.

MARCH.—The library of Brayton Ives.—The American Art Association, N. Y.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

THE BOOKS OF 1890.

EVERY other year of the past six years in the history of the American publishing trade has been a year of unusual productiveness. The year 1890 was one of these alternate years. Its figures do not rise as high as those of 1886 and 1888—two of the most active years in our experience—but it ranks only a little below them. Our "Weekly Record" for 1890 shows a record of 4559 books, being 545 more than the previous year, and within 117 of 1886, the largest year on record. Of these 4559 books, only 3080 were new books, the others being duplicate works, new editions and importations. Out of these 3080 new books, 835 were new novels from American or English writers, or translations by Americans of French, German or Russian novels. The number is about equally divided between our own novelists and Europeans.

The immense number of novels written and published and their generally poor quality is the most notable fact of 1890, as it has been of several years past. The voracious demand, however, for quantity shows its deteriorating effects upon the literature of the world. It is not only fiction that has failed to bring forth works of permanent value, but each and every department of book production. It is more marked in fiction, for it contains many names famous on both continents, whose efforts have degenerated into mere "pot-boilers," sold through the author's earlier reputation. Among American novels Mrs. Deland's "Sidney" is the only book that made a great literary success. In English fiction Rudyard Kipling's short stories made a strong impression. The French novels that were translated were many and of a varied character. While many of the more chaste efforts of recent French writers were published, others were so immoral as to be unworthy of the respectable publishers' imprints which endorsed them. German novels were also abundant in translations, and examples were offered of the Spanish, Italian, Polish and Russian novel. The radical productions of Tolstoi's later years excited warm discussions, his "Kreutzer Sonata" receiving quite an undeserved amount of moral condemnation, and being the cause of one of the most exciting trade episodes of the year.

In religion and theology, usually so rich in fresh thought, "God in His World" and "Lux Mundi" alone stand out. Jefferson's "Autobiography" and Stanley's "In Darkest Africa" are no doubt "books for all time." Poetry and the drama scarcely contain a single name that will be remembered a few years hence. Ibsen has failed in successive translations to obtain the hold upon American readers that he has achieved in his own country.

Few art-books of 1890 are deserving of serious attention. It looks as if the illustrated book for the holiday season was a thing of the past, few ambitious efforts in that line having been made by any of our publishers. Happily for all real lovers of good books, more and more care is being given to typographical appearance. Good library editions of standards were numerous, and sold readily.

In spite of the acknowledged inferiority of the year's literature, the year was financially an unusually prosperous one. The passage of the International Copyright bill in the House of Representatives should not go unrecorded in a review of 1890. The belief that the Senate will endorse it in the near future gives a more hopeful outlook for the literature of 1891.

In the table which follows we have endeavored to give the figures of book production in the United States in 1890 according to classes, and as to the number manufactured here and imported in sheets or plates or bound, also the new books and the new editions. The figures can only be approximate, as in many cases time would not permit as thorough an investigation as necessary to get at the full truth. The number of books published in 1889 are given also for comparison: ufactured in this country; the other 1026 are importations chiefly from England, a surprisingly small number having been imported in plates or sheets. Out of the 3533 made here, nearly 2800 are the works of American authors, or are translations by American writers, or adaptations, as in the case of school-books and medical works, to the needs of our own students. 733 only are reprints, 500 of these being paper-bound novels. Text-books for the higher colleges were largely imported this year, as were also "juvenile" works.

Of the 4559 books recorded, 2519 were received at his office; the other 2040 titles were taken from data received, or were industriously looked up. The largest number of titles recorded in any one month was in December, which shows a total of 932 books. There is an increasing tendency to throw the balance of publications for the year into the three or four concluding months, making it more and more difficult for reviewers to do anything like justice to the books, or for booksellers to properly handle them. It is to be regretted, in the best interests of the publishers, that there is not a more even distribution of the year's business.

FICTION.

Margaret Deland's "Sidney" is the most notable work in American FICTION published during 1890. Its subject was new in fiction, its treatment fresh and unconventional, its style unusually finished and attractive and its character painting strong and artistic. Measured with "John Ward, Preacher," it rather shows a gain in conception and construction, and confirms the reading world's first flattering estimate of Mrs. Deland's exceptional gifts. The novel which created the most talk and excited the greatest curiosity regarding its authorship was "The Anglomaniacs," now acknowledged to be the work of Mrs. C. Burton Harrison. With much cleverness and a keen and polished wit it delineates some typical New Yorkers of the "smart" set with an adoration for all things English. Mrs. Burton Harrison recently published under her own name another novel, "Flower de Hundred," which takes its odd title from a Southern plantation, whose every-day life is admirably described. Although a careful piece of writing, it lacks the brilliancy of "The Anglomaniacs." Another of the surprises of the year came also from a New York society woman, Mrs. Van Rensselaer Cruger. Her first novel, "A Diplomat's Diary," modestly given to the world under the pseudonym of "Julien Gordon," attracted considerable attention. While not a great novel, it is full of promise. It has the charm of a refined woman's personality, and shows a knowledge of European court life only gained through experience. Mrs. Cruger's second book, "A Successful Man," deals with American political life, and offers a strong character study of a familiar type of American politician. "Miss Brooks," by Eliza Orne White, a comparatively new writer, was also received with special favor. While simply a character study of a Boston girl who believed life not worth living outside of Boston, it is presented with so much wit and cleverness, and evinces so much originality that it may be named among the best work of the year coming from new writers.

Our old novelists did little of importance during the year. Henry James wrote but one novel, "The Tragic Muse." This was issued in the early spring in two bulky volumes. It is a most elaborate story of an English family in Paris, and involves many incidents and theories relative to art and life behind the curtain. Mr. James has been accused in this novel, and perhaps not unfairly, of unusual tediousness in the unfolding of his plot; his dialogue, however, has all the old-time sparkle. "A Cigarette-Maker's Romance," by F. Marion Crawford, is only a novelette—charming as all things are from his pen—but not to be ranked with the books that made his name famous. Munich is the scene of the story, the incidents of the romance all taking place within the space of three days. William D. Howells experimented in new lines both with "The Shadow of a Dream" and "A Boy's Town." The former is a careful study of a morbid conscience, and somewhat sad and depressing. The latter, though written primarily for young people, is a masterpiece in its line, and is so largely the story of Howells' own youth that it possesses strong attractions for the mature reader. Bret Harte returned to the scenes of his earlier efforts in the two novels we have from his pen, "A Waif of the Plains" and "A Ward of the Golden Gate." Both are unconventional stories, presenting unconventional types of character. Frank R. Stockton produced "The Merry Chanter," "Ardis Claverden" and "The Great War Syndicate." "The Merry Chanter" is a companion piece to "The Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine," and is audaciously funny, as is also "The Great War Syndicate," which conducts by contract a war between the United States and England. In "Ardis Claverden" Mr. Stockton is serious, having written an American novel of to-day, in which the scene shifts from New York to a colony of well-to-do English people in Virginia. "Come Forth" and "The Master of the Magicians," written in collaboration by Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Ward and her husband Herbert D. Ward, are Biblical novels which have evoked the most opposite criticism. The first deals with the time of Christ, and his miracle of raising Lazarus from the dead. The second goes back some 600 years before Christ, the prophet Daniel being the central figure, the scene being Babylon. "Pactolus Prime," by Albion W. Tourgée, is a political treatise in disguise. A framework of a story serves to set forth with much force and pathos the real condition of the Negro race in America. Ellen Olney Kirk wrote "Walford," a tale of a New England manufacturing town. Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney's "Ascutney Street" is one of those bright, homely stories, her many admirers love so well. "Samantha Among the Brethren" is a half humorous, half serious protest by "Josiah Allen's Wife" against the decision of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church respecting the admission of women as delegates to that body. It is in the form of fiction, though forcible enough in argument and extremely witty. "With the Best Intentions" is the first novel from Marion Harland after some years of silence. Fort Mackinac, Michigan, is admirably described, and a pointed lesson drawn from the harm often occasioned by foolish gossip and unreasonable jealousy. "A Lost Jewel" recalls a brilliant New England writer, Harriet Prescott Spofford. The author of "Helen's Babies," John Habberton, is not seen at his best in "Couldn't Say No." "The Demagogue" is a posthumous novel by David Ross Locke ("Petroleum Nasby").

The younger school of novelists has no more picturesque representative than Lafcadio Hearn. His latest novel, "Youma," revels in thrilling incidents and vivid descriptions. The scene is laid in one of the West Indian islands in the time of the negro insurrection, just after the proclamation of the French Republic. The old Knickerbocker life in New York, when the present great metropolis was a little Dutch town, is realistically described in "The Begum's Daughter," by Edwin Lassetter Bynner. Harold Frederic, who made his mark within a few years with "Seth's Brother's Wife," produced "The Lawton Girl" and "In the Valley." The one deals with the social problem, the other is historical, being laid in the beautiful Mohawk Valley of Central New York, during the French and Indian and Revolutionary wars. Edgar Fawcett, a prolific writer of the younger school of fiction, is also the apostle of realism. Taking Zola for his model he fashioned four stories of heredity and vice as developed in New York City, under the following titles: "Fabian Dimitry," "How a Husband Forgave," "The Evil that Men Do" and "A Daughter of Silence." A young lady, Anne Reeve Aldrich, who is known as the author of a volume of passionate poems called "The Rose of Flame," gave the critics food for thought in "The Feet of Love." While the story trenches somewhat on the proprieties, it is strong and dramatic. "Los Cerritos," by Gertrude Franklin Atherton, is a delightfully poetic story of Southern California, with a charming child of nature as a heroine. "Dr. Le Baron and His Daughters" is the third novel in Mrs. Jane G. Austin's admirable historical series relating to the old Plymouth Colony. "Expiation," by "Octave Thanet" (Miss Alice French), depicts life in Arkansas in the last year of the late war, when the country was infested with murderers and thieving bands of "graybacks." "The Forsaken Inn" is thrilling and mysterious, like former novels by Anna Katharine Green. "The Household of McNeil," by Amelia E. Barr, is rich in pages descriptive of the scenery of the Scotch Highlands. "Friend Olivia," by the same writer, carries the reader back to the days of Cromwell, and gives many vivid scenes from Quaker and Puritan home life. Florence in the 15th century is vividly presented in "Fra Lippo Lippi." Margaret Vere Farrington weaves a charming love-tale around her monkish hero. A story of strong promise is to be found in "The Dominant Seventh." The author's name has heretofore been unknown to fame, but Miss Kate Elizabeth Clark will no doubt be heard from again. Music is a prominent element in the story. "A Son of Issachar," by Elbridge S. Brooks, is a romance of the days of the Messias, rich in picturesque incicents and elaborate descriptions of Eastern customs. "Leah of Jerusalem," by E. Payson Berry, is also founded on the Bible story, making St. Paul the central figure in a vivid love-story. "Expatriation," by the author of "Aristocracy," is another satire upon American "Anglomaniacs." Rider Haggard seems to have served as a model to Thomas A. Janvier in "The Aztec Treasure-House." The romance embraces innumerable strange and wonderful sights and adventures in the mountains of Mexico. "The Broughton House," by Perry Bliss, has a New England setting. "Looking Further Backward," by Arthur Dudley Vinton, is a clever critique in the form of a story of Edward Bellamy's "Looking Backward." "Looking Further Forward" is also an answer to Bellamy. "Cæsar's Column," another of the many books suggested by "Looking Backward," is a prophetic tale of the 20th century. But in place of Bellamy's picture of peace and contentment we have a future full of terror and bloodshed, the result of the pride and selfishness of civilization. At first this was published under the pen-name of "Edmund Boisgilbert, M.D.," but the work is now claimed by Ignatius Donnelly, the author of "Ragnarok," "Atlantis," etc. It is forcibly written, the interest being well sustained throughout. The South before and during the late war inspired many American novelists. Virginia before the war is the date of Margaret J. Preston's novel "Aunt Dorothy;" Georgia before the war the scene of "Widow Guthrie," by Richard Malcolm

Johnston; "Jack Horner" opens in 1862 in Richmond. The author is Mary Spear Tiernan. James R. Gilmore's "A Mountain-White Heroine," finds its chief character among the loyal mountaineers of western North Carolina. "Not of Her Father's Race," apparently a first novel by William T. Meredith, has a heroine born of a white father and a mulatto mother. The sceneof her pathetic story is Virginia. The events of "Throckmorton," by Molly Elliot Seawell, also occur in Virginia immediately after the Civil War.

Other American stories with subjects purely American are "A Modern Marriage," by the Marquise Clara Lanza, "Vivier of Vivier, Longman & Co., Bankers," by W. C. Hudson, and "Jack Gordon, Knight-Errant, Gotham 1883," by the same writer. All three deal with the social immorality of New York City. A love-tale of Boston is embraced in Clara Louise Burnham's "Mistress of Beech Knoll." "Two Modern Women," by Kate Gannett Wells, contrasts two types of the women of to-day, and discusses many social questions now disturbing society. Carlisle Barracks, the Indian school in Pennsylvania, is the central theme of "A Chronicle of Conquest," by Frances C. Sparhawk. "The Bridge of the Gods," by F. H. Balch, takes its name from an old Indian legend of the Oregon country. "Mamelons and Ungava" comprises two Indian legends of the Saguenay, done into English by W. H. H. Murray. A well-told, dramatic romance of Kentucky is offered under the title of "In God's Country," by D. Higbee. "Sunset Pass" is a thrilling Indian story of army life on the plains told in Captain Charles King's inimitable style. Prof. Adolf F. Bandelier accurately describes Indian life in the cave-dwelling period, before the white man had discovered the new world, in his love-story of "The Delight Makers." "Edward Burton" is a theological novel, with its scene laid at Bar Harbor. The author, William Wood, is the author of the "Natural Law in the Business World." Many discussions are introduced for different systems of theology.

The great number of new American novels, make it impossible to give the leading characteristics of all or in fact to enumerate them all, but the following cannot be quite passed over: "Leon Pontifex," by Sallie Pratt McLean Greene; "Against Heavy Odds," by H. H. Boyesen; "Albrecht," by Arlo Bates; "A Web of Gold," by Katherine Pearson Woods; "A Foreign Match," by Mary Healy; "Two Women or One?" by "Sidney Luska" (Henry Harland); "Dorothy's Experience," by Adeline Trafton; "Two Loyal Lovers," by Elizabeth Winthrop Johnson; "Written in Red," by Charles Howard Montague and C. W. Dyar; "The Countess Muta," by Charles Howard Montague; "Geoffrey Hampstead," by T. Stinson Jarvis; "Brushes and Chisels," by Teodoro Serrao; "Stolen America," by Isobel Henderson Floyd; "The Craze of Christian Engelhart," by Henry Faulkner Darnell; "Miss Mordeck's Father," by Fani Pusey Gooch; "The Beverleys," a story of Calcutta, by Mrs. Mary Abbott; "Martha Corey," a tale of Salem witchcraft, by Constance G. Du Bois; "Honda the Samurai," a graphic story of modern Japan, by Dr. W. Eliot Griffis, the author of "The Mikado's Empire," and "Nora's Return," a sequel to the "Doll's House" of Henrik Ibsen, by Mrs. Ednah D. Cheney.

A few important examples only appeared of the American short story. The best collections are from women's pens. A fine poetic feeling is characteristic of Annie Trumbull Slosson's "Seven Dreamers." She will be remembered as the author of "Fishin' Jimmy," and other sympathetic stories. "Strangers and Wayfarers" adds another volume of stories to Sarah Orne Jewett's marvellously faithful depiction of New England scenes and characters." Little Venice, and other stories," brings together some of Grace Denio Litchfield's best efforts from the magazines. "A Little Book of Profitable Tales" is both quaint and pathetic. It represents Mr. Eugene Field's choicest contributions to the Chicago press. "Day and Night Stories," by T. R. Sullivan, was warmly received. "The Stories of the Three Burglars," by Frank R. Stockton; "Vignettes, Real and Ideal," edited by F. E. McKay. H. C. Bunner's "Short Sixes," Sidney Luska's "Two Voices," Charles King's "Starlight Ranch," and "The Colonel's Christmas Dinner," a collection of army stories, edited by Charles King, and Julian Hawthorne's "Pauline" complete the list of short stories worth mentioning by celebrated writers. A new issue was made of a number of Miss Jewett's characteristic stories under the title of "Tales of New England," and Thomas Nelson Page's volume "In Ole Virginia" was honored with the new dress of the Cameo Edition.

The only new star of any magnitude that rose above the horizon of English FICTION was Rudyard Kipling. He can scarcely be called a novelist, however, the one or two sustained efforts he has produced proving beyond doubt that his whole strength lies in his short stories. As a writer of short stories with a new field all his own, he has no rival. His descriptive powers are remarkable, his character studies full of originality and his humor unique. "The Light that Failed," issued at the end of the year, and "The Story of the Gadsbys" are so far the only volumes of his that could be called novels that American readers have seen. In "The Light that Failed" he opens new ground, his scenes being the Soudan campaign and artist life in London. His short stories comprised under "Plain Tales from the Hills,"

"Soldier's Three," "The Phantom 'rickshaw," and "The Courting of Dinah Shadd" all deal with Anglo-Indian life and characters. They are valuable contributions to the literature of fiction. The older English novelists are profusely represented in our reprints. There seems to be no falling off in point of numbers in English novels—for the quality so much cannot be said. "Prince Fortunatus" and "Stand Fast, Craig-Royston," are evidences of William Black's industry during 1890. The artistic career of a handsome young baritone and his success in London society is the theme of the first novel; the second is a Scotch story and is rich in Black's felicitous descriptions of scenery. W. E. Norris is delightfully readable in "Marcia," and "The Baffled Conspirators." Mrs. Alexander gives in "A Woman's Heart" some of her charming pictures of English home-life, and is somewhat sensational in "Blind Fate," the plot of which includes a murder and an innocent man suspected of the crime. The Scotch Highlands at the opening of the present century, is the theme of Mrs. Oliphant's only novel, "Kirsteen." Walter Besant's name appears upon two title-pages "The Demoniac," and "Armorel of Lyonesse." The latter is a romance of the Scilly Isles, with an idyllic love-tale and a perfect wealth of adventure. "Beatrice," by H. Rider Haggard, has its scene in London, and tells of a woman's misplaced affections. A second novel, written by this author in literary partnership with Andrew Lang, bears the title "The World's Desire." The "world's desire" is the lost Helen of Troy—Ulysses is shown wandering through the world in search of her.

Adeline Sergeant, a strong writer, with a keen and sympathetic insight of poor human nature, produced two novels, "The Great Mill Street Mystery" and "A True Friend." "A Fluttered Dovecote" is an amusing account of the flirtations of a school-girl. It is from the pen of George Manville Fenn, as is also "Eli's Children," the story of an unhappy family of Lincolnshire, England. The gifted author of "Mrs. Lorimer," Mrs. Kingsley Harrison, who writes under the pseudonym of "Lucas Malet," added new laurels to her fame with "The Wages of Sin." Without being didactic, she points a strong moral. Middle-class life in an English country town is realistically described by Jessie Fothergill in "A March in the Ranks." "Ouida" is represented by "Syrlin" and a volume of short stories called "Ruffino." The "Duchess's" admirers will find good reading in "Her Last Throw" and "April's Lady." Rhoda Broughton was heard from again in a novel both gay and pathetic, named "Alas!" John Strange Winter's new military stories were "The Other Man's Wife," "Dinna Forget" and "He Went for a Soldier." "A Reverend Gentleman" by J. Maclaren Cobban, is a clever portraiture of the degenerate vicar of a poor Welsh parish. "The Splendid Spur," purports to be the memoirs of a servant of King Charles I. "The Bishops' Bible" is a quiet country drama written by David Christie Murray and Henry Herman. Charming love-tales with the scene laid in England are contained in the following novels: "For One and the World" and "A Romance of the Wire," by Mrs. M. Betham Edwards; "The Kilburns" and "The Love of a Lady," by Annie Thomas; "Lover or Friend?" and "Heriot's Choice," by Rosa Nouchette Carey; "Pearl Powder," by Annie Edwardes; "Disenchantment," by F. Mabel Robinson; "Whose Was the Hand?" and "Married in Haste," by Miss M. E. Braddon; "A Homberg Beauty," by Mrs. E. Kennard; "The Havoc of a Smile," by L. B. Walford, and "Part of the Property," by Beatrice Whitby.

One of W. Clark Russell's graphic sea-stories is embraced in "My Shipmate Louise." "The Bondman," by Hall Caine, did not excite as great interest as did "The Deemster," although fresh and original. Its scene was Iceland and the Isle of Man at the beginning of the century. "The Sin of Joost Avelingh" introduced a new writer and one of special gifts. Life in Holland is so realistically pictured by the author that the book was at first thought to be a translation, but it is known now that it was written in English, and that the author is an Englishman in spite of his name—Maarten Maartens. "Frozen Hearts" opens in Paris in the year 1832. It is a story of love and intrigue by G. Webb Appleton. Edwin Lester Arnold is the author of "The Wonderful Adventures of Phra the Phœnician," the history of the transmigration of a soul. Emily Lawless on a slight thread of a story gives, under the title "With Essex in Ireland," an accurate historical account of the unfortunate campaign of Lord Essex in Ireland. William O'Brien's "When We Were Boys" gained many readers through its characteristic pictures of Irish life. A reply to "Robert Elsmere" was sent out under the title "Paul Nugent—Materialist." Helen F. Hetherington and the Rev. H. Darwin Burton were the authors. "The Hammer," by the Rev. Alfred J. Church and Richmond Seeley, is a scholarly study of Jewish life in the second century B.C. "News from Nowhere," by William Morris, described a communistic state of society in the year 1971, where every one has all he wants without labor, and where there is no vice. Mr. Morris calls it a Utopian romance.

The reprints of English novels are so numerous that it is impossible for us to name them all. We have endeavored to quote such as have any distinguishing characteristics, but we are obliged to leave unnamed a long list of very readable books by such writers as F. W. Robinson, F. C.

Philips, Frank Barrett, "Theo. Gift," Morley Roberts, Jean Ingelow, B. F. Farjeon, James Payn, William Westall, Katharine S. Macquoid and Mrs. Otto Booth, as much from lack of space as from lack of anything more to say about them than that they are readable.

The translations from the French during the past year were notably large. They included some of the finest specimens of modern French fiction and some of the worst examples of the erotic novel. "Pastels in Prose," "Modern Ghosts" and "Ten Tales from the French" of François Coppée are not only exceptional collections of short stories possessed of a special literary charm, but are exceptional specimens of bookmaking. The second volume is not taken exclusively from the French, having selections also from the ghost literature of Norway, Spain, Austria and Italy. Coppée's Toute une jeunesse, thought to be largely autobiographical, was translated, under the titles of "Disillusion" and "Days of my Youth," by two different translators. Guy de Maupassant's Pierre et Jean was rendered into English by Hugh Craig under it original title of "Pierre and Jean," and by Clara Bell as "The Two Brothers." It is a strongly told story with a decidedly French motive. "Bel-Ami" and "A Coquette's Love" (Notre Cœur), by the same author, though of sufficient literary merit to deserve mention, cater only to the most depraved taste. "Port Tarascon," comprising the last adventures of the illustrious Tartarin, Alphonse Daudet's most popular hero, was beautifully translated by Henry James, and given to the reading world in an exquisite setting of fine paper and print and characteristic pictures. Its quaint humor and extravagant adventures make it delightful reading. Daudet's "Kings in Exile" was reissued in a new and attractive dress. Katherine Prescott Wormeley's fine translations of Balzac's novels included "Sons of the Soil" and "Fame and Sorrow, and other stories." Several of George Sand's pretty poetical tales of rural French life were brought out in new translations; "The Bagpipers" had full justice rendered to its charming style by Miss Wormeley, the translator of Balzac; "Nanon" was translated by Elizabeth Wormeley Latimer, and "The Gallant Lords of Bois Doré" (2 v.) by Steven Clovis. The latter is a carefully studied picture of the French nobility of the 17th century, living upon their estates. Twelve new volumes were added to the handsome Library Edition of Dumas' complete works. They comprise the Marie Antoinette romances. Victor Hugo's "Hans of Iceland" appeared luxuriously printed in a new translation.

Paul Hervieu's "Flirt" is a typical novel of Parisian life. Mr. Hugh Craig made an excellent translation of it. "An Artist's Honor" is interesting as bearing the name of the late Octave Feuillet. "Juancho" bears that of Théophile Gautier. It is a story of Madrid, rich in color and picturesque incident. Albert Delpit's Comme dans la vie was published both as "As 'tis in Life" and as "The Struggle for Existence." "Sister Philomène," written some years ago by E. and J. de Goncourt, found ready appreciation in its English dress. Pierre Loti wrote of the South Sea Islands in "Rarahu," and of Africa in "The Romance of a Spahi." They are both sensuous love-tales. George Ohnet's novels were "A Last Love" and "The Soul of Pierre" (L'ame de Pierre). The last named had several translations made of it, under several different titles. "Catherine's Coquetries," by Camille Debans, and "Aline," by Henry Gréville, are harmless love-stories. "The Crime of Sylvestre Bonnard (Member of the Institute)," by Anatole France, pictures an Academician's life with a quaint philosophy. Lafcadio Hearn turned it into charming English. "The Canadians of Old" describes Quebec in the time of the French and Indian wars. Philippe Aubert de Gaspé is the author. "The Shadow of Roger Laroque," by Jules Mary, is based upon a thrilling episode of a murder. Jules Verne was intensely amusing in "Cæsar Cascabel." The planet Mars is made the scene of a wildly imaginative romance by Camille Flammarion in "Uranie." "The Rag-Picker of Paris," by Felix Pyat, and "My Uncle Benjamin," by Claude Tillier, are both pessimistic in tone and lacking in refinement. Emile Zola's La Bête humaine, translated both as "The Human Animal" and "Human Brutes," is a morbid study of murder and illicit love, in line with his former productions.

In German translations among the more notable issues were several novels of Julius Wolff, for the first time given in English. They have long been well known in Germany, having gone through many editions there. They are all careful studies of special epochs and are largely historical. "The Saltmaster of Lüneburg" has its scene in the 15th century during the reign of Frederick the Third; "Fifty Years, Three Months, Two Days," charmingly illustrates the odd working of an old German law of the middle ages; "The Robber Count" deals with an historical espisode of the beautiful Hartz Mountains. Conrad Ferdinand Meyer, another German novelist, was introduced to English readers in "The Tempting of Pescara." Italy in the 16th century with its intrigues and crimes is the subject. Joseph Victor von Scheffel's "Ekkehard" is a historical novel of the 10th century. "Luther in Rome" graphically describes Rome during the Reformation. The author, Levin Schucking, has produced a realistic picture of the times. Life in Russia at the beginning of the century is epitomized in Carl Detleff's "Russian Country House." Ebers is represented by "Joshua," a Biblical picture, and a volume of tales, "The Elixir." "The Chief Justice," by Karl Emil Franzos, is one of the most powerfully written novels of the year. Coming down to more modern times and less sombre topics we have Paul Heyse's "Children of the World," Ossip Schubin's "Asbeln" and "O Thou, My Austria," and W. Heimburg's (Bertha Behrens) "The Pastor's Daughter" and "Lucie's Mistake." "Cloister Wendhusen" and "A Sister's Love," also by this writer, found translators in previous years, the first under the title of "Magdalen's Fortunes," and the second as "Her Only Brother." "Djambek the Georgian" is an accurate tale of modern Turkey from the German of A. G. von Suttner.

In the translations from Russian literature Tolstoï is the conspicuous figure. In all his later novels the story is generally subordinate to the expression of his radical views on life, love and marriage. "The Kreutzer Sonata," "The Dominion of Darkness," "Work While Ye Have the Light," "The Romance of Marriage" and his "Gospel Stories" comprise all that we had from him during the past year. "The Blind Musician," also from the Russian, is a wonderful psychological study of the blind by Vladimir Korolenko. From the Spanish came "Sister Saint Sulpice" and "Maria." To the versatile author of "The Marquis of Peñalta" and "Maximina," Don Armando Palacio Valdés, belongs the honor of having written the first novel, a charming story of Seville. Jorge Isaacs is the author of the second, a romance that has been a household story in South America during the past twenty years. "The House by the Medlar Tree" is the work of a noted Italian novelist, Giovanni Verga. Mary A. Craig's translation does full justice to this realistic and sombre picture of humble Italian life. Mr. W. D. Howells gracefully introduces the author. "With Fire and Sword" is an historical novel from the Polish. Its author, Henryk Sienkiewicz, has hitherto been entirely unknown to us through translations. The work is a verbose description of the Cossack war under King John Kazimir. Another example of Polish fiction was offered in "The Jew," by Joseph Ignatius Kraszewski, a novel having for a background the last Polish insurrection during the days of Napoleon III. Kraszewski may be said to be the father of the modern Russian school of fiction, no one having before his time produced romances in either Russia or Poland.

THEOLOGY AND RELIGION.

In the department of THEOLOGY and RELIGION, in which we include philosophical, ethical and speculative works, church histories and manuals, commentaries and exegetical studies, no great book startled the world. American works in this classification were numerous. A few have excited considerable comment, and received extremely favorable criticism. Mr. Henry B. Alden's "God in His World," published anonymously—a remarkable book coming from a layman—at once achieved success among thoughtful readers. An exceptionally attractive style and a wondrous poetical conception of the divine life give it a high literary rank. The recent trial of the Rev. Howard MacQueary, of Canton, Ohio, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, for heresy, has given an ephemeral prominence to a work published by him during the year, "The Evolution of Man and Christianity." The writer rejects many of the miraculous features of Christianity. "The World Moves" shows the present liberal leanings of many orthodox denominations. It comes from a layman, who withholds his name. It is one of the books that has been talked about.

The revision of the Westminster standards was a topic of general discussion among the Presbyterian clergy during 1890. Dr. Philip Schaff, in "Creed Revision in the Presbyterian Churches," favored revision. A bundle of papers by seven eminent divines, edited by Charles A. Briggs under the title "How Shall We Revise the Westminster Confession of Faith?" discusses the essential features of the revision movement. Dr. W. G. T. Shedd offers his objections in a pamphlet, "The Proposed Revision of the Westminster Standards." Several important church histories were features of the year. The rector of St. Stephen's Protestant Episcopal Church of Philadelphia, the Rev. S. D. McConnell, produced a concise and comprehensive "History of the American Episcopal Church from the Planting of the Colonies to the End of the Civil War." "The Presbytery of the Log College," by the Rev. T. Murphy, although somewhat biographical, covers an important period in the early history of the Presbyterian Church in America. The struggle, progress and influence of "The Lutherans in America" is graphically handled by the Rev. Edmund Jacob Wolf. "Unitarianism, Its Origin and History," was the subject of sixteen lectures delivered in Channing Hall, Boston, during the winter of 1888–'89. In line with this work is O. B. Frothingham's "Boston Unitarianism, 1820–1850." Primarily it was intended as a history of the life and work of Nathaniel Langdon Frothingham, but the events of his life were so few that the work became a history of the Church with which he was so long identified. Henry C. Lea contributed in book form "Chapters from the Religious History of Spain." Charles Warren Currier wrote the history of the Discalced Carmelites in the United States, under the name of "Carmel in America." A little work of local interest only may be mentioned here—T. R. Jones' "History of the Young People's Baptist Union of Brooklyn."

Volumes of sermons were issued by the Rev. Robert S. MacArthur of the Old Calvary Baptist Church of New York City, by Dr. W. R. Huntington, Rev. Washington Gladden, Phillips Brooks, Rev. John McNeill, Dr. H. B. Whipple, the Bishop of Minnesota, Dr. T. De Witt Talmage, Rev. T. Dixon, Jr., by Bishop W. X. Mirde and others of the Methodist Church of Kansas, and by B. B. Tyler of the Church of the Disciples of Christ; a volume of sermons, "God in Nature and Life," was issued from the writings of the late Walter R. Brooks, pastor at one time of the Baptist Church in Hamilton, N. Y.; Minot J. Savage, the popular Boston Unitarian preacher, gathered his sayings into three volumes — "The Signs of the Times," "Life" and "Helps for Daily Living." A collection of helpful reading from the writings and speeches of Dr. Deems, of the Church of the Strangers, is comprised in "Chips and Chunks for Every Fireside." The blessed state of all who die in childhood is the theme of two sermons, "God and Little Children," by the Rev. Henry J. Van Dyke. He also delivered the Princeton Theological Seminary lectures for 1890, on the L. B. Stone foundation. They are published under the title "The Church, Her Ministry and Sacraments." The Bedell lectures for 1889 were delivered by the Rev. D. H. Greer. The subject was "The Historical Christ the Moral Power of History." Sermons by Rev. Andrew W. Archibald are contained in "The Bible Verified." The Baldwin lectures, 1890, are published as "The World and the Man." Bishop Hugh Miller Thompson is in line here with his previous works, "The World and the Logos" and "The World and the Kingdom." An abstract subject, "Belief in God," was chosen for the Winkley lectures of the Andover Theological Seminary for the past year. It was treated in six lectures by Prof. Jacob Gould Schurman, Sage Professor of Philosophy in Cornell University. "The Miracles of our Saviour Expounded and Illustrated," by Dr. William M. Taylor, of the Broadway Tabernacle, and Broadus' "Jesus of Nazareth" are broad expositions of the teachings of Christ's life.

Dr. Marvin R. Vincent's valuable exegetical "Word Studies in the New Testament" received an additional volume (v. 3), tracing the meaning of all the significant Greek words in the Epistles of Paul. "The World Lighted," by C. S. Smith, is a study of the Apocalypse. "Old Testament Studies," by the Rev. R. F. Foster, is an outline of Old Testament theology. Prominent Baptist divines are the writers of the seven separate volumes of the "American Commentary on the New Testament" edited by Alvah Hovey. Dr. Charles S. Robinson completed with a second series his "Studies in Luke's Gospel." Dr. F. G. Hubbard's "Eschatology" treats some Biblical doctrines from the standpoint of the Methodist Episcopal Church. "Prayer as a Theory and Fact," by the Rev. W. Faunce, received the Dartmouth prize for 1889. Behrends' "Philosophy of Preaching" is eminently practical, as are Stearns' "Evidences of Christian Experience," Gardiner's "Aids to Scripture Study," Dr. Austin Phelps' "My Note-Book," and Dr. Cuyler's "How to Be a Pastor." "Ten Lessons in Sunday-School Service," by R. S. Holmes, is an excellent little manual for the teacher. So is the Rev. L. F. Young's "Studies in Bible and Church History and Doctrines," which defines the beliefs of the Methodist Church, and which was prepared for the use of Epworth Leagues. "Epworth League Workers," by Jacob Embury Price, is full of practical suggestions as to the management of young people's societies in the Methodist Church. "Christian Missions in the Nineteenth Century," written by Dr. Todd, of the Methodist Church, also belongs to this group. It calls attention to some neglected phases of the subject. Rev. S. Buel's "Treatise on Dogmatic Theology" is a comprehensive treatment of the subject in two large volumes. A valuable report of the progress of a year in religious thought is represented by v. 7 of "Current Discussions in Theology."

Lorenzo Burge's "Origin and Formation of the Hebrew Scriptures" is not in line with accepted history of the Old Testament books. Nor is Prof. C. H. Toy, of Harvard University, quite orthodox in "Judaism and Christianity." "The Way Out of Agnosticism" is designed to help theists in defeating the agnostics. Francis Ellingwood Abbot is the author.

"The Colored Man in the Methodist Episcopal Church" touches upon the question of equality in the church between the white and colored race. Dr. Hagood states the question fairly and broadly. "Life Inside the Church of Rome" is claimed to be an exposé of the workings of the Roman Catholic Church by "The Nun of Kenmare." "Who was Bruno?" gives the Catholic side of the Giordano Bruno question. "Roman Catholicism in America," by J. E. C. Bodley, offers an interesting sketch of the rise and development of the Catholic religion in the United States. Other works not to be omitted in the history of the year are Howard Crosby's "Seven Churches of Asia," showing that worldliness is the all-destroying sin of the Church; Dr. Campbell's "Footprints of Christ;" M. J. Barnett's "Five Redeemers;" Henry Drummond's "The Perfected Life;" Anspach's "Divine Rod and Staff," consolatory thoughts for the dying and bereaved; Kerr's "The Voice of God in History," and "From Joppa to Mount Hermon," a series of narrative discourses on the Holy Land, by the Rev. Robert A. Edwards, of the Church of St. Matthias, Phila. "Beneath Two Flags," by Maud B. Booth, is partly an explanation and partly a vindication of the "Salvation Army." The writer is the wife of "General" Booth's son. "Christian Socialism," by the Rev. Philo W. Sprague, defines the title. A volume of research into the religions of the past is "The Unknown God," by the late C. Loring Brace.

Philosophical and ethical works that discuss questions which lie at the foundation of all religious belief are Prof. Ladd's "Introduction to Philosophy;" William Knight's "Essays in Philosophy, Old and New;" Dr. Sterrett's "Studies in Hegel's Philosophy of Religion;" McCosh's "Prevailing Types of Philosophy;" "Hermetic Philosophy;" Friese's "Semitic Philosophy," and Archibald Alexander's "Theory of Conduct."

The broadening of religious thought among English theologians is strongly illustrated in two important works of the year from prominent English clergymen, given to us through reprints. The one is "The Wider Hope," a collection of essays and strictures on the doctrine and literature of future punishment. The other is "Lux Mundi," studies on the religion of the incarnation. Neither are what is called orthodox, but walking, as they do, hand in hand with science, they are most timely, helpful and hopeful. Mr. Gladstone's "Impregnable Rock of Holy Scripture" is entirely in line with orthodox views of Bible doctrines, and offers a singular contrast to the former works. An unfaltering faith in the Scriptures is also the leading characteristic of "The Living Christ and the Four Gospels," by R. W. Dale, and "The Credentials of the Gospel," by Joseph Agar Beet. The important results of recent Biblical criticism are summed up in Horton's "Inspiration and the Bible." The work is addressed to thoughtful unbelievers, and aims to reconcile conflicting views research has created regarding the Bible. The early Christian Church in Great Britain is the subject of two carefully prepared volumes, Romilly's "Monumental History of the Early British Church" and "The Church in the British Isles;" "Articles on Romanism," by the Rev. J. H. Hopkins, reviews a work of Monsignor Capel and the "Petrine Claims" of Dr. Littledale. In exegetical literature many new volumes were published of almost inestimable value to the theological student. "The Sermon Bible" completed its series on the Old Testament with a volume covering "Isaiah to Malachi," and begun the New Testament series with a volume covering from "Matthew i.-xxi." The very essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation is gathered into these volumes. The Expositor's Bible, now a well-known series for theologians and students, was enriched by five volumes, namely, "Judges and Ruth," by the Rev. Robert A. Watson; "The Gospel of St. Matthew," by J. Monro Gibson; "The Gospel According to St. Luke," by the Rev. H. Burton; "The Book of Exodus," by Dr. G. A. Chadwick, and the Rev. C. J. Ball's "Prophecies of Jeremiah." "The Biblical Illustrator," edited by the Rev. Joseph S. Exell, was completed with the issue of the second and third volumes. In Men of the Bible Series, James Iverach made a study of the life and times of "St. Paul," and Farrar of "The Minor Prophets." An abridged edition was published of Edersheim's "Jesus the Messiah." Inspiring and suggestive sermons came from Momerie, Spurgeon, Liddon, Farrar, Dr. Tidball and Dr. Watkins. The Foreign Biblical Library had added to its rich collection "Selected Sermons of Schleiermacher," taken from the German by Mary F. Wilson, and the completing volumes, second and third of Kurtz's "Church History." The "Selections from the Sermons of Padre Agostino da Montefeltro," from the original Italian, found enthusiastic readers.

BIOGRAPHY.

In the department of BIOGRAPHY, which also includes MEMOIRS AND CORRESPONDENCE, interesting and valuable works are abundant. There is no class of literature to which American writers contribute so large a number of original works of more than average worth. It is difficult to point out the best, where so many are good, as among the more important ones many of quite opposite subjects obtained a similar measure of success. Joseph Jefferson's "Autobiography" probably had the largest number of readers. His fame as an actor, as well as the charm of his reminiscences, contributed largely to the popularity his book achieved. As a literary production, it will stand the test of time, as it represents the most important contribution to stage history in recent years. Altogether in different lines is Francis Tiffany's "Life of Dorothea Lynde Dix." No more remarkable story of a life utterly devoted to others has ever appeared in print. Her name should be a household word, and yet her modesty held it unknown excepting among the few who knew her intimately. To Miss Dix belongs the credit of revolutionizing the dreadful methods in vogue for taking care of the insane some fifty years ago. The inventor of the Monitor had the varied incidents of his long career related in "The Life of John Ericsson," written by his lifelong friend, Col. William Conant Church, editor of the Army and Navy Journal. He was identified with numberless useful and important improvements in our navy, besides being the builder of the Monitor, for which Americans owe him an everlasting debt of gratitude. Ericsson's own letters and papers have been largely used. The progress of Methodism in this country is graphically traced in "The Life of Bishop Matthew Simpson," one of the greatest bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Dr. George R. Crooks has produced a charming memoir, rich in anecdotes and personal details. "Richard Henry Dana," best known to the world of readers as the author of "Two Years Before the Mast," is the subject of a biography of unusual interest, by Charles Francis Adams. Besides the events of his life, the book contains sketches of his political and otherwise famous contemporaries. Nicolay and Hay's exhaustive life of "Abraham Lincoln" appeared during 1890 in book form. It makes ten volumes of valuable pictures and text. Dealing as it does with one of the most noble and prominent figures in our history, and with one of its most exciting epochs, it stands foremost in interest and worth among the best biographies of the year. A charming issue of the Christmas season may be mentioned here, as it is largely biographical—Dr. Martin's "In the Footprints of Charles Lamb." Although the author is an Englishman, the book is an American copyright book. It delightfully describes the many homes of the gentlest of English essayists, with their teeming reminiscences.

Two new biographical series of special value were started. The Makers of America Series promises to be voluminous and wide-spreading. Its subjects will include both the colonizers and the makers—in a political sense—of all the states of the Union. The first volume was devoted to a "Life of General Oglethorpe," whose great life-work was the colonization of Georgia, written by Henry Bruce. William Hand Browne's "George Calvert and Cecilius, Barons Baltimore of Baltimore," followed, and William Graham Sumner's "Alexander Hamilton" closed the year. Although many good biographies of Hamilton precede this, none show him in the light the present work does—as the maker of the State of New York. American Reformers opened auspiciously with "Wendell Phillips" and "Horace Greeley." The world-renowned founder of the New York Tribune had his story told by Francis Nicoll Zabriskie, and the famous abolitionist and agitator was studied by Carlos Martyn. Both writers produced books of an unusually readable quality. The third volume of the series was dedicated to "William E. Dodge," the well-known New York merchant and philanthropist. Carlos Martyn was also the author of this volume. The series of American Religious Leaders was enriched by Dr. W. W. Newton's life of "Dr. Muhlenberg," and the American Statesmen Series, by George Pellew's "John Jay," one of the sincerest and most sagacious statesmen the annals of the Republic can show. The veteran poet and editor, "William Cullen Bryant," had his long and useful life set forth by his intimate friend, John Bigelow, in the American Men of Letters Series. Other volumes appealing strongly to the interest of New York readers are "Record of the Life and Work of the Rev. Stephen H. Tyng, D.D.," including a history of St. George's Church, N. Y., to the close of his rectorship, compiled by his son, and Ward McAllister's much criticised "Society as I Have Found It."

"Henry W. Grady, His Life, Writings and Speeches," is the title of a timely volume by Joel Chandler Harris. "The Life and Letters of Roscoe Conkling" was also published. George W. Childs' "Recollections" contains interesting anecdotes of General Grant. "A Life's Retrospect" is the autobiography of the Rev. Granville Moody, D.D., one of the pioneer Methodist preachers of the West. "Harvard Graduates Whom I Have Known" is designed as a sequel to the author's "Harvard Reminiscences." Dr. Peabody has written a volume that all Harvard graduates will desire to possess. "James G. Birney and His Times," by William Birney, gives some account of abolition movements in the South before 1828; "Theodore Parker" is the subject of a monograph by Samuel Johnson. "Life and Times of Ephraim Cutter" relates to the early history of Ohio, and "The History of the Girtys" includes scenes from the Western border war of the Revolution. "My Own Story" is a richly embroidered account of Joaquin Miller's early life among the Shasta Indians. Towle's "Heroes and Martyrs of Invention" and Mrs. Bolton's "Famous European Artists" and "Famous English Authors" belong to a class of condensed biographies very popular with young and old. Prof. Clark's "Savonarola" is rich in original research. Gustav Kobbé considered "Wagner's Life and Works" in two large volumes. "Giordano Bruno" contains a brief sketch of the martyr's career. "Christian Types of Heroism" is a little biographical work of general interest, by Dr. J. C. Adams.

The English reprints and importations and the translations from European languages under BIOGRAPHY are less representative than in former years. The second volume of Trollope's "What I Remember" was somewhat of a disappointment, as it was more autobiographical and less anecdotal than the first volume. Austin Dobson's "Four Frenchwomen" was the initial volume in the Giunta Series, to be notable as much for the fine literary quality of its volumes as their typographical excellence. Charlotte Corday, Madame

Roland, Madame Genlis and the Princess de Lamballe are the quartette of famous women who gave title to the volume. Heroes of the Nations Series promises to be as popular as the Story of the Nations Series, to which it is similar in appearance and general style; individuals, however, and not countries being the primary subjects. "Horatio Nelson and the Naval Supremacy of England," by W. Clark Russell and W. H. Jaques, and "Gustavus Adolphus and the Struggle of Protestantism," by C. R. L. Fletcher, are the volumes issued in 1890. "A. M. Mackay," a biography of an African missionary, written by his sister, is almost as wonderful a narrative of discovery as that of Stanley's. Other divines of the English and Scotch churches are subjects of the following volumes: Dr. Belcher's "Robert Brett," "Horatio Bonar, D.D.," Guthrie's "Robertson of Irvine, Poet-Preacher," Dr. Pynchon's "Bishop Butler" and "John G. Paton, Missionary to the New Hebrides." The latter is the second part of an autobiography published in 1889, and received with much favor. Richard H. Hutton, editor of the London Spectator, published his appreciative essay on "Cardinal Newman," written just before this eminent prelate's death. Edmund Gosse, who was for many years Robert Browning's neighbor, prepared a little book of personal details of the poet, under the title "Robert Browning Personalia." Popular biographies appeared of "Father Mathew," "The Maid of Orleans," and of "The Rev. J. G. Wood," the celebrated English writer on natural history. The additions to the Adventure Series were "Memoirs of the Military Career of John Shipp" and "The Adventures of Thomas Pellow." In the World's Great Explorers Series "Mungo Park and the Niger," by Joseph Thomson, was issued, and in Philosophical Classics "Locke," by Alex. Campbell Fraser. A new series of excellently made books begun under the name of Laurel-Crowned Letters has embraced, so far, from English literature, "Best Letters of Lady Mary Wortley Montagu," "Best Letters of Horace Walpole" and "Best Letters of Lord Chesterfield."

Limited editions were imported of the works which follow: "The Journal of Sir Walter Scott;" "Mrs. Piozzi and Her Friends," "The Early Diary of Frances Burney, 1768–1778;" in the series Rulers of India, "Dupleix," "Akbar," and "The Marquess of Dalhousie;" in the Great Musicians Series, "Cherubini" and "Beethoven;" in the Queen's Prime Ministers Series, Froude's "Lord Beaconsfield;" in Illustrated Biographies of Great Artists Series, "The Painters of Barbizon," by J. W. Mollett (2 v.), and Stephens' "William Mulready;" in the Eminent Actors Series, "William Charles Macready," by William Archer; in English Men of Action Series, "Sir Charles Napier," by Sir W. F. Butler, "Peterborough," by W. Stebbing, and "Captain Cook," by Walter Besant. New volumes were added to Stephen and Lee's comprehensive "Dictionary of National Biography."

French literature was largely drawn upon for books in this classification. Thomas Sergeant Perry made delightful translations of Imbert de Saint-Amand's bright and popular series of "Famous Women of the French Court," consisting of "Marie Antoinette and the End of the Old Régime," "Citizeness Bonaparte," "The Wife of the First Consul," "The Court of the Empress Josephine," "The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise," and "Marie Louise and the Decadence of the Empire." The series is a treasure-house of happy anecdotes and details of the personalities of Josephine and Marie Louise. "The Life of an Artist" is the autobiography of Jules Breton, belonging to the same group of famous French artists which includes Millet, Corot, Rousseau, Delacroix, and others equally gifted. An early romance of Napoleon Bonaparte is told in "Désirée, Queen of Sweden and Norway," one of the Giunta Series, by Baron Hochschild. Houssaye, the talented French artist, made a fresh study of "Cleopatra." Laurel-Crowned Letters received from French literature "The Best Letters of Madame de Sévigné.

The International Education Series had added to its valuable list of books Roger de Guimps' "Pestalozzi," translated from the second French edition. From the German was taken "Bismarck Intime," a picture of the Iron Chancellor in private life, by a fellow-student. "The Boyhood and Youth of Goethe," and "Richard Wagner's Letters to his Dresden Friends" were translated. The latter was only imported in small quantities. "Henrick Ibsen, 1828-1888," was warmly welcomed by the enthusiastic admirers of the most recent literary star. Henrick Jæger's critical biography gives all the information there is about the author of "A Doll's House." It is translated from the Norwegian by William Morton Payne. An "Autobiography of Anton Rubinstein" was taken from the Russian by Aline Delano, and "The Love-Letters of a Portuguese Nun" was taken from the Portuguese, and is very gracefully transformed into English.

HISTORY.

The works published under HISTORY during 1890 are smaller in actual numbers and embrace fewer worth mentioning than in any previous year. We give them, however, in this order, as the classification in itself is one of general interest. Ambitious works showing great research by American writers are easily named. Henry Adams' "History of the United States of America," begun in 1889, was completed by seven additional volumes covering the second administration of Thomas Jefferson and the first and second administrations of James Madison. This work almost stands alone in value and importance. The light it throws upon the many great political and financial events of Madison and Jefferson's administrations, through the unearthing of a mass of new and significant material, gives it an exceptional place in American history. Hubert Howe Bancroft's industry was testified to through a number of new volumes added to his great "History of the Pacific States of North America." Those issued were as follows: v. 19, "California, 1860–1890," v. 7; v. 20, "Nevada, Colorado and Wyoming, 1540–1888;" v. 26, "Washington, Idaho and Montana, 1845–1889;" v. 33, "Essays and Miscellany;" v. 34, "Literary Industries." They all show the same care in research, and the same charm of style as characterized the earlier volumes. James K. Hosmer's "Short History of Anglo-Saxon Freedom" belongs more especially to law and government than history, as it is a brief sketch of constitutional history for a period of nearly two thousand years—from the time of the Teutons of Cæsar and Tacitus to the British Empire and the United States of 1890. "The Influence of Sea Power upon History, 1660–1783," by A. T. Mahan, aims to show how maritime interests modified history and were modified by history. In "The World's Greatest Conflict" Henry Boynton has epitomized the vital political events which for twenty-five years made French and American history. H. W. Grady's "New South," re-issued with a sketch of the late author, is full of the writer's personal enthusiasm and hopefulness.

Contributions to the history of the late war are offered in "Prisoners of War and Military Prisons," a series of personal narratives of experiences in Southern prisons; Duffy's "History of the 159th Regiment, N. Y. S. V.," Johnson's "Defence of Charleston Harbor," Jefferson Davis' "Short History of the Confederate States of America." Britton's "Civil War on the Border, 1861–'62," Herr's "Episodes of the Civil War," and Bowen's "Massachusetts in the War, 1861–1865." Charles King's "Campaigning with Crook" and Finerty's "War-Path and Bivouac" are personal narratives of Indian campaigns following the Civil War. Rozier's "History of the Early Settlement of the Mississippi Valley" and the Rev. U. W. Condit's "History of Eastern Pennsylvania" are chiefly local in interest.

The Story of the Nations Series, which we have generally included among American publications, the volumes being in many cases edited here for American readers, was increased by five new volumes, viz.: W. R. Morfill's "Story of Russia," the Rev. W. D. Morrison's "Jews Under Roman Rule," Mackintosh's "Story of Scotland," Lina Hug and Richard Stead's "Switzerland," and Poole and Kelley's "Story of the Barbary Corsairs." It is remarkable how steadfast popular interest has been in this series—it may be attributed wholly to the high order of work represented by each volume. "The Story of Wisconsin" is in truth an American book by an American writer, Reuben Gold Thwaites, and forms the fifth volume in the Story of the States Series. "France and the Republic" was published in England, but has a special interest in this country as coming from the graceful pen of the well-known American journalist, William Henry Hurlbert. It is "a record of things seen and learned in the French provinces during the Centennial year, 1889." The fifth volume was issued, completing the set of Palfrey's "History of New England." Totten's "Our Race," seeks to establish the identity of the Anglo-Saxons with the ten lost tribes of Israel. Marie A. Brown's "Icelandic Discoveries of America" is in support of the lady's favorite theory of the early discovery of this continent. Moorehead's "Fort Ancient" and "Shepherd's "Antiquities of the State of Ohio" are rich in evidences of the works of the mound-builders. "The Cherokees in Pre-Columbian Times," by Cyrus Thomas, brings strong arguments to show that this Indian tribe may be traced back to the prehistoric mound-building age. A few other works that might be mentioned are "The Two Lost Centuries of Britain," by W. H. Babcock; "The Discovery of the Ancient City of Norumbega," by Eben Norton Horsford, and "The French Invasion of Ireland in '98," by Valerian Gribayédoff. The papers of the American Historical Association issued during the year were rich in material for the historical student.

The only important historical works reprinted from the English were volumes 7 and 8 of Leckey's "History of England in the Eighteenth Century," vol. 3 of Fyffe's "History of Modern Europe," and the 2d vol. of Justin McCarthy's "History of the Four Georges." With the new volumes Leckey's history is completed. They are almost entirely devoted to the Irish question, and are a most important and timely contribution. Fyffe deals with the Revolution of 1848, the establishment of the second Empire in France, the Crimean war, and the creation of the Italian Kingdom, in his new volume, and McCarthy covers the period from Walpole to Pitt, 1733 to 1760. From the German we received the first volume of Heinrich Sybel's "Founding of the German Empire by William I.," in a careful English translation. Sybel's history has been received as absolutely authentic and has been highly praised by German critics. "The Narrative of Captain Coignet," from the French, is a graphic picture of a fighter in the ranks of Napoleon's great campaigns. "The Republic of Costa Rica," from the Spanish of Joaquin Bernardo Calvo, is chiefly statistical, and very useful for reference.

Limited importations were made of Guy Le Strange's "Palestine Under the Moslems," Mahafty's "Greek World Under Roman Sway," of volume 3 of Richard Bagwell's "Ireland Under the Tudors," Hubert Hall's "Court Life Under the Plantagenets," and in the new series of Events of Our Own Time, Sir Edward Hamley's "War in the Crimea," and Malleson's "Indian Mutiny of 1857."

DESCRIPTION AND TRAVEL.

The sensation of the year among American works of travel and exploration was Stanley's "In Darkest Africa." The thrilling story it told of human suffering, endurance and self-sacrifice has seldom been excelled. The quest and rescue of Emin Pasha, the object primarily of the expedition, is related in detail, while many valuable chapters of new African discoveries give a permanent and scientific value to the book. "Emin Pasha and the Rebellion at the Equator," by A. J. Mounteney-Jephson, supplements Stanley's "In Darkest Africa," Mr. Jephson having been left by Stanley to assist Emin Pasha in leaving the Soudan. "With Stanley's Rear Column," by J. Rose Troup, is a pitiful story of failure and incompetency. These three works, with Ward and Bidwell's "Five Years with the Congo Cannibals," and Reading's "The Ogowe Band," complete the group of African explorations. The story of the terrible flood in Pennsylvania, on May 31, 1889, is vividly described in two works, "The Story of Johnstown," by J. J. McLaurin, and "Through the Johnstown Flood," by Dr. D. J. Beale. Welch's "Home History" is rich in recollections of Buffalo fifty years ago, and Mrs. Mary B. Claflin's "Brampton Sketches" are realistic pictures of old-time New England life. "The White Mountains" found a guide to their interpretation in Julius H. Ward, and "Lake Champlain and Its Shores" had many historical and legendary stories recalled concerning it by W. H. H. Murray.

The great American traveller pervaded all parts of the globe. Mexico was visited by Maturin W. Ballou and the Rev. Arthur Howard Noll, the result being "Aztec Land" and "A Short History of Mexico." "Around and About South America" and "In and Out of Central America" are Frank Vincent's latest books. "Two Years in the French West Indies" is mostly devoted to vivid descriptions of the beautiful island of Martinique. Lafcadio Hearn is at his best here, the work abounding in exquisite pen-pictures. From Chicago to Cuba and thence to Mexico is the route taken by Julia Newell Jackson in "A Winter Holiday in Summer Lands." "The Argonauts of California" is reminiscent of scenes and incidents of California in the early mining days. The "Mineral Springs and Health Resorts of California" are ably described by Dr. Winslow Anderson. Army life on the frontier is photographed in a dashing style by Mrs. Custer in "Following the Guidon." Frontier life of an earlier period is the subject of Jessie Benton Frémont's "Far West Sketches." Susie C. Clark made "The Round Trip from the Hub to the Golden Gate," Francis C. Sessions went "From Yellowstone Park to Alaska" and then "From the Land of the Midnight Sun to the Volga." "A Woman's Trip to Alaska" gives some account of a voyage through the inland seas of the Sitkan Archipelago in 1890. The writer is the wife of General C. H. T. Collis. Drake's "The Pine-tree Coast" reproduces, with pen and pencil, the romantic Maine seaboard. Finck's "Pacific Coast Scenic Tour" is an enthusiastic tribute to the lovely scenery of the Pacific coast from San Diego to Sitka.

European and Eastern countries were visited by many American travellers. The following titles fully describe the book's contents: "European Days and Ways," by Alfred E. Lee. "A Summer Holiday in Europe," by Mary Elizabeth Blake, "A Bundle of Letters from Over the Sea," by Louise B. Robinson, Mrs. Clarkson N. Potter's "To Europe on a Stretcher," Hetta M. Hervey's "Glimpses of Norseland," "Social and Religious Life in the Orient," by K. H. Basmajian, "In Western Levant," by Francis C. Sessions, "Three Years in Western China," by Alexander Hosie, and "In Scripture Land," by E. L. Wilson. "The Tsar and His People" is a series of brilliant articles, handsomely illustrated, on Russia and the Russians.

The reprints of English works are not numerous. The more important ones show the universal interest taken in Stanley's last journey. There was a compilation of "The Story of Emin's Rescue as Told in Stanley's Letters," another work called "Stanley, a Popular Account of His Rescue of Emin Pasha," and "Stanley's Emin Pasha Expedition," by A. J. Wauters. "Through Abyssinia," by F. Harrison Smith, gives an account of the author's journey to the King of Zion, or Abyssinia, as envoy from the Queen of England. "Palestine," by C. R. Conder, came out in The World's Great Explorers. A charmingly unconventional and amusing journey is described by Sarah Jeannette Duncan in "A Social Departure." It tells how two young Englishwomen went around the world alone and had an extremely good time. "Glimpses of Old English Homes," though bearing an English imprint, is from the pen of Elizabeth Balch, an American writer. It gives a graphic account of a number of historic houses of England. Mme. Toussaint-Samson's "Parisian in Brazil," Madame Jane Dieulafoy's "At Susa," both taken from the French, and Jerome's "Three Men in a Boat," conclude the list. The last is a humorous account of a trip on the Thames River.

The importations in this department were Justin McCarthy's "Charing Cross to St. Paul's," W. J. Loftie's "London City," Mahaffy's and Rogers' "Sketches from a Tour Through Holland and Germany" and Mahaffy's "Greek Pictures," Walters' "In Ternyson Land," Lovett's "London Pictures," Lynch's "Egyptian Sketches," Carstensen's "Two Summers in Greenland," Lady Dufferin's "Our Vice-Regal Life in India" (2 v.), W. Spotswood Green's "Among the Selkirk Glaciers," Baring-Gould's "Old Country Life," and D. G. Hogarth's "Devia Cypria," being notes of an archæological journey in Cyprus in 1888.

POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE.

The works in this department are as usual mostly from American writers. There are neither so many of them as in former years, nor so great a number that are of permanent value. "Emigration and Immigration," by Richmond Mayo Smith is an exhaustive study upon a question that is just at present agitating the minds of our statesmen. The author, who is Professor of Political Economy in Columbia College, furnishes a copious bibliography of the subject and many tables of valuable statistics. In the Questions of the Day Series two other timely topics are discussed under "Railway Secrecy and Trusts," by J. M. Bonham, and "American Farms," by J. R. Elliott. The cause of the present lack of prosperity in our agricultural districts is sought for by the latter writer. "The Negro Question" was considered by George W. Cable in the work of that name, and by the Rev. H. M. Field in "Bright Skies and Dark Shadows." The second book is also devoted to an account of travel in Florida, where Dr. Field found his opportunity to study his subject. In line with these are Blair's "Prosperity of the South Dependent upon the Elevation of the Negro" and "Whites and Blacks," by C. H. J. Taylor, a young colored lawyer of Atlanta.

The well-known writer on economic subjects, Mr. W. B. Weeden, of Providence, R. I., produced a work of unusual value—"Economic and Social History of New England, 1620–1789" (2 v.). It covers a new field of inquiry and one which now possesses a greater degree of interest than ever before for students of social and industrial questions. "The Economic Basis of Protection" was investigated by Simon N. Patten. A tariff for revenue only was the text of N. H. Chamberlain's "What's the Matter?" "The Distribution of Wealth," by Rufus Cope, discusses in a popular manner the limitations of wealth, the co-relation of wealth and poverty, interest, taxation, protection and free trade. "The Economics of Prohibition," by James C. Fernald, is a statistical work on the temperance question. "First Lessons in Political Economy," by Francis A. Walker, and "The Working Principles of Political Economy," by S. M. Macvane, are for students and the ordinary needs of intelligent citizens. "The Strike of Millionaires Against Miners," by H. D. Lloyd, is a painful story of the ruthlessness of wealth. "Midnight Talks at the Club," by Amos K. Fiske, takes in religion and prohibition as well as political questions. "Millionaires of a Day," is almost wholly humorous, although it gives an authentic account of the great land "boom" of Southern California, which occurred about four years ago. It is written by T. S. Van Dyke, the author of "Southern California" and other books. Our government, and its special powers and departments, formed the subject of monographs. They are fully described by their titles and are as follows: "Civil Government in the United States Considered with Some Reference to Its Origins," by Prof. John Fiske; "The Unwritten Constitution of the United States," by Christopher G. Tiedeman, of the University of Missouri; "The Veto Power," by E. Campbell Mason, the opening paper of the valuable "Harvard Historical Monographs;" "The Supreme Court of the United States," one of the carefully considered Johns Hopkins University studies, by Westel W. Willoughby, and "The Political Beginnings of Kentucky," by John Mason Brown. "Civilization," by Charles Morris, setting forth the philosophy of human progress, covers a broad field and touches upon governments.

A history of the origin and growth of the art of war was begun by Col. Theodore Ayrault Dodge in his Great Captain Series. The first volume, dedicated to "Alexander," gives a detailed account of the campaigns of the great Macedonian. "The Writings of George Washington," in the new complete library edition of his works, had several additional volumes published. Uniform with this was begun "The Writings and Correspondence of John Jay." Volume third, completing the "Speeches, Arguments and Miscellaneous Papers" of David Dudley Field, was brought out by Titus Munson Coan. The three last-mentioned works take up various political topics, and phases of law and government. Chauncey M. Depew's "Orations and After-Dinner Speeches," shows a wide range of thought and interests. "Political Americanisms," by Charles Ledyard Norton, is an entertaining glossary of terms and phrases current at different periods in American politics.

To our social history belongs Riis' "How the Other Half Lives," painfully realistic studies of New York tenement-house life. "The Mormon Delusion" can scarcely be grouped under religion, so we name it here. The Rev. M. W. Montgomery has brought together in a small volume a succinct account of its history, doctrine and the present outlook in Utah. "Wheelbarrow Articles and Discussons on the Labor Question" are from a workingman's point of view. "The Blind Men and the Devil" is an allegory illustrating some of the evils of our social system. "Studies in Young Life" are practical papers by Bishop Vincent. "Thomas Jefferson's Views on Public Education," set forth in a succession of papers by J. C. Henderson, are rich in suggestions. "Abraham Lincoln's Pen and Voice" is a compilation of Lincoln's letters, civil, political and military.

The works of this class from English writers reprinted here are meagre indeed. "In Darkest England" may be said to belong to social science. "General" Booth's scheme, which has been considerably criticised, and consequently considerably read, comprises the redemption of the poor and vicious of England's lowest and most abandoned classes. The well-known editor, William T. Stead, of the London Pall Mall Gazette, made a journey to Rome, in 1889, and interviewed the Pope on the rights of women, socialism, etc. The Pope's broad views are contained in "The Pope and the New Era." Dr. Davidson's "A Good Start" is simply a book of practical advice for young men. In English importations were Sir Chas. W. Dilke's "Problems of Greater Britain," not a revision of the author's "Greater Britain," but an entirely new study of England and her colonies and dependencies, Marshall's "Principles of Economics," Gardiner's "Constitutional Documents of the Puritan Revolution, 1628–1660," and Sir F. Pollock's "Introduction to the History of the Science of Politics." A new volume was published from the German of Holst's "Political and Constitutional History of the United States," and from the same language of Max Nordau's "Paris Sketches." "Labor" is an apotheosis of manual labor. Count Tolstî believes that salvation after death can only be found through manual labor in this world. His work was translated from the French by Mary Cruger, as it was suppressed in Russia.

LITERARY MISCELLANY.

The additions to LITERARY HISTORY AND MISCELLANY, which includes collected works, are from the best American essayists and writers. Dr. Philip Schaff's "Literature and Poetry" is one of his most notable productions. Both literary and religious topics are treated in a popular and attractive style. Exquisitively poetical papers make up Hamilton Wright Mabie's musings, entitled "My Study Fire." The well-known charming literary style of the editor of the Christian Union gives a special value to this volume. W. Wetmore Story, the American artist, proves himself equally at home in the realms of art and of literature in "Conversations in a Studio" (2 v.). The needs of English literary students are considered in "Studies in Literature and Style," written by Theodore W. Hunt. The first volume of "English Lands, Letters and Kings," published in 1889, covered from "Celt to Tudor," the second volume, issued in the past year, ran "From Elizabeth to Anne." Donald G. Mitchell offers here delightful pictures of the famous men of letters, the famous writings and so on of the seventeenth century. Holmes' "Over the Teacups" was warmly welcomed. The aged author has lost none of his wit or brightness. A wide reading and an excellent memory are characteristics of Russell's literary talks "In a Club Corner." G. E. Woodberry's essays were reprinted from the Atlantic and Nation, "Studies in Letters and Life" they were called.

Literary students have been provided with excellent manuals in G. J. Smith's "Synopsis of English and American Literature," Welsh's "Digest of English and American Literature," Elizabeth A. Reed's "Hindu Literature," and Perry's "History of Greek Literature." Additional aids in literary work may be found in Curtin's "Myths and Folk-Tales of the Russians, Western Slavs and Magyars," and "Myths and Folk-Lore of Ireland," and in "Tales and Legends from the Land of the Tzar." "Our Mother Tongue," by Theodore H. Mead, "The Ladder of Journalism," by T. Campbell Copeland, and Hennequin's "Art of Play-Writing," are practical treatises belonging to this group.

Other works that should be mentioned are "The Story of My House," by G. H. Ellwanger, gracefully discursive of things inside and outside of the house; "Thoreau's Thoughts," a collection of quotable sentences; "In and Out of Book and Journal," pithy sayings compiled by Sydney A. Roberts from the best literature; "Talks with Ralph Waldo Emerson," reported by C. J. Woodberry; "The Crown of Life," excerpts from the writings of Henry Ward Beecher; "The Garden as Considered in Literature by Certain Polite Writers;" and Fish's "The Blessed Birds."

Webster's "International Dictionary of the English Language" is invaluable for reference for those who cannot buy the great "Century Dictionary," which had a couple of volumes added to it during the year. Stedman's and Hutchinson's "Library of American Literature" had another (the 11th) volume added to its bulk, to bring it down to date. Sargent's "Reading for the Young" is an excellent classified catalogue. The handsome new Riverside edition of Lowell's Writings should not be overlooked.

In English reprints we have in Henley's "Views and Reviews" and Knight's "Idylls of the Field" two of the best examples of the modern English essayist. The "Idylls of the Field" are sympathetic essays on nature and the birds and trees. The English correspondent of the New York Tribune, George W. Smalley, filled two octavo volumes with his reminiscences of public people and sights and pageants he had witnessed. It may be asked for under the title of "London Letters and Some Others." The 5th volume of Morley's "English Writers," devoted to the fourteenth century, was sent out. Popular handbooks are comprised in Dawson's "Makers of Modern English," Bainton's "Art of Authorship" and Pendleton's "Newspaper Reporting in Olden Time and To-Day." "Rambles in Book-Land," by W. Davenport Adams, "English Poetry and Poets," by Mrs. Sarah Warner Brooks, and "Studies in Jocular Literature," by W. Carew Hazlitt, are entirely literary. Two delightfully humorous books, "Stage-Land" and "The Idle Thoughts of an Idle Fellow," came from a rising young English litérateur, Jerome K. Jerome. "The Passion Play at Ober-Ammergau" was criticized by Canon Farrar in a book of that name. Jessopp's "Trials of a Country Parson" represent one of the most attractive of English writers. Andrew Lang's "Old Friends" are "essays in epistolary parody." "Russia, Its People and Its Literature," was taken from the Spanish of Emelia Pardo Bazán by Fanny Hale Gardiner. Several recent Russian writers have considerable space devoted to them.

POETRY.

Out of a larger number of poems published in 1890 than in 1889, there are fewer to mention. The year was almost destitute of poetical work of permanent worth among American writers. Eugene Field's "Little Book of Western Verse," ranked among the better productions, is a weak imitation of Bret Harte's style. Robert L. Stevenson's "Ballads" contain two lenghty versifications of South Sea legends; the other "ballads" are picturesque descriptions simply. Richard H. Stoddard's "Lion's Cub" gathers together his recent contributions to the magazines. Emily Dickinson's "Poems" have created a little ripple of fresh interest with the critics. Although they evince originality and a certain rugged power, they are wanting in the first essential of poetry—rhythm. A finished piece of work comes from the hand of "Stuart Sterne" (Miss Gertrude Bloede) called "Piero Da Castiglione." It is a story in verse, charmingly and musically told. Graceful numbers are contained in "The Inverted Torch," by Edith M. Thomas, in "Poems," by Edna Dean Proctor, "Verses Along the Way," by Mary Elizabeth Blake, "Lyrics for a Lute," by Frank Dempster Sherman, and "Poems," by John Hay. With some new poems Mr. Hay has included in this volume his "Pike County Ballads" of twenty years ago. Other graceful collections are Frank S. Saltus' "Witch of Endor," James Whitcomb Riley's "Rhymes of Childhood Days," Julius Madison Cawein's "Lyrics and Idyles," Eaton's "Arcadian Legends and Lyrics," and Willis Boyd Allen's "In the Morning."

"Representative Sonnets by American Poets," edited by Charles H. Crandall, and "American Sonnets," edited by T. W. Higginson and E. H. Bigelow, are gleanings in a field almost entirely unworked. They both show the growth of the sonnet in American poetical literature, and give examples of the most perfect specimens. Jessie F. O'Donnell compiled a couple of pretty volumes of "Love Poems of Three Centuries, 1590–1890" in the series of Knickerbocker Nuggets. Glowing tributes to "my lady's charms" are culled from many writers of many countries. "Legends and Lyrics" are popular selections from Whittier, and "Pastorals, Lyrics and Sonnets" the same from Wordsworth. Lowell's "Fable for Critics" was honored with a new dress, adorned with vignette portraits of the authors mentioned.

Rudyard Kipling's poetical effusions came in for a fair share of attention. His "Departmental Ditties," reprinted here from the English, obtained many readers. They are stories in verse of Anglo-Indian life, on the same lines as his prose tales. They show rather slovenly and hasty work, but are not without evidence of latent genius. "A Tale of the House of the Wolfings" is an ambitious work, partly in verse, partly in prose, reproducing the life and manners of a remote past. William Morris is the author.

Interesting new collections of poems are offered by Alfred Austin in "English Lyrics," Sladen's "Australian Poets" of the last century, Browning's "Principal Shorter Poems," Mrs. Bullens' "Selections from Robert Browning," Edmonds' "Poetry of the Anti-Jacobin," Parkes' "Painter-Poets" and Pollard's "Odes from the Greek Dramatists" and "English Miracle Plays." Ibsen continued to be translated, several volumes of his plays being given to American readers. But the craze for him in this country has been limited and short-lived.

ART-BOOKS.

The falling off, in quantity and quality, of the illustrated books of 1890, was quite remarkable.

So poor a show in so-called art-works has not been known for many years. Even the best books fall far short of perfection, in either artistic beauty or mechanical finish. W. Hamilton Gibson's "Strolls by Starlight and Sunshine" is a graceful piece of original work in his familiar style, but scarcely done justi e to in the printing. "Some American Painters in Water-Colors" is a good specimen of color-printing in some of its illustrations, others being decidedly crude in tone. It takes a first place as a new work, the designs having been made for reproduction in this way. Alfred Parsons' illustrations to "A Selection from the Sonnets of William Wordsworth" are for the greater part poetical and graceful. Original work of a high order of merit is spoiled here frequently in the reproduction. "A Mosaic" is to be placed on the front rank among original work, its pictures never having been published before. The book is an exceptional one from all sides, the photogravure work being notably fine. George Wharton Edwards made drawings illustrative of "Certain Sonnets" of Sir Philip Sidney and Austin Dobson's "Sun Dial." They were reproduced in photogravure, as were Fred. Remington's designs for "The Song of Hiawatha," and the views for "Our Old Home" of Hawthorne. Charlotte Brontë's "Jane Eyre" and George Eliot's "Romola" were brought out in holiday editions profusely illustrated by photogravure.

Other illustrated works belonging to the history of the year were Margaret M. Pullman's "Summerland," Stokes' "XXIV Bits of Vers de Société," Mabie's "Our New England," "English Poems" with Taylor's etchings, Pratt's "Flower Folk," Matthew's "The Golden Flower-Chrysanthemum," "Saul" with drawings by Frank O. Small. Mrs. Sinclair's "Indigenous Flowers of the Hawaiian Islands." "The Poet's Year," "Thus Think and Smoke Tobacco," by G. Wharton Edwards "Out-of-Doors with Tennyson," "Goupil Gallery of Great War Paintings," "Recent European Art," Irene E. Jerome's "From an Old Love-Letter," and the 7th series of "The Good Things of Life." Holiday editions appeared, copiously illustrated, of Edersheim's "Jesus the Messiah" and Sir Edwin Arnold's "Light of Asia." Two translations of fine French works were made here, the books being also made here and showing the original French illustrations. They were George Sand's "The Haunted Pool" and Ludovic Halévy's "Marriage for Love." They were both exquisite specimens of bookmaking.

To dramatic art belongs Lawrence Hutton's "Curiosities of the American Stage" with its many portraits. Mrs. Kendal's "Dramatic Opinions" follows naturally in this place, and W. E. Golden's "Brief History of the English Drama." Champlin's and Apthorp's "Cyclopedia of Music and Musicians" was completed with the third volume. One of Richard Wagner's operas, "Parsifal," is the theme of a lecture by Albert Ross Parsons.

There is little to record from English sources. W. S. Gilbert's "Songs of a Savoyard" is an entertaining volume, humorously illustrated. Mrs. Stanley's "London Street Arabs" shows talent of a somewhat crude order. "Greek Pictures" and "London Pictures" were collections of pictures and text thrown together for the holiday season. "The Passion Play as It Is Played To-Day" was one or the most interesting books of the season, but imported in such small quantities that the demand for it could not be satisfied. Artists and art-lovers are recommended to read Whistler's "Gentle Art of Making Enemies," both for profit and amusement.

Perrot's and Chipiez's "History of Art in Sardinia, Judæa, Syria and Asia Minor" is a valuable work of reference from the French. "Salon of 1890," in French and English, presented in photogravure the 100 prize paintings of the French Salon of 1890. Desirable illustrated editions were shown of Mérimée's "Charles IX." and Balzac's "Chouans."

SPORTS AND AMUSEMENTS.

The contributions to this department were very small and unimportant. Some popular works came from American writers. "The Young Folks' Cyclopædia of Games and Sports," by J. D. Champlin, Jr., and Arthur E. Bostwick, is a valuable reference-book and authority for old or young on all kinds of indoor and outdoor games. Leffingwell's "Shooting on Upland, Marsh and Stream" is a series of graphic sporting articles by an enthusiastic sportsman. "The Big Game of North America," by G. O. Shields, Hallock's "Salmon Fisher," and Gould's "Sport—Shooting and Fishing," are in the same line. "In the Riding-School," by Theo. Stephenson Browne, tells all that a lady desires to know about horseback riding, riding-schools, etc. Little handbooks are Porter's "Cycling for Health and Pleasure," "The Bowlers' Handbook" and "The American Cricket Annual for 1890."

"American Whist Illustrated," by G. W. P., is the digest of "American Whist," published in 1880, and of "Whist Universal," published in 1887. Mrs. Van Rensselaer's "Devil's Picture-Book," issued at Christmas time, is an interesting history of playing cards of all times and nations, fully illustrated.

To know how the best physical conditions may be reached through certain athletic sports and exercises, readers are recommended to Thornton's "Training for Health, Strength, Speed and Agility," Edwin Checkley's "Natural Method of Physical Training," and Baron Nils Posse's "Swedish System of Educational Gymnastics." The lovers of dogs will find hints for training in "House and Pet Dogs" and Mercer's "The Spaniel and Its Training."

From the English, the additions to the Badminton Library were "Tennis, Lawn Tennis and Rackets," by J. M. Heathcote and others, and "Golf," by Horace G. Hutchinson and others. A new series, Manuals of Sports, includes little books on almost every sort of athletic sports —skating, boxing, cricket, fencing, swimming, wrestling, etc. "Riding for Pupils" gives practical instructions by an English writer. "Physiology of Bodily Exercise," by Dr. Fernand Legrange, is specially directed to the brain worker, and offers excellent advice, exercises and outdoor sports which relieve the overworked.

SCIENCE.

Additions to SCIENCE proper grow less every year. In 1890 no great book in this line can be recalled. American authors generally made special studies in physical science. McCook's "American Spiders and Their Spinning Work," of which two large volumes were published, is a great work, exhaustive and comprehensive. The purpose of Dana's "Characteristics of Volcanoes," is the illustration of volcanic action and principles by special reference to the facts supplied by the open craters of Hawaii. Studies in the life history of irritating insects and their natural enemies are embraced under "Dragonflies vs. Mosquitoes." Newhall's "Trees of Northeastern America" will aid every-day people in learning the various trees by their leaf. "Outings at Odd Times" is a collection of Dr. Abbott's delightful observations on nature. "The Tornado" was made the subject of a paper by Prof. H. A. Hagen, of the United States Signal Office. "Electricity in Daily Life" is a popular work, profusely illustrated. "Evolution" gathers together a number of popular lectures and discussions before the Brooklyn Ethical Association. "The Principles of Psychology" represents one of the fullest treatises on the subject yet published by Prof. W. James (2 v.). "The Physical Properties of Gases," by Arthur L. Kimball, is one of the Riverside Science Series for intelligent readers. Two very full bibliographies on technical literature are here called to the attention of students, Haferkorn's "Handy Lists," the most recent relating to "Electricity and Magnetism," and Szczepanski's "Bibliotheca Polytechnica."

An interesting monograph from the English, published in the International Scientific Series, is Poulton's "Colors of Animals." "Wild Beasts and Their Ways" is a successful attempt by Sir Samuel W. Baker to popularize his knowledge about the habits of animals. "Through Magic Glasses," a sequel to "The Fairyland of Science," by Arabella B. Buckley is primarily for young people. "An Epitome of the Synthetic Philosophy" places within the grasp of the ordinary student the principles of Herbert Spencer's philosophy. "Falling in Love" is rich in facts in natural science, under the garb of fiction. It is by Grant Allen. The Contemporary Science Series received "The Evolution of Sex," by Patrick Geddes and J. Arthur Thomson, and "Physiognomy and Expression," by P. Mantegazza. "A Naturalist Among the Head-Hunters" is an account, by Charles Morris Woodford, of three visits to the Salomon Islands, in the years 1886, 1887 and 1888, rich in facts relative to the life and plants of the island. BOOK PRODUCTION IN ENGLAND IN 1890.

DIVISIONS.	1889.		1890.
	New Books.	New Editions.	New Books.	New Editions.
Theology, Sermons, Biblical, etc.	630	134	555	153

In commenting on the foregoing the Publishers' Circular says:

"The Academy of March, 1890, remarks that the statistics of books published in the United States during 1889 show the same decrease, as compared with the figures for the preceding year, as the corresponding figures of the tables issued by the Publishers' Circular, and adds at the end of the paragraph, 'We can only suggest that the wants of the reading public are becoming more and more satisfied with newspapers, reviews and magazines, and that authors consequently find their own best market in the same field.' This view is confirmed by the classified table of publications during 1890. The decrease in the number of new books and new editions is very nearly the same as that recorded for 1889. In educational works and books for the amusement of the young we find higher figures. Of novels there are not quite so many as in 1889, and yet the reader of fiction has had provided for him almost three new novels per diem, besides one in a new edition for each week-day. Perhaps the most striking fact to note is that artistic works, whether new or in new editions, have dropped to about half the number put forth in the preceding year. Poetry at first sight seems to be idler, but the increased number of new editions shows that at all events public taste does not flag in that direction. Belles-Lettres, too, as a class, does not suffer by comparison with the production of 1889. Here, too, the number of reprints is also in excess, showing that interest in pure literature or standard works is not on the decline. Lastly, books which have to be ranged under 'miscellaneous' are greater in number than those of 1889."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

WITH the January (1891) number of The Magazine of Poetry was published a complete bibliographical list of all poetry published in book form during 1890 in the English language.

EDWARD BELLAMY has decided to name his new Nationalist weekly paper The New Nation, and to issue the first number January 31 from Boston instead of New York, as was at first intended. Mr. Mason Green, for some time connected with the Springfield, Mass., Republican, will act as managing editor.

SISTER ROSE GERTRUDE, the young woman about whose work among the lepers of Molokai so much has been written, has been induced to reply to the charges made against her for renouncing her work. Her article, the first from her pen, is to be published in the Ladies' Home Journal for February, and will contain a full explanation of what she has accomplished among the lepers, and why she was obliged to forsake her work.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ASHLAND, O.—George H. Ames, bookseller, has sold out.

CINCINNATI, O.—Peter G. Thomson has purchased the entire business block heretofore known as the Paragon Slate Co. and will personally hereafter carry on the business under the name of the Triumph Noiseless Slate Co. The trade will remember Mr. Thomson as a manufacturer of toy books and games, and the circumstances connected with his competition with, and the sale of his business two years ago to McLoughlin Bros., New York. He has opened a branch factory at Treichlers, Pa., under the superintendence of James H. Coffin, a veteran slatemaker of thirty years' standing. All goods for the East will be shipped from there, and for the West from Cincinnati. Mr. Solomon Marks, the inventor of the "Triumph" slate, will be retained by him as general manager.

DALLAS, TEX.—H. C. Wilkerson, bookseller, has sold out.

GALVESTON, TEX.—Fire damaged the stock of E. R. Franklin, bookseller and stationer, on the 17th inst. His loss is about $10,000. Insured.

NEW YORK CITY.—W. B. Harrison will remove February 1 to 3 East 14th Street.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—We regret to hear that James Hammond (The Church Book Store), 1224 Chestnut Street, has been obliged to make an assignment.

REINBECK, IA.—La Grange & Meissner, booksellers, have been succeeded by E. C. Meissner.

VINCENNES, IND.—It is reported that W. H. Pemington, bookseller and stationer, is endeavoring to settle with his creditors on the basis of 25 cents cash and 75 cents in four, eight and twelve months' unindorsed notes.

WACO, TEX.—R. J. Tolson & Co., booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

FUNK & WAGNALLS will publish Edwin Arnold's "The Light of the World," February 16. Richard Henry Stoddard has written an introduction to the poem.

FLEMING H. REVELL CO. will publish at once the remarkable paper on "The Message of Jesus to Men of Wealth," by Rev. George D. Herron, which recently appeared in The Christian Union. It has been revised.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT have in press "Juggernaut a veiled record," a novel depicting strange phases of political life and the "Crushing Effects of the Greed for Money and Success," by George Carey Eggleston and Dolores Marbourg.

BRADLEY & WOODRUFF, Boston, who purchased at the Robert Carter & Bros.' sale the plates of the fourteen books by Jennie M. Drinkwater, have made arrangements with that author for the exclusive right to whatever she may write during the next two years.

T. Y. CROWELL & CO. have just ready the second volume of Heinrich von Sybil's "History of the Founding of the German Empire," translated by Prof. Perrin, of Boston University. It brings the narration down to the Assembly of the Princes at Frankfort in 1863, and contains many dramatic and stirring episodes. It will have an engraved portrait of Prince Bismarck.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. have in preparation "Hannibal," the second volume in the series of books Col. Dodge is writing, with the intention of setting forth the achievements of certain great military leaders as well as the origin and the growth of the art of war; "President Wayland, of Brown University," by a former pupil of his, Prof. James O. Murray, of Princeton, the fourth volume in the series of American Religious Leaders; and another volume of Dr. Weir Mitchell's poems, under the title of "A Psalm of Death, and Other Poems."

WE heartily congratulate Mr. Edwin L. Stuart (Leary's Old Bookstore), of Philadelphia, who has received the Republican nomination for Mayor of his city. As the daily press, without regard to politics, united in his praise, he seems to have reasonably good pospects for election. Mr. Stuart is a young man of great promise, and will no doubt fill a public position with as great credit as he does the one he now occupies.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent, the excess is at 10 cents per line, and amount should be enclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents per line.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents per line for each insertion. No deduction for repeated matter.

Under the heading "Situations Wanted," subscribers are entitled to one free insertion of five lines. For repeated matter and advertisements of non-subscribers the charge is 10 cents per line.

All other small advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents per line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no accounts must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their communications.

Parties desiring to receive answers to their advertisements through this office must either call for them or enclose postage stamps with their orders for the insertion of such advertisements. In all cases we must have the full address of advertisers as a guarantee of good faith.

THE 6TH VOLUME OF THE SERMON BIBLE.

Matthew XXII. to Mark XVI. Strongly bound in half buckram, $1.50.

"We do not hesitate to pronounce this the most practically useful work of its kind at present extant. It is not a commentary, but a Thesaurus of sermons on texts arranged consecutively, chapter after chapter and book after book. . . . We are bound to say that the object announced by the compilers is on the way to be realised, and here will be given the essence of the best homiletic literature of this generation"—LITERARY CHURCHMAN.

ROBERT BONNER'S SONS'

NEW NOVELS.

A MATTER OF MILLIONS.

By ANNA KATHARINE GREEN. Magnificently illustrated by Victor Perard. 12mo. 482 pages, handsomely bound in English cloth, gold stamping on cover, $1.50.

MRS. HAROLD STAGG.

A Novel.

By ROBERT GRANT, author of "Jack Hall," etc. Beautifully illustrated by Harry C. Edwards. Paper cover, 50 cents; bound in cloth, $1.00.

This is a brilliant novel, in which the author has given a free rein to his undoubted faculty for social satire. Mrs. Harold Stagg is a capital portraiture whose prototype may be found in the drawing-rooms of New York, Boston and Newport.

THE UNLOVED WIFE.

By Mrs. SOUTHWORTH. With eight choice illustrations. Elegantly bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

We have in this novel of American life a pure and lovely creation of girlhood and wifehood that will bear comparison with any character in the native fiction of our day. The story of the life of this Washington politician's girl-wife is one of the most interesting and pathetic histories ever recorded under the guise of a novel.

LILITH:

A Sequel to "The Unloved Wife."

By Mrs. E. D. E. N. SOUTHWORTH. With illustrations by O. W. Simons. Paper cover, 50 cents; bound in cloth, $1.00.

In "Lilith" Mrs. Southworth has taken up the fortunes of her heroine from the date of her disappearance in "The Unloved Wife," and created a new and lovely history for her. Each of the novels is perfectly complete in itself, and neither is necessary to the perfection of the other, but they may be read together, and thus they form a more extended and more beautiful development of life and character than either constitutes alone.

"The Fall of the Christians," in Book Form under the Title of

PAOLI,

The Last of the Missionaries.

A Picture of the Overthrow of the Christians in Japan in the Seventeenth Century. By W. C. KITCHIN. Superbly illustrated with large and small engravings from designs by G. A. Traver and Henry Bouche. 12mo, 500 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00.

GREAT SENATORS.

By OLIVER DYER. 12mo. bound in cloth, $1.00.

Mr. Dyer's reminiscences and character delineations of Calhoun, Benton, Clay and Webster, and Sam Houston, Jefferson Davis and other United States Senators, have been a great success. His book is written in a brilliant and charming style, and deals with persons and a period of great interest to all Americans.

UNDER OATH.

An Adirondack Story.

By JEAN KATE LUDLUM. Handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

The Adirondacks are doubly fascinating, inasmuch as they are the delight of the lover of adventure and nature, and are also the Mecca of scores of thousands of wide-awake pleasure-seekers. In "Under Oath," Miss Jean Kate Ludlum has adroitly woven these facts into an absorbing romance, in which the reader is caught up in a cyclone of excitement, and does not descend to earth until the last paragraph is reached.

THE ALCHEMIST.

Translated from the French of HONORÉ DE BALZAC. With illustrations by F. A. Carter. Elegantly bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

In this work Balzac portrayed with a masterly hand the passionate exaltation of the search after truth, the absorption of all other faculties in one master-passion, and the pitiless egotism of genius. It is a family picture which for truth, delicacy and pathos has been surpassed by no novelist of any nation or any time.

COUSIN PONS.

Translated from the French of HONORÉ DE BALZAC. With twelve beautiful and characteristic illustrations by Whitney. 12mo, 439 pages, handsomely bound in cloth, $1.00; paper cover, 50 cents.

Cousin Pons is one of the most interesting characters in the whole range of Balzac's wonderful creations. Balzac penetrated human nature to its depth. There is scarcely a type which evaded his keen eyes. His characters are types of the living, human world swarming at his feet. His creations are as real as noble peaks standing out against an evening sky. In every one of Balzac's novels there is a great human lesson.

CESAR BIROTTEAU.

From the French of HONORÉ DE BALZAC. With fourteen choice illustrations by Harry C. Edwards. Paper cover, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

REUNITED.

A Story of the Civil War.

By a Popular Southern Author. Illustrated by F. A. Carter. Handsomely decorated paper cover, 50 cents; bound in cloth, $1.00.

This is a splendid novel of the late war. It deals with the armies and their operations on both sides, and shows the feelings of brothers who crossed swords in the conflict.

A National Book.

THE NEW SOUTH.

By HENRY W. GRADY. With a character sketch of Henry W. Grady by Oliver Dyer, author of "Great Senators." With portrait. 16mo, bound in cloth, uniform with "Great Senators," $1.00.

HOLDEN WITH THE CORDS. 12mo, $1.25.

A Story of Five.

By CHARLOTTE M. HOLLOWAY. 12mo, 447 pages, cloth, $1.25.

A capital story, capitally told, showing how a family of girls supported themselves.

It was a difficult task which the writer set herself, the chronicling of the doings of five girls without the least intrusion of masculinity, and a rigid exclusion of all love-making. It has been remarkably well done.

SALE EXTRAORDINARY!

The Baker Collection of Washington's Books and American Historical and Literary Rarities

WILL BE SOLD FEBRUARY 11 AND 12, 1891,

Commencing at 3 O'clock in the Afternoon and 8 O'clock in the Evening.

THOMAS BIRCH'S SONS, Auctioneers, 1110 Chestnut St., Phila.

This is the most important truly American historical collection that has ever been offered at auction. It embraces the noted collection of books from Gen. George Washington's library, purchased by John R. Baker, Sr., of Phila., at the sale of the Washington Library in 1876, and includes upwards of one hundred volumes, many of them of the utmost historical importance.

A large number of letters and documents written by Gen. George Washington, which were purchased from Mr. Lawrence Washington at the time he was negotiating for the sale of Washington's library.

In the autographic material will be found letters from many of the most prominent Revolutionary characters. We doubt if ever before has been brought together such an array of letters, portraying the heroism and heart-throbs of the men of '76, and it certainly will never occur again, together with the original Journal of Elias Boudinot, 1775 to 1789, Commissary-General of Prisoners under Washington, the original Orderly Book kept by Major Ashley during Washington's campaign on New Jersey, 1780, taking in the treason of Arnold and capture and execution of André.

Under the heading of Americana is included some of the choicest bits of early American history, together with a unique collection of early Bradford, Franklin and other imprints.

The Bibles include the German Edition of 1475, the Bishops' Bible of 1572, the First Edition of the Douay Bible and Rhemes' Testament, and the First Bible in the English Language ever printed in America, called the "Aitken Bible."

The broadsides are the rarest and most interesting issued during the Revolution and the critical time which immediately followed.

The engravings include many of the rarest Engraved Portraits of Washington, as well as of eminent characters who figured in the war of 1776, together with rare views and maps.

In conclusion it need only be said that the catalogue is replete with items that cannot fail to interest the most fastidious collector of rare American history.

Catalogues with upwards of 25 plates. Price, $1.00. Catalogues on fine paper, with extra set of illustrations on plate paper, and list of prices and purchasers, $6.00. A small number only printed.

IMPORTANT NOTICE!

The Grand Collection of Antique Furniture, Fine Oil Paintings and Engravings, Jades and Ivory Carvings, Rare China and Glassware, and the Elegant Private Library, the Most Sumptuous Art-Works, as well as the best editions of the most popular authors, in fine bindings, belonging to John R. Baker, Sr., of Phila., will be sold the latter part of February and the first week in March.

☞ Those desiring Catalogues of the Furniture, Paintings, etc., or of the Library, will address the auctioneers,

THE NEW PRAYER-BOOK.

The Prayer-Book prepared and published by order of the Third Plenary Council of Baltimore, entitled A Manual of Prayers for the Use of the Catholic Laity, is completed. The work of preparation extended over three years, the proof-sheets being sent to every Archbishop and Bishop in the United States for corrections and suggestions. It has been thoroughly read and revised, and all the prayers in it are in accordance with the Catholic Ritual, and is to supersede all Prayer-Books previously published, being the only book authorized by the Hierarchy of the country. It is printed from new type, purchased expressly for it. The initial letters are unique and neat, and the illustrated calendar is something never before attempted in this country. As to correctness of text, we do not think many typographical errors can be found in it. It is printed on the finest paper possible, and is in every way the handsomest Prayer-Book in the English language. It makes a handy volume of 800 pages, and is sold in plain binding at $1.25; other bindings cost according to quality and style up to $25. For a list of prices apply to

HARPER'S MAGAZINE

FOR FEBRUARY.

THIS number excels in the variety and value of its illustrated articles. The frontispiece is a portrait of Edwin Booth, engraved from Sargent's painting at the Players' Club. A novel and entertaining feature of the number is the collection of twelve original drawings (now published for the first time) by W. M. Thackeray, illustrating the "Heroic Adventures of M. Boudin," with comment by Anne Thackeray Ritchie. Two important papers, with numerous illustrations, appear on Finland. Charles Dudley Warner contributes an illustrated article entitled "The Heart of the Desert," describing the valley of the Yosemite, the great desert of New Mexico, and the Grand Cañon of the Colorado. A voyage in southern latitudes through "Smyth's Channel and the Strait of Magellan" is the subject of an entertaining illustrated paper by Theodore Child. Bishop Hurst contributes a paper on "English Writers in India;" L. E. Chittenden an interesting paper of reminiscences entitled "The Faith of President Lincoln;" and Ellen Mackay Hutchinson, a paper on "'Personal Intelligence' Fifty Years Ago." The fiction includes the second part of Charles Egbert Craddock's "In the 'Stranger People's' Country," and short stories by Edward Everett Hale and Geraldine Bonner. The number is rich in poetry, and the Editorial Departments maintain their usual standard of variety and literary excellence.

IMPORTANT NEW BOOKS

Lewis's Elementary Latin Dictionary.

An Elementary Latin Dictionary. By CHARLTON T. LEWIS, author of "A Latin Dictionary for Schools," etc. Small 4to, half leather, $2.00.

"This is substantially an abridgment of Mr. Lewis's 'Latin Dictionary for Schools,' published by Harper & Brothers, 1889. The vocabulary has been extended to include all words used by Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius and Tacitus (in his larger works), as well as those used by Terence, Cæsar, Sallust, Cicero, Livy, Nepos, Vergil, Horace, Ovid, Juvenal, Phædrus and Curtius. On the other hand, space has been saved by the omission of all detailed references to books and passages, only the name of the writer being indicated as authority for each word or phrase; and by limiting the illustrative citations to those which are typical or peculiarly instructive. Proper names, too, have been excluded, except those which, because of peculiarities of form or of their derivations, require special explanation."—From Preface.

Boswell's Life of Johnson.

Including Boswell's Journal of a Tour to the Hebrides, and Johnson's Diary of a Journey into North Wales. Edited by GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., Pembroke College, Oxford. Popular edition. 6 vols., large 8vo, cloth, uncut edges, and gilt tops, with many portraits, views, facsimiles, etc., $10.00.

"Dr. Birkbeck Hill's edition of Boswell may perhaps be regarded as the most scholarly, painstaking, liberal-minded, fair and complete that has yet been published. It is honest work throughout, and careful and loving work, and it is informed by a sanity and ripeness of judgment and illustrated by an extent of information which must place and keep it in the front rank."—N. Y. Tribune.

Viscount Melbourne.

By HENRY DUNCKLEY, LL.D. With portrait. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.00. (The Queen's Prime Ministers Series.)

Dr. Dunckley is a writer who has made a special study of the constitutional questions which presented themselves for settlement at the beginning of the reign of Queen Victoria. His book is written with incisive vigor, and with a complete mastery of the momentous epoch in which Lord Melbourne played so important a part.

Tales from Shakespeare's Comedies.

By CHARLES and MARY LAMB. Edited, with Notes, by WILLIAM J. ROLFE, Litt.D. Illustrated. 16mo, cloth, 50 cents.

Mr. Rolfe has given to this new issue in the series of "English Classics for School Reading," the careful and scholarly editing which is characteristic of all his work, and the volume will prove of value both as a text-book and as a book for the general reader.

NOTES IN SEASON.

JOHN WILEY & SONS have in preparation "The Soldiers' First Aid Handbook," by Capt. Wm D. Dietz, Surgeon U. S. A.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & CO., Philadelphia, announce for early publication a "Systematic Elementary Chemistry," by William Ramsay.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has just ready a volume of reminiscences of the early days of Methodism in this country, and of the late war, etc., by the Rev. Dr. Joseph Cross, under the title of "Days of My Years." Mr. Whittaker will publish shortly a volume of selections from the unpublished writings of the late Bishop of Michigan (Dr. Harris), under the title "Thoughts on Life, Death and Immortality."

HENRY HOLT & CO. have just ready "Told After Supper," a series of brief burlesque ghost-stories by Jerome K. Jerome. Although represented as told in good faith by their narrators, the reader is sometimes let into a hint of realistic explanation which gives the touch of good-natured satire characteristic of the author. The book abounds in humorous illustrations. Henry Altemus, Philadelphia, has also published an edition of the book.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING CO. have just ready an interesting volume by Kate R. Lovell, entitled "Nature's Wonder Workers—short life histories in the insect world." In this book the anthor's aim is to interest the reader in what are called the "useless insects." The information has been carefully collected from the best and latest authorities on entomology, and may be relied upon as far as it goes. She has made an admirable book to put into the hands of the young, to teach them that the most despised creatures that cross their path have their use in the world and should not be wantonly destroyed.

G. W. DILLINGHAM, New York, announces for immediate publication "The Bravest Five Hundred of '61," edited by Brevet Brigadier-General T. F. Rodenbough, U. S. A. Out of the 2,778,304 men enlisted in the Union Army and Navy, 1861–5, a little less than 500 were specially recognized by the War Department, as coming under the Act of Congress, July 12, 1862, for distinguished bravery. These brave men were presented with the United States Medal of Honor, which is justly distinguished as the highest military decoration, being more rare than the Victoria Cross of England, the Iron Cross of Germany, or the Cross of the Legion of Honor of France. The book will be an octavo of over 500 pages with nearly one hundred illustrations. It will be sold by subscription only.

ROBERTS BROTHERS will publish February 10 the following: "Petrarch—his life and works," by May Alden Ward (author of a similar work on Dante), a clear and well-written sketch, in which the subject is considered as the precursor of the Renaissance, and as one of the great triumvirate that created the Italian language and inaugurated its literature; a volume of essays by Joseph Henry Allen, entitled "Positive Religion;" and a volume entitled "Power Through Repose," by Annie Payson Call, who treats of such subjects as training for rest, rest in sleep, the body's guidance, training of the mind, etc. They also announce a new edition of the poems of Emily Dickinson, which have been so successful. The price has been reduced to $1.25, and the drab-and-white edition will be discontinued.

TYPOGRAPHICAL UNION No. 2, of Philadelphia, forwarded a petition to the U. S. Senate, January 24, urging early action on the International Copyright bill. Among other points made in the address is the following: "The Bill in its present shape is in such form as to unite all interests—the writers, the makers and the readers of books; amendments would, therefore, be undesirable, and can but create opposition." Accompanying this petition was a circular containing indorsements of the bill by thirty-seven Typographical Unions, the United Labor League of Philadelphia, the American Federation of Labor, the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, the order of Knights of Labor of America, and fourteen other labor organizations.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which no edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.) D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

A.D. 2050: electrical development at Atlantis; by a former resident of the "Hub." San Francisco, Cal., The Bancroft Co., 1890. c. '90. 3+83 p. D. cl., 75 c.

Suggested by Bellamy's "Looking backward," an imaginative picture of American life in 2050, with all our inventions and discoveries brought to the highest form of development, with vice and misery banished, etc., etc.

Abbott, Austin. New cases selected chiefly from decisions of the courts, with notes; with an analytical index to all points of law and practice and all code citations contained in the standard reports of New York issued during the period covered by this v. V. 25. N. Y., The Diossy Law-Book Co., 1890. c. 4+42+535 p. O. shp., $5.

Armour, J: M. Mercy and the law: its place in the divine government. Bost., Bradley & Woodruff, 1891. 280 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Arthur, T. S. Lessons in life for all who will read them. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 6–215 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1657.) pap., 20 c.

Arthur, T. S. Off-hand sketches, a little dashed with humor. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 5–216 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1658.) pap., 20 c.

Arthur, T. S. Words for the wise. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 5–215 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1652.) pap., 20 c.

Bardeen, C. W. Effect of the college preparatory high school upon attendance and scholarship in the lower grades: a paper read before the department of secondary education of the National Educational Assoc., at St. Paul, Minn., July, 1890. Syracuse, N. Y., C. W. Bardeen, 1890 [1891.] 5 p. D. (Papers on school issues of the day, no. 9.) pap., 15 c.

Bascom, Lee. A god of Gotham: a romance from the life of a well-known actress. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1891. c. '90. 4–277 p. D. pap., 50 c.

The action of the story is in New York. Donita Lorraine, a celebrated actress, is the heroine, and Gordon Grey, a prominent society man, the hero. The theme is the romance of Donita and Gordon. It introduces Mrs. Langtry, the actress, and involves a tragedy. The novel is sensational throughout.

Bates, Harriet True. Two men of the world: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1891 c. 4–344 p. D. pap., 50 c.

A dramatic story, in which the heroine's affections are disputed by two lovers. Her previous history complicates and mystifies in the beginning, but the interest is centred in her action in a crisis where she is forced to decide between Redfern and Fitzgerald, and in the sensational and unexpected denouement.

Beers, H: A. From Chaucer to Tennyson: English literature in 8 chapters, with selections from 30 authors. N. Y., Chautauqua Press, [Hunt & Eaton,] 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 3–313 p. D. (Chautauqua studies, 1890–91.) cl., $1.

Bible. New Testament. The gospel according to St. Luke, being the Greek text, as revised by Brooke Foss Westcott and Fenton J: Ant. Hort; with introd. and notes by Rev. J: Bond. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 17+164 p. 16°, cl., 65 c.

Bible. New Testament. The great discourse of Jesus the Christ, the Son of God: a topical arrangement and analysis of all his words recorded in the New Testament, separated from the context. N. Y., A. D. F. Randolph & Co., [1891.] c. '90. 29+361 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The compiler, who in middle life found himself without a creed and deeply antagonistic to organic Christianity as manifested in the Church, made an earnest study of the words of Jesus himself. These words of Christ, taken verbatim from the gospels, he has arranged under various topical headings, giving chapter and verse of the text of the Old Version. Every subject relating to man's affection, duty, responsibility and relations with his fellowmen is thus presented in the words of Christ only. The idea is original and interestingly worked out. The volume is technically a fine piece of bookmaking.

Bible. Scripture selections for daily reading: a portion of the Bible for every day in the year; comp. by Jesse L. Hurlbut, D.D. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1891. c. '90. 13+433 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Birnbaum, Max. Prof. Koch's method to cure tuberculosis popularly treated; from the German by Fr. Brendecke; with an appendix; being Prof. Koch's first communication on the subject, from the Deutsche Medicinische Wochenschrift, and explanatory notes by the author. Milwaukee, Wis., H. E. Haferkorn, 1891. c. '90. 1+27 p. D. cl., $1; pap., 75 c.

Campbell, Helen. Anne Bradstreet and her time. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1891.] c. '91. 8+373 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The biography of Anne Bradstreet introduces to American readers the earliest of the women-writers of America. It is a somewhat remarkable life-story capitally told. It is, as the author says, "the story of one woman who, in the midst of obstacles that might easily have daunted a far stouter soul, spoke such words as her limitations allowed."

Carleton, W: Shane Fadh's wedding, and other stories. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 2–110 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1652.) pap., n. p.

Charlie Scott; or, there's time enough. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1891. 80 p. il. 16°, cl., 30 c.

Cheever, G: B., D.D. Memorabilia of George B. Cheever, D.D., late pastor of the church of the Puritans, Union Square, New York, and of his wife, Elizabeth Wetmore Cheever, in verse and prose. N. Y., J: Wiley & Sons, 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 29+361+72 p. D. cl., $2.

George Barrell Cheever was born in Hallowell, Me., April 17, 1807; he died at Englewood, N. J., Oct. 1890. Dr. Cheever had a reputation not only as a great preacher, but as a writer on an infinity of subjects, and as a hymnologist. He was a great anti-slavery man, his bold preachings on this subject exposing him to persecutions. This volume gives an account of his life and writings, embraces some of his poems and hymns, and includes the funeral address, etc.

Child-hunters (The): by a friend of Italy. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 6–188 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1630.) pap., 20 c.

Comfort, Lucy Randall. The widowed bride; or, the mystery of Glenhampton. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1891.] c. '90. 4–221 p. D. (Select ser., no. 75.) pap., 25 c.

Cross, Jos., D.D. Days of my years. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1891. c. '90. 5+319 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author of "Old wine and new," "Alone with God" and other books relates the events of his varied life. He completed his 77th year on the 4th of July, 1890, hence has witnessed the great historical episodes of the present century. As a minister of the Methodist Church who has preached all over the United States, and ministered to the spiritual welfare of the prisoners and the sick in hospitals during the late war, he has much to tell.

Culverwell, E: P. Elementary mechanics. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 12+138 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Cupid's dream-book for ladies and gentlemen; containing instructions for the interpretation of dreams; with a dictionary of dreams. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1891.] c. '90. 4–65 p. O. (S. & S. manual lib., no. 18.) pap., 10 c.

Dallas, Mary Kyle. The Grinder papers; being the adventures of Miss Charity Grinder, wherein are detailed her numerous hairbreadth escapes and wonderful adventures while on a visit to New York from the country. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1891.] c. '90. 6–339 p. D. (Select ser., no. 74.) pap., 25 c.

Dreyer, J. L. E. Tycho Brake: a picture of scientific life and work in the sixteenth century. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 16+405 p. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Drinkwater, Jennie M. Second best. Bost., Bradley & Woodruff, 1891. 360 p. 12°, cl., $1.50.

Dumas, Alexandre, (fils.) Camille; a new tr. with a new preface by the author. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1891.] 4–216 p. D. (Sea and shore ser., no. 27.) pap., 25 c.

Dunckley, H: Viscount Melbourne. N. Y., Harper, 1891. 8°. (The queen's prime ministers' ser.) cl., $1.

Edersheim, Alfred, D.D. Tohu-Va-Vohu ("Without form and void"); a collection of fragmentary thoughts and criticisms, ed. with a memoir by Ella Edersheim. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 22+152 p. por. 12°, vellum, $2.

French, L. Virginia. My roses: the romance of a June day. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 12–278 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1633.) pap., 20 c.

Gallewey, Sir Ralph Payne. Letters to young shooters. First ser., On the choice and use of a gun. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 10+264 p. 8°, cl., $2.50.

Garland, Rev. G. W. The practical teaching of the Apocalypse. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 10+498 p. 8°, cl., $5.

Gay, Eben H. Municipal bonds: a consideration of the various classes of municipal bonds, railroad bonds, water company bonds and farm mortgages: with a comparison of their relative security. Bost., Damrell & Upham, 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 2–43 p. 12°, pap., 50 c.

Gerard, E. and D., [Emily de Laszowska and Dorothea Gerard.] A sensitive plant. N. Y., Appleton, 1891. 5+422 p. D. (Appleton's town and country lib., no. 66.) cl., 75 c.; pap., 50 c.

Chiefly a character study of a lovely young Scotch girl. Her sensitive, shrinking nature causes her great unhappiness in the rough contact of life, and is often the cause of great unhappiness to others. The background is Scotland for a time—then Italy. There are a couple of love-stories and the usual complications, but all freshly worked out.

Gilchrist, R. Murray. Passion the plaything: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 2-207 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1703.) pap., n. p.

Glimpses of pilgrim Plymouth. Plymouth, Mass., A. S. Burbank, [1891.] c. '90. no paging, il. obl. D. cl., $1.75.

Views in photogravure, from photographs and paintings, showing the Plymouth of 1620 and the Plymouth of to-day; these are accompanied with extracts of descriptive history, which add to the interest of the pictures.

Goethe, J: W. von. Faust: a tragedy; tr. into English verse, with notes and prelimi nary remarks by J: Stuart Blackie. 2d ed. rev. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 77+296 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Graham, W: Socialism new and old. N. Y., Appleton, 1891. 53+416 p. D. (International scientific ser., no. 68.) cl., $1.75.

"The object of this book is, in the first place, to give an account of contemporary socialism, its forms and aims, its origins, and the causes of its appearance and spread. Secondly, to examine how far, taking the most reasonable form of it, it is desirable or practicable. Thirdly, to set forth certain measures of a socialistic character that would seem both beneficial and necessary as supplements to the present system, to adopt which there is a spontaneous tendency on the part of the state, and to which the course of the industrial and social evolution seems to point."—Introduction.

Lewis, Charlton T. An elementary Latin dictionary. N. Y., Harper, 1891. c. '90. 4+952 p. O. hf. leath., $2.

This is substantially an abridgment of Mr. Lewis' "Latin dictionary for schools." The vocabulary has been extended to include all words used by Catullus, Tibullus, Propertius and Tacitus (in his larger works), as well as those used by Terence, Cæsar, Sallust, Cicero, Livy, Nepos, Vergil, Horace, Ovid, Juvenal, Phædrus and Curtius. On the other hand, space has been saved by the omission of all detailed references to books and passages, only the name of the writer being indicated as authority for each word or phrase; and by limiting the illustrative citations to those which are typical or peculiarly instructive. Proper names, too, have been excluded, except those which, because of peculiarities of form or of their derivations, require special explanation.

Norton, C: Ledyard. A handbook of Florida. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. c. 32+380 p. map, S. cl., $1.25.

The first section of the handbook is devoted to sketches of the several counties, with maps compiled from the best attainable authorities. In the context the different railroad lines crossing the counties are given, with tables of stations and distances, so that, if desired, the different routes can be followed from county to county. In the other sections travelling routes are described in general and in detail. The general plan divides the state into five sections, as follows: The Atlantic coast; The gulf coast; Middle or Inland Florida; Sub-tropical Florida; West Florida. Much information of value to intending settlers, as well as to tourists, will be found throughout the volume.

Reid, T. Wemyss. The life, letters and friendships of Richard Monckton Milnes, first Lord Houghton; introd. by R: H: Stoddard. N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., [1891.] c. 2 v., 20+527; 6+544 p. por. O. cl., $5.

Almost fifty years of English life, in society, literature, politics or courts, is covered by these two handsome volumes. Lord Houghton's acquaintances and friendships included nearly every well-known man or woman of his time. From Wordsworth to Lord Tennyson and down to the youngest living author, he touched the life of this century. He left thirty thousand letters, which Mr. Reid has judiciously culled. The volumes embrace letters from Matthew Arnold, John Bright, Lord Brougham, Mrs. Carlyle, Gladstone, Guizot, Motley, Dean Stanley, Kinglake and many others equally as famous.

Eleven "dreams" entitled The lost joy; The hunter (from The story of an African farm); The gardens of pleasure; In a far-off world; Three dreams in a desert; A dream of wild bees (written as a letter to a friend); In a ruined chapel; Life's gifts. The artist's secret; I thought as I stood; and The sunlight lay across my bed. The author shows her old fearlessness in dealing with the deep problems, joys and sorrows of life. Her style is severely simple and her thoughts exquisitely poetic.

Secret mission (A): a novel. N. Y., Harper, 1891. 3+237 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new series, no. 690.) pap., 40 c.

In 1887 Roman Starowolski, a Pole by birth, undertakes in the interest of Germany, a politic and diplomatic mission, which involves affairs between that country and Russia. This is the theme. The events are the sojourn of Starowolski in Poland, his two love-affairs, an arrest, Roman's self-renunciation, and a tragic incident that occurs in Siberia.

In racing parlance, a reckless gambler is termed a "plunger." This fitting appellation is bestowed upon Rob. Gauntlett, when the story opens in Kent Saxham. The interest begins when Rob. enters Bobadil for the Cæsarwich. In the results of this race are involved the fate of a pair of lovers, the fortune of a young man, the life of Squire Wrexford and the guilt or innocence of Barnes, Shelton and Dick the Raven.

Sophocles. Plays and fragments; with critical notes, commentary and translation in English prose by R. C. Jebb. Pt. 4, The Philoctetes. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 67+267 p. 8°, cl., $3.50.

Struss, H: W. Ring-riding: being a collection of movements and commands, designed for the use of riding schools and riding-clubs. N. Y., Appleton, 1891. c. 3-139 p. O. cl., $2.

Contains much valuable instruction, and many hints about riding. As far as applied to classes, its chief and peculiar value lies in the plates with which the book is illustrated, showing the different movements that can be executed by a company of riders. Beginning with the simple movements, the plates gradually lead to the more complex, all being fully explained in the text. Suitable commands are also given, and at the same time repetition is avoided as much as possible.

Sturgis, Julian. Comedy of a country house: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 2-202 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1717.) pap., 20 c.

Swan, Annie S., [Mrs. Burnett-Smith.] Maitland of Laurieston: a family history. Cin., O., Cranston & Stowe, 1891. 4-447 p. por. il. D. cl., $1.

Maitland of Laurieston was a sturdy Scotch yeoman, extremely narrow and rigid in his religious views. This led to misunderstanding and dissension in his family, and finally was the partial cause of John Maitland renouncing the religion of his forefathers. The story tells of John's marriage with Agnes Laurie, of the bearing of this step upon the question, and how the vexed theological problem was solved.

Taylor, T: The Eleusinian and Bacchic mysteries: a dissertation; ed. with introd., notes, emendations and glossary by Alexander Wilder, M.D.; il. by A. L. Rawson. 4th ed. N. Y., J. W. Bouton, 1891. c. '91. 5-258 p. O. (Bouton's archaic lib., no. 1.) cl., $5.

This new edition of Taylor's work, which is a classic in its way, is made the initial volume in a new series. It is handsomely printed and bound, and will be welcomed in its new shape by students of occult science, mystics, etc.

Tolstoï, Count Lyof N. Two generations. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4-104 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1073.) pap., n. p.

Valdés, Don Armando Palacio. Scum; [from the Spanish; with an introd. by Edmund Gosse.] N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 8+346 p. D. (Lovell's series of foreign literature, no. 9.) pap., 50 c.

La Espuma is the Spanish title of this, the latest of Valdés' novels. It is a realistic picture of the frothy surface of fashionable life in Madrid. Clementina de Osorio, a beautiful woman approaching forty, married to a man of great wealth, is the heroine. She is utterly unprincipled and vulgar—her successive amours being the theme of the novel. The character sketches are remarkably strong. They represent Spanish types of the better class, mostly rich in vice and selfishness.

EXPERT TESTIMONY FOR THE "CHRISTMAS BOOKSHELF."

IN an article devoted to booksellers' lists and Christmas catalogues received by the Börsenblatt, the following encouraging words are spoken for the "Christmas Bookshelf:" "The German book trade always gains specially valuable information from foreign catalogues, which generally offer many new and original features. 'The Christmas Bookshelf' (being the Christmas number of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY), just received, is noticeable in many respects. It is distinguished for the variety of its matter, but above all for the neatness and clearness of its typography. Every page is equally effective through the restful simplicity of its beautiful antique type; the eye is not disturbed by kaleidoscopic effects of the varieties of type often used in German catalogues. Clear woodcuts, many of them of exceptional artistic beauty, brighten the text; but we are specially charmed by the large number of process cuts, reproduced with softness and clearness, of which some are really works of art."

The article then speaks of the Christmas Catalogue of the Paris Journal de l'imprimerie et de la librairie, which this year was the largest of the catalogues received by the Börsenblatt, containing an unusual amount of text and illustrations, and goes on to say: "But compared with the neatness and finish of its American contemporary the 'Christmas Bookshelf,'" the "Livres d'Etrennes pour l'année 1890" cannot hold its hitherto undisputed position. It is noticeably lacking in the happy selection of woodcuts and the quality of their printing. Its cover also is hardly up to the standard of modern artistic taste."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE New York Star, after a fitful existence of twenty-three years, has passed into the hands of Frank A. Munsey, proprietor of Munsey's Weekly, The Argosy and a publishing house, who will change its name to The Daily Continent.

THE London Publishers' Circular has definitely adopted the quarto form, and will hereafter be published weekly instead of fortnightly. The Circular was established in 1837, and for forty years conducted by the late Mr. Sampson Low.

THE STATE AS A PUBLISHER OF TEXT-BOOKS.

PERIODICALLY one of our legislators, either spontaneously or through pressure on the part of a portion of his constituency, feels called upon to attack the text-book question as it stands. In New York State, as elsewhere, the most utopian propositions have in the past been advanced on the subject of a more economical method of providing text-books for the public schools, only to find their way at last into the waste-paper basket. The present movement in the New York Legislature wishes to direct the Regents of the University to publish text-books to be sold at actual cost price to the schools of the State. It also proposes that these text-books should be prepared under the direction of the Regents, on reading, spelling, arithmetic, geography, grammar, United States history, civil government, physiology and physical geography. In other words, all ordinary school subjects, and some others, would thus be covered by the new scheme. Strangely enough, no provision seems to have been made to make the use of these text-books obligatory on the teachers of every public educational institution in the State. But, even if there had been such a provision, it is doubtful whether it could eventually be enforced without repealing a large number of local laws, and for a considerable time throwing the business of teaching into utter confusion.

However necessary a reform in the system of supplying text-books may be—and we are not so blind to the defects of the present system as to hold for one moment that it is a model one—we have no reason to retreat from the position we have hitherto held in the matter of the State as a manufacturer of text-books. The State cannot, and never can be in the position to, make a text-book that can compete with one produced by private enterprise. Not that the State might not command the intellect necessary for the purpose, but for the reason that the office would, in a short time, become tainted with the bane that has made the present method of supply objectionable in many respects—namely, politics. The safeguard, or at any rate one element of safety, in the present system of private enterprise is the possibility of competition. Such a factor would never enter into a State institution—at any rate not for generations to come.

Mr. Dewey, the Secretary to the Regents, as will be noticed elsewhere, also points out the serious evil which, from the educationist's point of view, must arise in this as in all other illegitimate interference on the part of the State with private enterprise. "Certainly," he says, "it would be a mistake, educationally, to adopt a policy that would prevent the best teachers from trying to improve upon existing text-books, and the present bill would need amendment to guard against this evil."

DUTY ON OLD BOOKS IN NEW BINDINGS.

A SHIPMENT of books recently made to a Boston firm was adjudged by the customs authorities as liable to duty—not that the books came within the twenty years' limit, but because they had been newly bound. It is said that the consignees mean to fight this decision. It certainly seems a very far-fetched and unjust one. The law clearly says that books printed in England over twenty years ago are not dutiable. Had the customs officers assessed the new binding at its value and called for duty to that amount, there would be reason in the proceeding. A binding is merely an attachment of the book, and as much distinct from it as the clothes of a man are from himself.

If this ruling is upheld it will strike a serious blow at the importation of rare books in sumptuous bindings, without benefiting anybody whatever, unless, perhaps, there are some juvenile Bedfords, Zaehnsdorfs or Rivieres practising their infant industries in some hidden recesses of the Hub. But seriously is it not time that such exasperating restraints were done away with?

PENDING the decision as to the course of action to be taken on the closure rule and the Election bill, the Republican Caucus Committee of the Senate has decided to recommend a partial order of business for the next week or two. The Apportionment bill is to come first, then the Eight-hour Labor bill, and then the International Copyright bill. As the Senate will hereafter meet at 11 o'clock instead of noon, as at present, and the morning business will be limited to one hour, it is the expectation of the committee that rapid progress will be made in the consideration of the measures selected by them. At any rate, it seems reasonable to hope that before many weeks the Copyright bill will be passed.

BRANDING FOREIGN GOODS—A RECENT CUSTOMS DECISION.

On December 2, 1890, the Secretary of the Treasury issued a circular letter to the "offices of the Customs and others concerned," of which the following is a copy:

"Section 6 of the Act of October 1, 1890, provides as follows:

"That on and after the first day of March, 1891, all articles of foreign manufacture, such as are usually and ordinarily marked, stamped, branded or labelled, and all packages containing such or other imported articles, shall, respectively, be plainly marked, stamped, branded or labelled in legible English words, so as to indicate the country of their origin; and unless so marked, stamped, branded or labelled they shall not be admitted to entry.

"While the question as to whether goods imported on and after March 1, 1891, are properly marked, stamped, 'branded or labeled' under the above provision is to be decided by collectors of customs at the time of information, and the language of the section is so plain as to hardly require an interpretation by the Department, yet in view of the great number of inquiries received from importers and others, it is deemed proper to publish some of the conclusions reached by the Department in the premises for the information of all concerned."

Then follow twenty-two "conclusions," of which the following only have interest to our readers:

"1. While only such goods or articles of foreign manufacture 'as are usually or ordinarily marked, stamped, branded or labelled' are required to be so marked, etc., on and after the first of March, 1891, yet it will be observed that all packages, outside or other, containing any imported merchandise must be so marked, etc., to entitle the contents thereof to entry in the Custom House.

"14. Articles and packages may be marked either by stamping, branding or labelling, as the party may choose.

"15. In the case of pencils, steel pens, toothbrushes, licorice sticks, common crockery, etc., the law will be complied with if the cartons and packages containing the same are marked.

"17. Unmanufactured substances need not be marked, but whenever contained in packages, the packages should be marked.

"18. The law does not require the name of the importer, shipper, or maker to be marked or stamped on imported articles or packages.

"19. Marking by stencilling with some indelible material would be a compliance with the law.

"20. It is held that the word 'Scotch' appearing on goods coming from Scotland would be sufficient under said provision."

In reference to the foregoing Messrs. E. Steiger & Co. and a number of other importers of books, etc., addressed the following to Secretary Windom:

New York, January 1, 1891.

Hon. William Windom, Secretary of the Treasury.

Sir: Referring to your Circular of Dec. 20, 1891, concerning the marking, stamping, branding or labelling of "all articles of foreign manufacture, such as are usually or ordinarily marked, stamped, branded or labelled," the undersigned importers of foreign newspapers, books, etc., beg to express their belief that newspapers, periodicals,

pamphlets,
books,
maps and charts,
engravings, sheet music,
and other printed matter,

are not considered to come under the term articles . . . usually or ordinarily marked, stamped, branded or labelled, but that the Department will hold that marking the outside packages (the cases or bales in which such printed matter is packed) with the name of the country of origin is a substantial compliance with Section 6 of the Act of October 1, 1890, in accordance with the explanations in §§ 1, 2, 3, 4, etc., of the Circular of December 20, 1890.

The undersigned beg to refer to the fact that almost all of the bales or cases which they are receiving contain hundreds of different numbers of newspapers, periodicals, pamphlets, books, etc., which it would be impracticable or next to impossible to have separately stamped or labelled —whilst, moreover, these goods generally all bear the firm-name and address of the foreign publisher and printer. On the other hand such goods are not "usually or ordinarily marked, stamped, branded or labelled."

The fear that such imported printed matter might be intended to pass as American manufacture, cannot be entertained.

While for these reasons and others which we hesitate here to express, we are confident that the Department will consider the marking of the outside packages (cases and bales) of printed matter, a substantial and sufficient compliance with the law, we respectfully request that this be expressly declared at an early day, lest officers of the customs and others might be of different opinion, to the injury of importers.

Very respectfully,

To this the Secretary of the Treasury sent the following reply:

THE NEW YORK STATE SCHOOL-BOOK BILL.

ASSEMBLYMAN KEELER has introduced in the Legislature a bill which directs the Regents of the University to have compiled and to publish, for sale at cost to the schools of the State, text-books in reading, spelling, arithmetic, geography, grammar, United States history, civil government, physiology and physical geography.

In answer to an inquiry as to the proposed law, Melvil Dewey, Secretary of the Board of Regents, said: "This bill was drawn without any consultation or knowledge on the part of the Regents or any of their staff. While four of the books named belong with the high-school studies and so are in the Regents' department, the matter of State school-books is almost wholly a question of the common schools, with which the Regents have nothing to do. Somewhat similar bills have been introduced heretofore, but this office has had nothing to do either with favoring or opposing them. I have never heard any opinion expressed by the Regents, either as a body or individually, and probably none will be expressed on the present bill."

When asked as to his personal judgment, the Secretary said: "I believe that all in the office are in favor of free text-books, and of any practical measure that will lessen the burdens of giving a good education to the large families of the poor. But this bill as now drawn does no make text-books free, although it would doubtless greatly reduce their cost. Its provision that new text-books must be compiled seems to me a very unwise one, for I have no doubt that better books could be secured for less money in many cases by buying the copyright, or, possibly, buying the manufactured books. Certainly the bill should allow whoever has charge of its execution to secure, for the use of the schools, the best possible books at the least possible cost.

"It also seems objectionable to compel schools to use the State books if they prefer to pay a higher price for text-books that they esteem to be better suited to their wants. If the State books were really good, and were furnished, as it is claimed they could be, at less than half the present cost, it would seem that all practical requirements would be met by allowing each town or city the privilege of having these good books at low cost if they wished.

"Certainly, it would be a mistake educationally to adopt a policy that would prevent the best teachers from trying to improve upon existing text-books, and the present bill would need amendment to guard against this evil. I am aware that there is a very strong sentiment, especially in the country districts, in favor of reducing to the lowest point the cost of school-books, and that the present bill seems to promise material relief in this important direction, but there are also grave arguments on the other side, so that we in the office are not prepared to say that we are either for or against State action in the matter. As it concerns the Superintendent of Public Instruction much more closely than it does us, we are inclined to leave the whole matter to his department."

THE UNITED STATES BOOK CO. AGENTS FOR THE BELFORD CO.

THE UNITED STATES BOOK CO., beginning with January 31, become the sole agents for the sale to the trade of the publications of the Belford Company, of New York. That is, with the exception of Belford's Magazine and the subscription-books published by the Belford Co., the United States Book Co. will hereafter supply all the books formerly published by the Belford Co., and those which they are yet to issue—provided they continue publishing. There is no official explanation of the change further than the following communications:

N. Y., January 31, 1891.

To the Trade:

We have appointed the United States Book Company sole agents for the sale of our publications to the trade, and from this date all orders will be turned over to them, where they will receive prompt attention.

BELFORD COMPANY, New York.

To the Trade:

We have this day been appointed sole agents for the sale to the trade, of the publications of Belford Company, of New York. We are now preparing a complete catalogue and order list of these books, which will shortly be ready for distribution. All orders will receive prompt attention.

UNITED STATES BOOK COMPANY.

PICK-UPS.

SURE TO CONVICT.—"Did you read over the proofs of my novel?" "Yes." "Well?" "They are damning."—N. Y. Sun.

A GREAT WORK.—"I see that a Japanese author has written a book in 100 volumes." "What is the book—a 'Life of Lincoln,' or a 'History of the Civil War'?"—Puck.

OBITUARY.

GEORGE BANCROFT.

THE death of George Bancroft at Washington, January 17, closes an epoch in American literature. He was the last survivor of that brilliant group of prose writers, including Irving, Cooper, Prescott and Hawthorne, who made the fourth and fifth decades of the nineteenth century illustrious with strong creative work. Like the greater part of American writers of distinction, he was of Puritan ancestry and came from New England. He undoubtedly inherited from his father, the Rev. Dr. Aaron Bancroft, his scholarly tastes, his earnest patriotism, and his liberal views on all social topics. George Bancroft was born at Worcester, Mass., October 3, 1800. His father's library was his playground, and under his father's guidance he developed mentally so early that he was ready to enter Harvard College in 1813. He graduated in 1817, and went to Germany, to devote some years to wider culture before settling down to the study of theology.

Instead of confining himself to a single university he resided for a considerable time first at Göttingen, where he graduated as Doctor of Philosophy in 1820, and afterward at Berlin. Among his teachers at Göttingen were Eichhorn and Blumenbach, but the one who made the greatest impression upon his future career was the venerable historian Heeren, whose principal works he subsequently translated. At Berlin he added to his earlier achievements a course of Oriental languages and Biblical interpretations, and enjoyed the personal acquaintance of Schleiermacher, Wilhelm von Humboldt, Savigny, Lappenberg and other eminent scholars and statesmen.

Returning to the United States in 1822 he taught Greek for a year in Harvard College, and then, with Dr. Joseph Green Cogswell, established the celebrated Round Hill school at Northampton, Mass., which was the pioneer in a better system and more extended course of modern classical training in America. Although Mr. Bancroft studied theology and even preached several sermons, his educational and historical impulses proved the stronger, and he soon devoted himself to literary work. In 1830 he withdrew from his school and began his "History of the United States," the first volume of which was published in 1834 by Little, Brown & Co., and two more volumes before 1840, bringing the history down to 1748. Having completed this distinct period of his work, Mr. Bancroft rested by devoting himself heart and soul to public affairs, and for twelve years occupied many important political positions, notably that of Minister to England under President Polk. On his return to America, Mr. Bancroft settled down in New York City and worked uninterruptedly at his history, and published five more volumes before 1860. Here he paused again for six years and devoted himself to national politics during the critical period of the Civil War. The twelfth and concluding volumes of his great lifework appeared in 1882. A complete revised edition was issued in 1885 by D. Appleton & Co.

Mr. Bancroft's other contributions to literature do not make an extensive list. Besides the translation of Heeren's work and a volume of translations from Goethe, Schiller and other poets living while he studied in Germany, Mr. Bancroft published "An Oration Delivered on the Fourth of July, 1826, at Northampton, Mass.;" "An Oration Delivered before the Democracy of Springfield and Neighboring Towns, July 4, 1836;" a "History of the Colonization of the United States" (Boston, 1841); "An Oration Delivered at the Commemoration in Washington of the Death of Andrew Jackson, June 27, 1845;" "The Necessity, the Reality and the Promise of the Progress of the Human Race;" "An Oration Delivered Before the New York Historical Society, Nov. 20, 1854;" "Proceedings of the First Assembly of Virginia, Communicated with an Introductory Note;" "Collections of the New York Historical Society," Second Series, Volume III., Part 1; "Literary and Historical Miscellanies;" "Memorial Address on the Life and Character of Abraham Lincoln," delivered before Congress in 1866; "A Plea for the Constitution of the United States of America Wounded in the House of its Guardians" (1886), a biography of Jonathan Edwards in the American Cyclopedia, and a "Life of Martin Van Buren" (1889). Mr. Bancroft had been long engaged on a biography of James K. Polk, having in his possession, among other papers, an extended diary kept by Polk during his Presidential term. Mr. Bancroft had lived permanently in Washington since about 1875. His life was remarkably eventful in a quiet way. It was full of inspiring activities and diversified beyond measure.

WESLEY REDHEAD.

WESLEY REDHEAD, the senior member of Redhead, Norton, Lathrop & Co., of Des Moines, Ia., whose death on the 9th inst. was recorded in our issue for January 17, was born near Penrith, England, July 22, 1825. His father was Nicholas Redhead, and his mother's maiden name was Sarah Clark. His father was a merchant in his native place, and in 1829, when Wesley was 4 years old, emigrated to Montreal, Canada, where he engaged in the same business. His parents both died in 1831, leaving a family. Two of the sons, Wesley and the next oldest, went to Cincinnati Ohio, to live with an uncle. There he learned the printer's trade and began that career of industry which was unbroken, except by illness, up to his death. He was a newsboy, too, one of the first in the West. When he was 14 he was sent to Fairfield, Vermont, to live with his eldest brother, but he ran away in a few weeks and drove horses on a canal. Two more years he worked at various employments, hiring out on farms and as cabin boy on a steamboat. In September, 1844, this latter business took him to Iowa and he landed at Bloomington (now Muscatine) with the intention of visiting a brother at Iowa City. There he worked a year at $3 a week in a newspaper office and then learned the tailor's trade, at which business he worked as journeyman until 1851, when, wanting to start in business for himself, being then 26 years old, he went to Fort Des Moines. There he remained until his death. He soon made many friends, and in 1853 was recommended to President Fillmore for appointment to the postmastership of Des Moines. That office he held for nine years. While acting as postmaster he opened a bookstore, one of the first in the State, being the fourth started in Iowa, and ever since his name has been connected with that business. From a trade of $5 a week it grew to be probably the largest wholesale business of the kind in Iowa. For a long time Mr. R. T. Wellslager was associated with him, but about six years ago Mr. Wellslager retired and a change was made, the firm becoming Redhead, Norton, Lathrop & Co.

Mr. Redhead was a man of great energy, marked business ability and strong principles. In his long business career he had been remarkably successful, and had accumulated a large fortune. For a number of years past he gave no personal attention to his book business, his time being occupied with other matters, as he was engaged in many enterprises. He was, in fact, a leader in every public-spirited movement in his city. In 1851 he married Miss Isabel Clark, of Iowa City, and lived with her seven years. In 1858 she died, leaving no children. Two years later he married Miss Annie Seymour, who with four children survives him.

CHARLES TABER CONGDON, for many years an editorial writer on the New York Tribune, died at his home in New York City on the 18th inst. He was nearly seventy years old, having been born in New Bedford, Mass., April 7, 1821. He contributed frequently to the leading magazines, and in 1880 published in book form his "Reminiscences of a Journalist," a series of articles first written for the Tribune.

CHARLES HENRY LUDERS, the young poet, died January 21, in the University Hospital at Philadelphia, where he was undergoing special treatment of the Koch lymph. Mr. Luders was well known throughout the United States and was thirty-three years of age. He was a native of Philadelphia, but prior to 1872 lived with his family at Olney, Ill. About a year ago he fell a victim to la grippe, and that disease left him with developed symptoms of consumption.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

As was to be expected, the recent high-priced sale at Philadelphia of Washington MSS. and relics is bringing a crowd of such material into the market. Next month Messrs. Birch have a sale, which in many respects is far richer and more interesting than their last one. Prices, it is pretty safe to say, will not be any lower, so that buyers at the last sale need not feel discouraged. The catalogue is charmingly gotten up.

THE sale of the Lakeland Library at Sotheby's in March next promises to be an interesting one. The library contains, among other rare books, the famous "Boccaccio," the struggle for the possession of a copy of which Dibdin has rendered historic. Also in the catalogue I notice a pack of cards printed before 1500, and discovered hidden away in the covers of an old book by Dr. Stukeley; some rare quarto editions of Shakespeare's plays, besides a copy, unfortunately imperfect, of the 1594 "Lucrece." Then again worthy of mention is the Dante of 1481 with the weird and terrible Botticelli illustrations. This copy sold for £380 at the Hamilton Palace sale. The catalogue is full of rare and curious items.

MR. JOHN GALWEY, a London dealer, writes to the Publishers' Circular with reference to that clause of the McKinley Bill which has the effect of rendering even old books when "newly bound" amenable to duty. He says: "I do not foresee that it will much affect the sale of hitherto non-dutiable books in the States even when recently bound. The duty will simply come out of the pockets of the purchaser." Quite so! dear sir, and when the purchaser finds that in addition to the cost of a book he is compelled to pay 25% more, because the English bookseller has chosen to put a new binding upon it I suppose that it will very much "affect the sale of hitherto non-dutiable books," which is bad for us and bad for you.

THE sale of the Leffingwell collection, or rather the first half of it, was a great success. The total amount realized was about $23,000. This for thirty-three hundred items was a very high average.

THE whole old-book trade seems agreed there is not opportunity enough in New York to buy stock. There is practically only one salesroom at work, and outside sales seldom occur. There is ample room in New York for at least two more book auctioneers, and good support would be afforded by the trade both in buying and selling. Another firm that would meet the trade in a fair and liberal spirit would have at present an excellent opportunity to do a large and lucrative business.

THE chair of Sir Walter Scott, given by him to Landseer, the painter, and sold with Landseer's other effects in London, and recently offered for sale by J. W. Bouton, has been bought by Francis Wilson, the musical comedian.

THE death of Mr. Thomas Kerslake, of Bristol, England, removes from the scene one of England's oldest, most intelligent and astute dealers. He could have told many a story of strange adventure in book hunting over the United Kingdom. Many rare prizes were picked up by him at country auctions at ridiculous prices. Some thirty years ago when Hayes, of Manchester, Kerslake, of Bristol, Suckling (Messrs. Sotheran), of London, and a few other old-timers, were regular rounders at the country auctions, was the golden age of bargain-buying. And there were "knock-outs" in those days.

"IONICA," that scarce little volume of poems by an "Eton Master," is reprinted in its original shape. Twenty-five dollars has been often paid for a copy of the first edition.

MR. QUARITCH proposes to issue a dictionary of English book collectors from the earliest times to the present. It will give the chief dates and facts of each collector's life, some particulars of the more important works which he collected, and a brief account of the fate that overtook his library after his death. BIBLIOPHILUS.

BUSINESS NOTES

ASHLAND, O.—Geo. H. Ames, bookseller, has sold out.

CHEYENNE, WY.—Geo. L. Holt, bookseller, has sold out.

DENVER, COL.—Mary Ahern, senior partner of Ahern & O'Keefe, is dead.

DIXON, ILL.—J. C. Mead, bookseller, has sold out.

MONTROSE, CAL.—Hanley & Co., booksellers, are reported burned out.

PARIS, KY.—Thomas F. Roche, bookseller, is dead.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—Faulkner & Allen, dealers in subscription-books, Philadelphia, Pa., it is reported, have assigned.

PHILADELPHIA, PA.—The Keystone Publishing Co. has removed to Eighth and Locust Streets.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.—At a meeting of the creditors of J. C. Eyrich at the Stationers' Board of Trade, N. Y., the following motions were adopted: First—"It be the sense of this meeting that we believe the best interests of creditors will be served by granting to the debtors the respite of one, two and three years." Second—"That the creditors appoint F. F. Hansell, of F. F. Hansell & Brother, New Orleans, La., their agent to vote for them, in their name, giving to said Eyrich the respite asked for." A number of creditors were represented at the meeting, and it seemed to be the unanimous wish that other creditors extend to Eyrich all the help possible, so that he might continue in business, as in their opinion, if assets were closed out through insolvency proceedings, creditors would not realize more than twenty-five per cent. after paying all expenses.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

BOWEN & SON, Springfield, Mass., have bought of Clark W. Bryan, the original publishers, all interest in the edition and plates of "Massachusetts in the War, 1861–1865," by James L. Bowen, with an introduction by Hon. H. L. Dawes, and will hereafter publish the work at a reduced price.

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish at once the first volume of a series of Studies in Christian Biography devoted to workers and thinkers of the Church in ancient, mediæval and modern times. The first volume will contain sketches of St. Augustine and St. Chrysostom by Philip Schaff, D.D.

BENJ. R. TUCKER, Boston, has just ready "Church and State," a new volume of essays on social problems, by Count Leo Tolstoi, translated directly from Tolstoi's manuscript. It was written several years ago, but has thus far been kept in manuscript. It is said to be an assault upon both Church and State from the standpoint of Christ's teachings.

CHARLES E. MERRILL & CO. have just issued the first two volumes of the authorized American edition of Ruskin's works, which comes from the press of George Allen, Mr. Ruskin's publisher. These volumes are "The Seven Lamps of Architecture" and "The Two Paths." To each work Prof. Charles Eliot Norton contributes an introduction.

RUDYARD KIPLING, after having delivered his story, "The Light that Failed," to the three firms in this country who were to publish it, the one through the newspapers, the other as a novelette in a monthly, and the third for book publication, decided he did not like the ending. He cabled this word, and that he had added a third to its length. The word came too late for the Sun and Lippincott's Magazine and for the first edition published by the United States Book Company. The latter, however, have just ready an edition of the novel as finally completed.

WILBUR B. KETCHAM, New York, announces "Aleph, the Chaldean, or, The Messiah as seen from Alexandria," by E. F. Burr, D.D., LL.D., the famous author of "Ecce Cœlum;" also a new work by Charles F. Deems, D.D., LL.D., entitled "The Gospel of Spiritual Insight," being a companion volume to "The Gospel of Common Sense." The work will take up the Gospel af St. John. "Undesigned Coincidences in the Old and New Testaments," by Rev. John J. Blunt, with an introduction by Rev. Joseph Sanderson, D.D., LL.D., will also be published at an early date, together with a new illustrated edition of "Nature and the Bible," by J. W. Dawson, D.D., LL.D.

HERBERT WARD's account of his experience with Stanley's rear-guard will be issued in London as a shilling volume.

CHAPMAN & HALL have in press a second volume of Dr. William Junker's "Travels in Central Africa," covering the period from 1879 to 1883. Like the first volume, it is translated by Prof. A. H. Keane, and will contain numerous illustrations.

WARD, LOCK & CO. have in preparation an edition of 250 copies of an édition de luxe of the Lyra Elegantiarum, edited by Frederick Locker-Lampson. It will be of foolscap quarto size, printed on Van Gelder hand-made paper. Each copy will be signed by Mr. Locker-Lampson.

MACMILLAN & CO. announce for early publication "The Life of the Right Honorable Arthur McMurrough Kavanagh," who was remarkable—having been born without arms or legs, notwithstanding which he sat in Parliament for many years, and yachted, hunted and shot, carrying on the ordinary pursuits of a country gentleman and landlord. They have also just issued a new edition of Palgrave's admirable anthology, "The Golden Treasury of Songs and Lyrics," printed in larger type than heretofore, and augmented by fifty new pieces, chiefly from collections of Elizabethan songs; also, Mrs. Humphry Ward's address delivered at the opening of University Hall, in which the special religious aims of the Hall are set forth. Mention is made of the beginning of class-teaching under the guidance of Dr. Martineau. They will shortly add to their Manuals for Students' Series a long-needed English translation of the "Outlines of Psychology," by Prof. Harold Höffding, of Copenhagen. The translation has been made by M. G. Lowndes.

THE changed form and fashion of our contemporary, the London Publishers' Circular, mentioned elsewhere, is coincident with an essential change in its proprietorship—Mr. Searle and Mr. Rivington having both retired on the 1st instant. Mr. Searle had been connected with the firm of Sampson Low & Co. for many years, and on the death of Sampson Low, Jr., in 1871, he became a partner. He administered the affairs of the counting-house, but has been obliged, on account of his health, to withdraw. Mr. Rivington, who has been with the house for fifteen years, will devote his capital and energies to the business of electric lighting. The firm of Sampson Low, Marston & Co., Limited, now consists of Mr. Edward Marston, senior member of the old firm, who entered into partnership with the late Sampson Low and his son Sampson in 1856; his son Mr. R. B. Marston, who has been with the firm since 1869, and a partner since 1881; Mr. Robert Bickersteth, son of the Bishop of Exeter; and Mr. Stuart J. Reid.

A Fluttered Dovecote. By GEORGE MANVILLE FENN. With illustrations by Gordon Browne.

"The situations in the young lady's boarding-house are as humorous as those of Mr. Pickwick's."—Scottish Leader.

"The book is illustrated, and will find many appreciative readers."—Boston Traveller.

The Canadians of Old. An Historical Romance. By PHILIPPE AUBERT DE GASPE. Translated by Charles G. D. Roberts. (In cloth, $1.00.)

". . . Full of dramatic episodes. Stories of adventure by water, and of adventure on land, abound throughout the book. . . . A fascinating book—a book which, though new to the United States, has long been esteemed a classic in Canada."—New York Tribune.

"It abounds in stirring scenes by flood and field, and also in humorous colloquy."—Brooklyn Eagle.

"A story that reproduces the life of a past era with a picturesque accuracy that is fairly fascinating."—Boston Saturday Evening Gazette.

"A book not only of interest, but of value."—San Francisco Bulletin.

A Squire of Low Degree. By LILY A. LONG. (In cloth, $1.00.)

"A tale of absorbing interest. The dialogue is bright and crisp, and the dramatic situations very intense and exceedingly original."—Philadelphia Item.

"A most interesting book."—Buffalo Commercial.

"A powerfully written story. . . . Miss Long has too much latent ability to rest after writing this one novel. She will be heard from again."—Minneapolis Journal.

In Low Relief. A Tale of Bohemia. By MORLEY ROBERTS.

A story of life among the younger artists and literary men of London.

"The effect produced by the heroine is also something to be remarked. She can hardly be described, for she creates her own atmosphere, moves in it and carries it with her from studio to studio. But to discern how modest, pure and charming a woman may be, even without the ordinary conventions and safeguards which society imposes, the reader must go to the book itself."—Philadelphia American.

"It is a strange story; strange for its absolute separation from the ordinary world of men and women. . . . It is fascinating for all this strangeness, and it is charmingly though sometimes brusquely written, and few readers are likely to leave it unfinished."—Chicago Times.

NOTES IN SEASON.

HURST & Co., N. Y., have in preparation a new German cook-book for the use of Germans in America, which will be issued in the course of a month.

MACMILLAN & Co. announce an edition of Lock's well-known Arithmetic, revised and adapted for the use of American schools, by Prof. C. A. Scott, of Bryn Mawr College, Pa. They also announce an edition of Kipling's "The Light that Failed" containing the new ending.

THE FOREST AND STREAM PUBLISHING CO. announce a new and enlarged edition of the popular sportsman's manual, "Field, Cover and Trap Shooting," by Capt. A. H. Bogardus. This has been largely rewritten and revised to date, and contains new portraits of Bogardus and his sons.

WORTHINGTON Co. have just ready Paul Bourget's "Un Cœur de Femme," which is translated by Camden Curwen under the title "Was It Love?" The story treats of the problem of a woman sincerely in love with two men at the same time. It is illustrated with photogravures.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. have in hand a new novel by Edgar W. Howe, entitled "An Ante-Mortem Statement," which is said to bear traces of his recent quiet study in his library in Kansas, and to be equal in fresh interest to his far-famed "Story of a Country Town." The date of publication is not yet given.

ROBERT BONNER'S SONS announce No. 31 of their Choice Series, which will be a novel by Robert Grant entitled "Mrs. Harold Stagg," picturing society of to-day with keen satire; and will also have ready during February and March in their Popular Series "The Outcast of Milan," and "Rollo of Normandy," by Sylvanus Cobb, Jr.; "Mart Satterlee Among the Indians," by William O. Stoddard; and "Kit Carson's Last Trail," by Leon Lewis.

THE CASSELL PUBLISHING COMPANY will shortly bring out a novel by Francis Howard Williams, of Philadelphia dealing with the Buddhistic doctrine of Karma, and having as its central motive an incident growing out of the phenomena of transference. The story is called "Atman," a term which signifies the Great Self or Universal Soul, and which in the Indian mind is closely allied to the condition of Nirvâna. A love-story is woven about these materials, and the subject is one which has of late received so large a share of attention that the book is likely to attract much notice.

BRENTANO'S, New York City, have just issued "The Discovery of America: Columbus' Secrete Loge-Book," a fac-simile reproduction of the log-book supposed to have been found recently on the English coast, and reported to have been thrown overboard during a terrific storm while off the West Indies in 1492. The mechanical work of the book is executed with finish. The text is old Gothic lettering and the parchment is discolored by sea-water. The illustrations include views of countries visited, nautical and astronomical drawings and a map. The cover is overgrown with seaweed, and numerous shells have fastened themselves to its surface. The house also issues the initial volume of the Red Cross Series of Health Handbooks, which is by Dr. John Dewar, and entitled "What Ails the Baby?"

THE J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish at once a new number of their American Novel Series, entitled "The Romance of a Spanish Nun," by Alice Montgomery Baldy. The story is said to be well told and to possess many features that will gain the favor of that class who seek in novel-reading a pleasing diversion, rather than a discussion of knotty social, political and religious problems. The succeeding number of this series, "An Exceptional Case," will appear in the course of a few weeks. It is from the pen of Mrs. Itti Kinney Reno, whose "Miss Breckenridge" gave novel-readers quite a pleasurable surprise a year or so ago. Two volumes of verse are also announced for early issue. They are entitled respectively "Bohemia, and other poems," by Isabella T. Aitken, and "Dramatic Sketches and Poems," by L. J. Block, already known to the public through previous poetical works.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.) D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Adeler, Max, [pseud. for C. Heber Clark.] Elbow-room: a novel without a plot. il. by Arthur B. Frost. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 6–384 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1569.) pap., 20 c.

Alden, Mrs. Is. M., [Pansy, pseud.] Miss Dee Dunmore Bryant. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., 1891. c. '90. 2–392 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The Bryant children were very poor and helped their mother eke out a sparse livelihood, by working during certain seasons in a New England canning factory. Daisy Bryant conceives a bright scheme, one day, which results in the advent of "Miss Dee Dunmore Bryant" and a new friendship which makes Daisy's life more eventful and the story more interesting. Although some of the incidents are pathetic, the book is attractive in text and picture.

Huntington, Faye. A modern exodus. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1891.] c. '90. 6+337 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

The characters in this book are members of a family who are like unto the Israelites of old, because they are in "bondage." They are enslaved by debt and other troubles, which families of limited means must submit to or by superhuman efforts free themselves of. Their "exodus" is a nineteenth century one, which has in it helpful suggestions for the young.

Jay, J: The writings and correspondence of John Jay, first Chief Justice of the United States; ed. by H: P. Johnston. In 4 v. V. 2. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1891. 8°, cl., $5.

"After supper Uncle brewed some whiskey punch. I did justice to that. . . . We had some more punch after that; and Uncle made such a funny mistake in brewing it; he left out the whiskey. Oh, we did laugh at him, and we made him put in double quantity afterwards as a forfeit." Under these conditions, these ghost stories were told in an English country-house one Christmas Eve. The stories are printed in bright blue ink, and copiously illustrated with pictures of the same color.

Kingston, W: H. G. Mark Seaworth: a tale of the Indian Ocean. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 10–401 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1573.) pap., 20 c.

Mitchell, S. Weir, M D. A psalm of deaths, and other poems. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 4+70 p. O. hf. cl., $1.50.

The celebrated Philadelphia physician dedicates his poems to James Russell Lowell. Many of the verses have a sad cadence, but in the latter part assume a more joyous tone. Most of them were written during 1890. The tale of Dominique de Gourgues is told at length by Parkman in his "Pioneers of France in the new world." Daintily bound in gray and white.

Mozley, Rev. T: Letters from Rome on the occasion of the Œcumenical Council, 1869–1870. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1871. 2 v. 8°, cl., $6.

Murray, Ja. O. Francis Wayland. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. '91. 7+293 p. D. (American religious leaders.) cl., $1.25.

The author, at one time a pupil of Dr. Wayland's, is Professor of English Literature in Princeton College. A memoir of Dr. Wayland in two volumes, written by his sons, forms the foundation of this new and more concise biography. Dr. Wayland was born in 1796, and first determined to be a physician, but afterwards felt himself called to be a minister in the Baptist Church. In 1826 he was chosen President of Brown University, Rhode Island, and here his best work was done. Although the greater part of his life was spent in the work of education, he was none the less a leader in religious thought, mainly as "to the practical working of Christianity, not as to its dogmatic statements." His theory of education admitted of no divorce between it and the religion of the Christian faith. He did much to bring about the present esteem for the library as an adjunct of class-room tuition. Professor Murray classes him with the great college presidents—Walker, of Harvard, Woolsey, of Yale, and Hopkins, of Williams.

Newman, J: H: (Cardinal.) Letters and correspondence of John Henry Newman, during his life in the English church; arr. and ed. by Anne Mozley. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 2 v. por. 8°, cl., $4.

Oliphant, Mrs. Margaret O. W. The wizard's son: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 2-454 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1570.) pap., 30 c.

Parton, Ja. Captains of industry: a book for young Americans. 2d series. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. 5+393 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The first series was published in 1884. See notice, P. W., "Weekly Record," September 27, 1884, [660-61.] The new series contains forty-eight brief biographies of "men who shed lustre upon ordinary pursuits," among which are sketches of Governor Edward Winslow, David Rittenhouse, General Seth Pomeroy, Joel Barlow, Nathaniel Bowditch, Ezra Cornell, Gabriel Daniel Fahrenheit, etc. These men are "the rightful successors of feudal lords of another time," and are working for the solution of the labor problem by co-operating "against the sovereign evil of the world—poverty"

Perfect ready reckoner (The) and log-book; the trader, farmer and mechanic's useful assistant. N. Y., Hurst & Co., [1891.] c. '90. 245 p. T. bds., 25 c.

For buying and selling all sorts of commodities in dollars and cents, showing at once the amount and value of any number or quantity of goods, from a quarter of a cent to ten dollars; containing also comprehensive and accurate tables for board, scantling and plank measurement, timber and log measure, wages and board interest, grain and building tables, business forms, business laws, and much other information for every-day use.

Poe, Edgar Allan. The murders of the Rue Morgue; and other tales. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 3-182 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1613.) pap., 20 c.

Redway, Jacques W. The reproduction of geographical forms: 1, Sand and clay modelling with respect to geographical forms; 2, Map drawing and map projection. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 2-84 p. S. pap., 25 c.

The outline of this course in oral primary geography was furnished at the author's request by Miss Mathilde E. Coffin, of the Millersville, Pa., State Normal School, as a basis for a list of topics for oral work, rather than a systematic course of study. The importance of thoroughly drilling children in the smallest details of form, size, color and locality is cleverly made clear.

Schaff, Philip, D.D., ed. A select library of the Nicene and post-Nicene fathers of the Christian church. 2*d series.* V. 1 and 2. N. Y., The Christian Literature Co., 1891. ea., 8°, cl., $3.

Schiller, J: F: v. Der geisterseher, aus den memoires des Grafen von D: Erstes buch, ed. with introd. and notes by E: S. Joynes. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 7+118 p. D. pap., 25 c.

"Der Geisterseher" was begun in the Thalia, a paper under Schiller's editorship in 1787, and continued for nearly two years. This is the first edition prepared for English readers. The notes, covering twenty-three pages, are arranged with the skill born of long experience. The editor is a professor in South Carolina University. Designed to be used in second year of German study. The second book will be edited on a more advanced plan for older students.

Smith, Mrs. Lucy T., [formerly L T. Meade.] How it all came round. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4-252 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1572.) pap., 20 c.

Southeastern reporter, v. 11; cont. all the decisions of the supreme courts of appeals of Va. and West Va., and supreme courts of N. C., S. C., Ga. Permanent ed. Ap. 29-Nov. 18, 1890; with tables of southeastern cases published in v. 83, Ga. reports; 105 and 106, N. C. reports; 31, S. C. reports; 85, Va. reports; 33, West Va. reports. St. Paul, West Pub. Co., 1890. c. 13+1194 p. O. (National reporter system, state ser.) shp., $3.50.

Southworth, Mrs. E. D. E. N. The unloved wife: a novel N. Y., Rob. Bonner's Sons, [1891.] c. '81, '90. 6+374 p. il. D. (Choice ser., no. 28.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The scenes are Southern. Tudor Hereward, a West Virginia planter, marries Lilith Wyvil under peculiar and very romantic circumstances. Then a misunderstanding ensues, in which Lilith acts in conjunction with a noted mountebank. Some sensational scenes and pathetic incidents forecast the plot, which ends in a tragedy. This story first appeared in the New York Ledger.

Sterrett, J. Macbride, D.D. Reason and authority in religion. N. Y., T: Whittaker, 1891. c. 6-184 p. D. cl., $1.

The author is Professor of Ethics and Apologetics in Seabury Divinity School. His arguments are almost too technical for the general reader. The book contains careful dissertations on "Lux Mundi" and Dr. Martineau's "Seat of Authority in Religion." The work is addressed to all thoughtful persons who are conscientiously seeking to find the ground of all religion, and especially the ground on which Christianity may claim a place above and apart from all other religions. The author speaks telling words on the vagaries of Ritualism at the present time.

Stoddard, W: O. Gid Granger: the story of a rough boy. Bost., D. Lothrop Co., [1891.] 4-258 p. il. D. cl., $1 25.

Gid Granger's father had a theory that education unfitted boys and girls for a useful sphere. The story tells how Gid managed to overthrow his father's prejudices and how Marian came to realize the talents she possessed and obtained her heart's desire. A good book for either boys or girls, which pictures life on an American farm.

Thomas, Chauncey. The crystal button; or, adventures of Paul Prognosis in the 49th century; ed. by G: Houghton. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. 12+302 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Chauncey Thomas is a well-known coach-builder of Boston. He wrote this story between the years of 1872 and 1878. In imagination he reaches forward three thousand years and finds wonderful contrivances for the comfort and convenience of men—air-ships, railway trains of incredible speed, electricity, perfect for light and motive power, steam obtained from heat of the sun's rays, hydrogen procured from water the chief article of fuel, etc., etc. The moral atmosphere of the city called "Tone" had forced monopolies to die out, had settled labor questions and brought about "peace on earth." Almost all the inhabitants belong to the "Order of the Crystal Button," a society pledged to eternal truth. The applied mechanics of the book are its great feature.

Tolstoi, Count Leo. Church and state, and other essays. Bost, B: R. Tucker, 1891. c. 3-169 p. D. cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

The separate essays are entitled Money; Man and woman: their respective functions; The mother; and a second supplement to the "Kreutzer Sonata." The author applies the literal teachings of Jesus to ecclesiastical and governmental affairs, naturally to the disadvantage of so-called civilization. The book contains much that will shock conventional ideas; but Tolstoi thinks, and dares to say what he thinks.

Traddles, Moses. Poems; sketches of Moses Traddles. Cin., O., The Traddles Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 4-64 p. D. pap., 70 c.

Van Allen, Jane A. One hundred poems. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, 1891. 160 p. 12°, pap., 25 c.

Van Lennep, J. The count of Talavera; from the Dutch, by A. Arnold. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 316 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1621.) pap., 20 c.

Wallace, Alfred Russel. The Malay archipelago, the land of the orang outang and the bird of Paradise: a narrative of travel, with studies of man and nature. N. Y., Macmillan & Co., 1891. 17+515 p. 12°, cl., $1.75.

Warden, Florence, [pseud. for Florence Alice Price, now Mrs. G. E. James.] Missing—a young girl. N. Y., G: Munro [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4–121 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1729.) pap., n. p.

Weekly notes of cases argued and determined in the supreme court of Penna., the county court of Phil., and the U. S. dist. and circuit courts for the eastern dist. of Penna.; by members of the bar. V. 26, Apr. to Nov., 1890. Phil., Kay & Bro., 1890. c. 15+611 p. O. shp., $5.

Whittaker's churchman's almanac: the Protestant Episcopal almanac and parochial list for 1891. 37*th year*. N. Y., T: Whittaker, [1891.] 21–272 p. S. pap., 25 c.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

THE LADIES' ART AND SCIENCE CLASS connected with Milwaukee (Wis.) College has just issued a sumptuous catalogue of the books in its library. The library consists chiefly of works on art history and criticism and the history and description of various countries, and is of course admirably adapted to the course of studies pursued by the class. The catalogue has been prepared by Klas August Linderfelt, of the Milwaukee Public Library, and is arranged on the dictionary plan, with entries of each book under its author's name, its subject, and frequently its title when this does not clearly indicate the subject, the whole in one single alphabetical series. The volume is handsomely printed and bound in half morocco. (145 pp. O.)

OTTO HARRASSOWITZ, 14 Queerstrasse, Leipzig, has issued an important catalogue of works on Germanic philology, containing among others the library of the late Prof. W. Müller-Göttingen, associate editor of Zarncke's "Mittelhochdeutsches Wörterbuch." (No. 170, 3283 titles.)

VICK'S FLORAL GUIDE for 1891 has fairly thrown all its former issues into the shade. It is now not only a guide to the many novelties in seeds put out annually by James Vick, the veteran seedsman of Rochester, N. Y., but a handsome specimen of bookmaking and a handbook of general information relating to the planting and care of flowers and vegetables. It is bound in a new cover, and has two fine colored plates in addition to upwards of a hundred illustrations in the text.

BEVERLY CHEW, Marshall Lefferts and E. H. Bierstadt are compiling a Catalogue Raisonné of Elizabethan literature, which is to be published by the Grolier Club.

No. 39 of the "Bibliographical Contributions," edited by Justin Winsor, and published by the Library of the Harvard University, contains a bibliography of Beaumont and Fletcher compiled by Alfred Claghorn Potter.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 7, 1891.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

IN support of our remarks in the WEEKLY of December 20, last year, as to the importance of the prompt issue of holiday books, we have word from several dealers in the West and South endorsing our suggestion. One correspondent, from Texas, writes: "It is impossible for country trade, for example here in Texas, to get the newest books for the holidays (unless we order by mail), as many of them are not published till too near Christmas, long before which time most dealers have made up their orders. If publishers would make up or decide upon all of their holiday books, say in September, it would give us a chance to order the latest. As it is, the travelling men collect orders early in the year, long before some of the important books are even thought of, and a few of these we cannot handle until the next season, if we touch them at all." We think this is a matter worthy the attention of publishers. Delay in publishing holiday books ought to be the exception. Indeed a book which cannot be got ready by September at latest had better be held over until another season, for at the best its success will be precarious.

Then, too, we have had the opinion of several journalists and reviewers as to the desirability of having more reasonable time in which to review the books intended for the holiday season. As it has been for years past, some of the leading books are crowded into the newspaper offices a few weeks before Christmas, at a time when every journal in the country is pressed for time and space. The result has been that books which otherwise would have received adequate and careful notice are disposed of in a few lines, with often the barest possible mention. In a matter of such vital importance we should think publishers would recognize their interests at once and act accordingly. Books depend for their successful sale upon being properly put before the public by the bookseller and through the newspapers. As it has been managed in the past neither the one nor the other has had an adequate opportunity to do so. Shall they have one this year?

ANY authoritative action calculated to retard progress in the direction of protecting ownership in a printed book, irrespective of its origin, must be deplored by every lover of justice. For this reason the decision of Judge Wallace in the suit of the publishers of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" against the agents of a firm of reprinters of that work, is especially to be regretted. It is an admission, practically, that in the absence of statute law the common law fails to provide a remedy for a palpable injustice. We cannot as a nation afford this. A moral wrong has been done to individuals who have made an enormous sacrifice of money and effort to produce a work of importance and value to the whole world, and their right in which the whole world excepting this country respects. Fortunately a remedy is within reach, and we commend to those among our legislators who may still have doubts about giving their consent to making the measure which now awaits action in the Senate a law, the necessity of providing their country with a way out of such difficulties as are presented by this latest decision.

DECISION IN THE ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA CASE.

JUDGE WILLIAM J. WALLACE, in the United States Circuit Court, Southern District of New York, on February 2 handed down a decision in the case of Black et al. vs. Ehrich et al. refusing to grant an injunction against the defendants to prevent them from selling a reprint of "The Encyclopædia Britannica," as published by R. S. Peale & Co., of Chicago. The text of the decision is as follows:

"The complainants, a publishing firm of Edinburgh, Scotland, bring this suit to restrain the defendants, who are doing business in New York City, from selling a work entitled 'The Encyclopædia Britannica,' which is published by Messrs. R. S. Peale & Co., at Chicago and from issuing and distributing circulars and advertisements introductory of the book, which are alleged by the complainants to be misleading and injurious.

"It appears by the pleadings and depositions that prior to 1873 several editions of the Encyclopædia Britannica had been issued by various publishers, the last and eighth edition having been issued in 1861. In 1873 the complainants undertook to bring out a new edition. They named it "The Encyclopædia Britannica, Ninth Edition." They issued the first volume in 1875 and subsequent volumes from time to time until 1889, when the work, consisting of 24 volumes, was completed.

"In the preparation and publication of this work the complainants expended an enormous sum of money for editorial labor, for articles contributed by eminent specialists and authors, for maps, drawings and illustrations, and for the printing, binding and other mechanical features. They intrusted to Messrs. Little, Brown & Co., of Boston, and Messrs. Charles Scribner's Sons, of New York, the introduction and sale of their work in this country. With the exception, however, of a very limited number of their original edition, which was known to the trade as the 'Black' edition, their volumes sold here have not purported to be published by them, but bear upon their title-page the imprint of different American publishers.

"The defendants are offering for sale a reprint of the work published by the complainants, in a cheap form, except that in the place of certain articles of the original copyrighted pursuant to the statutes of the United States, they have substituted other articles to avoid infringement of the copyright. The case for the complainants rests upon the legal theory that the acts of the defendants amount to unlawful competition in trade.

"With the exception of the copyrighted arcles, the entire literary matter of 'The Encyclopædia Britannica, Ninth Edition,' is public property, in this country at least, and a rival publisher has the legal right to make any use of it he sees fit; he may use any part of it, or all of it, and call it by what name he prefers.

"Neither the author nor proprietor of a literary work has any property in its name. It is a term of description which serves to identify the work, but any other person can with impunity adopt it, and apply it to any other book, or to any trade commodity, provided he does not use it as a false token to induce the public to believe that the thing to which it is applied is the identical thing which it originally designated. If literary property could be protected upon the theory that the name by which it is christened is equivalent to a trade-mark, then there would be no necessity for copyright laws.

"There is not a scintilla of evidence in the present case to indicate that the defendants have held out the title of the book as a false token, or made any statements in their circulars or advertisements, with a view or likely to lead any person to believe that their reprint is the book which the complainants publish. Their book denotes on its title-page that it is published by R. S. Peale & Co., at Chicago. Their circulars announce that the Peale reprint is the 'latest and best,' the 'only American reprint having all marginal references,' contains 'articles rewritten by eminent Americans substituted for those in the 'English edition,' is 'incomparable,' and, in short, is a reproduction of the original except as it has been improved. Their laudations go for what they are worth, but they do not tend in the remotest degree to confuse the mercantile identity of their book with that of the complainants.

"The motion for an injunction is denied."

BOOKS AND PAPERS FOR HOSPITALS.

THE sixteenth annual report of that worthy charity, the Hospital Book and Newspaper Society, has just been issued. The work of the Society is to distribute reading-matter to the unfortunates in all public institutions. During the year 1890 there were fifty-nine such institutions under the Society's patronage, and among these were distributed 4940 books, 14,870 magazines, 39,811 weekly papers, and 131,993 daily papers. The work is not confined to New York City or State, but so far as the Society is able it meets calls for reading-matter from all parts of the country.

The Society spends little money. It simply asks everybody to aid it in the good work by donating such reading-matter as otherwise would be thrown away.

BOGUS HISTORIC BINDINGS.

THE New York Daily News of the 25th of January contains a long and amusing article upon frauds in bindings. It takes the form of an interview with some mythical "old bookseller" of New York City. The "old bookseller," according to this interview, purchased at odd times some $1500 worth of ancient and historic bindings, for which he expected to get $5000 in Paris. Much to his surprise, on reaching Paris he found the bindings were all "fakes," and discovered the factory where such articles were turned out. He also found out the names of American dealers who for years past, he alleges, have been unloading the stuff upon American buyers. Disgusted, the "old bookseller" returned home with his collection of historic bindings, and, too honest to offer them for sale over his counter, gave them to an auctioneer to sell, and confided the whole story to "Southernwood," a journalist, I presume. "Southernwood" thought out the best paper in which to publish such an exposé and forthwith gave it to the Sunday News.

The "old bookseller" also hints that a recent exhibition of bindings at the Grolier Club contained a number of "fakes." He explains that not all the examples of binding in New York are of this character and says, "I take it that it would be almost impossible to fool either Brayton Ives, Robert Hoe, Rush Hawkins, Loring Andrews or George Vanderbilt."

Our "old bookseller" concludes with the following touching paragraph:

"I have done, as I said before, with this un-American fad," continued the bibliopole. "I am becoming more intensely American every day, not only in book matters, but in numerous other ways. As I have given up all French bindings, so I have also all French eating and drinking. Here, for instance, sample that California peach brandy, made right here in America, and which I have for friends. It knocks spots out of all your Martel and Otard tipples. And there's a domestic cigar equal to any of your imported McKinley luxuries. Drink hearty, old friend, to everything American, more especially literature, which we both love and appreciate."

Now all this bosh may go down with the readers of the News, but hardly with any one else, I think. In the first place, the "old bookseller" puts himself out of court as an authority by confessing to getting "stuck" with $1500 worth of rubbish, plus the expenses of a journey to Paris and back to sell it.

Imagine an "old" bookseller who had never heard of "fake" bindings until he had about a ton of them in stock! Then where was the difference in unloading upon an unsuspecting public at auction anonymously and selling over the counter? A little safer perhaps, but—honest?

The plain fact is that the "old bookseller" himself is a ghastly "fake." Is it likely that to him—a stranger in Paris and a confessed dupe—would be shown the headquarters for the creation of bogus bindings and a list of the customers?

If by chance the interview is a genuine one there is only one explanation possible of how such stuff came to be printed. It lies in the last sentence of the paragraph quoted above.

If the "old bookseller" knows anybody who is systematically defrauding buyers he should name him in the proper quarter and way, and not give mysterious hints in a—well, not literary—Sunday newspaper, mixing up his article with references to peach brandy, the McKinley bill and so forth. I wonder if the toast to everything American included "fake" interviews?

So long as there are people willing to buy a "genuine" volume from the Pompadour library at a price of $50, so long will they be robbed to that extent. If you can afford it and desire to make a collection of fine bindings you require, Mr. Collector, three things to set out with upon your long journey. They are:

Time,
Money,
Discretion.

If you have time you must go to Europe to buy. To do this you must have money. To make your time and money of any use at all, discretion must be exercised.

Don't buy "bargains" at small stores. Better pay 1000 francs to Morgand for a coveted book. Don't buy its duplicate round the corner for 100 francs; because Morgand knows where the 100-franc one is, also, and if it was all right you, my friend, would not have the slightest chance of buying it. Don't buy Grolier "reliures" in New York at $35, when you can get them from Quaritch at from £75 to £250 apiece, according to condition. Because some day when you sell your $35 prize you will get about a dollar for it. On the other hand, when you die and the £75 Grolier is put up at auction your heirs may get $750 for it, —certainly not less than you paid. If you must buy from obscure and irresponsible dealers insist upon having a pedigree with your valuable historic relic. You won't have to ask a respectable dealer for one, for he will probably show it to you before you get a sight of the article itself "Seek not to buy too cheap."

BIBLIOPHILUS.

A GERMAN HISTORIC SOCIETY.

A MEETING was held in the Liederkranz Hall, New York, on the evening of February 4, to complete the organization of the Deutscher-Historischer Verein. The society will devote itself largely to making a historical record of the important work done in New York City and vicinity by German-Americans, and will also undertake to cultivate among the German-Americans of New York literary, scientific and artistic tastes.

In the furtherance of the latter branch of its work the society proposes to maintain a course of lectures and to do other things which from time to time may seem desirable. Many of the prominent Germans of New York are interested in the new society. The roll of members contains the names of Henry Villard, Oswald Ottendorfer, Gustav H. Schwab, F. Matz, Dr. Julius Goebel, Dr. F. Hoffmann, Paul Lichtenstein, F. W. Holls, William Steinway, the Rev. Louis Goebel, L. Windmüller and Dr. H. Loewenthal. At the meeting referred to above officers were elected as follows: President, Dr. F. Hoffmann; Vice-Presidents, Gustav H. Schwab and F. W. Holls; Secretary, Dr. Julius Goebel; Treasurer, L. Windmüller.

SOME weeks ago at one of our libraries a young woman walked up to the desk and said: "Give me a good shaking." The young man who was in attendance blushed to the roots of his hair, and, after a moment's hesitation, pulled himself together sufficiently to stammer: "Er—er—who—who is it by?" "George Macdonald, I think," came the answer. Then he hustled around for a time, and at last found out that what she wanted was a book called "A Rough Shaking." The young man's nerves were unstrung for the rest of the day.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

OBITUARY.

CHARLES B. NORTON.

GENERAL CHARLES B. NORTON, who a little over a quarter of a century ago was probably the best-known figure in the American book trade, died of paralysis at the Palmer House, Chicago, January 29, aged sixty-seven years.

Gen. Norton was born in Hartford, Conn., July 1, 1825, but, when quite young, was taken to Boston. His father was the late Major Benj. Hammatt Norton, Consul at Pictou during President Taylor's administration. In 1850 he came to New York and established himself at 71 Chambers Street in the publishing and bookselling business. His list at that time consisted of Maclaurin's system of penmanship. His principal business, however, was a library and purchasing agency, through which he became acquainted with all the important librarians in this country and abroad. In 1852 he took up the work abandoned in their Literary World by the Duyckinck Brothers, and began publishing, fortnightly, Norton's Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular. Gen. Norton recognized that the existence of a literary journal pure and simple would be a precarious one, and so from the start strove to adapt his journal more to the wants of the bookseller and publisher. He printed fuller bibliographical lists than had been attempted before, devoted increasing space to the interests of the book trade and libraries, and made the general literary features subordinate to the others. Indeed, Gen. Norton may fairly be considered the leader in the movement to establish book trade journalism on a scientific basis. S. Hastings Grant, afterward Comptroller of New York, was at one time editor of the Gazette.

In May, 1855, Norton removed to Clinton Hall. Here his cosy shop became the resort of all the leading librarians, literary men and book collectors—resident in and visiting the city—such as Lenox, Barlow, Prof. Jewett, Dawson, Brevoort and Bancroft the historian, not to extend the roll. His list at that time had grown to goodly proportions, including some valuable scientific books, of several of which he was himself the author, Guild's "Library Manual," and the first issue of Poole's "Index to Periodicals," published by him in 1853, in which year, by the way, at his suggestion, and principally through his efforts, the first convention of librarians known in the world's history was held in New York City.

In the same year (1855) the Book Publishers' Association was formed, of which Gen. Norton became Assistant Secretary and Librarian—W. H. Appleton being President, A. S. Barnes, Vice-President, L. Mason, Jr., Treasurer, and G. P. Putnam, Secretary. The Book Publishers' Association assumed the publication of Norton's Literary Gazette and changed the name to The American Publishers' Circular and Literary Gazette, and issued it weekly. Gen. Norton remained in charge of the editorial supervision of the journal until July, 1855, when Mr. Charles R. Rode, who had been the editor of the Criterion, a literary journal which about that time became defunct, was put in charge of the editorial management. To continue the history of the American Publishers' Circular: it remained in charge of Mr. Rode (who in June, 1861, became the responsible proprietor, the American Book Publishers' Association about that time having become obsolete) until April, 1863, when the journal was transferred to Mr. G. W. Childs. Mr. Childs, it will be remembered, continued the journal as a fortnightly under the title of American Literary Gazette and Publishers' Circular until January 15, 1872, when the late Mr. F. Leypoldt purchased it and incorporated it with his Publishers' and Stationers' Weekly Trade Circular, the predecessor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

In 1851 Gen. Norton was appointed Commissioner to the World's Fair held in London. In 1853 he was a juror in the New York World's Fair. When the war broke out he organized the Garibaldi Guard, with which he went to the front. He served through the war, was a member of Gen. Fitz John Porter's staff, and was mustered out with the brevet rank of Brigadier-General. In 1867 he was appointed United States Commissioner to the Paris Exposition, having in 1866, according to the official report of the United States Centennial Commission, first publicly proposed the Centennial Exposition. He resided in Paris for some time, and while there published the Centennial Gazette. In 1873 he was called to Philadelphia by the Executive Committee, and placed in charge of the press, the entire publicity of the enterprise being placed in his hands, where his extensive knowledge of both the American and foreign press proved to be of the greatest value to the Centennial Board of Finance, under whose general direction he operated. He was the author of the systematic plan of advertising the Exposition by the publication of well-designed views of the building, which developed an extended knowledge of the enterprise throughout the world, and at the close of the Exposition he prepared a work upon art and industry which is recognized as of great beauty and merit.

In 1883 he suggested and carried out the plan for a foreign Exhibition in Boston, which proved a great success and led to the organization of the American Exhibition in London, 1887. Upon his return from London Gen. Norton became editor of the Civil Service Chronicle, using his pen for the best good of the country he had already served so well.

Recently he took great interest in the preparations for the fair to be held in Chicago, and prepared a pamphlet entitled "World's Fairs from London, 1851, to Chicago, 1893." He was in Chicago looking after details in behalf of the Fair Committee when death overtook him.

General Norton was a man of fine military appearance, courteous and of a charming disposition. He was a thorough book man, and to the last took a lively interest in all that related to the book trade, as numerous letters to the writer might testify. He leaves a wife and five children. A. G.

EDWARD HAYES PLUMPTRE, Dean of Wells, died in London on February 1, aged seventy. He was born in 1821, educated at Oxford, became Chaplain of King's College, London, in 1847, and Professor of Pastoral Theology there in 1853. In 1873 he became Vicar of Bickley. He was one of the company of revisers of the Old Testament. Among his published works are "Sermons at King's College," "Lazarus, and other poems," "Translations of Sophocles," "Biblical Studies," "Sermons on Theology and Life" and "Master and Scholar."

ELIE BERTRAND BERTHET, the French novelist, died on February 1. He was born at Limoges in 1815 and received a good education. In 1834 he went to Paris, where most of his life was passed in writing feuilletons for leading journals and reviews. Among his many successful novels are "The Poacher" (1846), "The Stork's Nest" (1848), "The Catacombs of Paris" (8 vols., 1854), "The Bird of the Desert" (1863), "The Child of the Woods" (1865), "The Dramas of the Cloister" (1874) and "Prehistoric Romances" (1876).

CHARLES BRADLAUGH died in London, January 30. He was born in 1833, was first coal-dealer's clerk, then a private in the Dragoon Guards, and then editor of a paper devoted to "free thought" ideas. He was elected member of Parliament for Northampton after being defeated three times, but was refused his seat because he could not conscientiously take the required oath. In 1885 he was again elected and allowed to sit. His death ends one of the most turbulent and noted careers of modern times.

COMMUNICATIONS.

REFORM IN DISCOUNTS AND BOOKS ON CONSIGNMENT.

Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: I would like to make a suggestion or two to the publishers of miscellaneous books. First, in regard to discounts. Have but two discounts, one to the retail bookseller, whether he is a "regular" or "a corner in a dry-goods store," and the other to the legitimate jobber, and let quantity "cut no figure" in the discount; that is, if the dry-goods corner bookstore buys for retail, and buys more than even a legitimate book jobber, give him no more discount than a regular bookseller, though he bought but one book.

On such a plan it would not be one year until the book trade would get back to its natural channel—the bookstores.

Second: Let the publishers color the edges of all bound books that are not gilt, and put good, strong paper wrappers on them with title of book printed on wrappers. Then let them send one copy at least, or more, to every bookseller, with exchange or return privilege if not sold; this, of course, to apply only to new books.

This would not cost them as much as dead stock and sacrifices at trade sales now cost them, for in this way many thousand books would be sold that would be left in stock if the present custom be adhered to. D. P. HENDERSON.

OLD BOOK CHAT.

The Washington Book Chronicle in its latest issue says: "We know of a rare chance for a collector of early imprints, early laws, or Americana generally, to buy what is now known to be the first book printed in New York. It is: The | Laws and Acts | of the | General Assembly | for | Their Majesties' Province | of | New York | .....1691. | At New York, | Printed and sold by William Bradford, Printer to their Majesties, King | William & Queen Mary, 1694.' Folio. This copy is one of only seven known copies, and all the others being in the hands of the State, of wealthy collectors, or in libraries, this copy is the only one likely to be offered for sale, during this generation at least. It is very sumptuously bound, without regard to cost, by the best American binder, in full-crushed levant." Truly a very interesting announcement and one which collectors will be glad of noting. It is a "chance of a lifetime" which we understand is actually within the reach of those who can afford to indulge in the luxury. Although it has been claimed that another volume was printed by Bradford, prior to the Laws—"A journal of the late Action of the French at Canada"*—the Laws are rare enough to justify an extravagant price.

THE Brayton Ives catalogue has been issued. It is a volume to look at, but not at all the thing for an auction catalogue. The expense of its production must have been enormous. The fact is the gentlemen who catalogue these large collections for auction need some restraint put upon them. They seem to imagine their work is to be of the utmost value and importance as a book of reference in the future. But this is a mistake. An Auction catalogue should be a concise, accurate and absolutely fair description of the goods offered for sale. A comparison between one of Sothebys or Brill's catalogues and such a one as this Ives catalogue, with its hysterical and verbose descriptions, would illustrate our meaning at a glance. Next week we may call attention to the more important items described in it.

PAUL N. KERSCH, connected with the Rock Island, Ill., Volks-Zeitung, and a well-known bibliophile, recently has come into possession of a curiosity. It is one of two known copies of a volume of poems and epigrams by Friederich von Logau, entitled "Salomon von Golaw | deutscher Sinngedichte | drey Tausend | Breslau, | 1654." It has never been ascertained how large an edition of this work was printed, but it may be assumed that as the author was poor, and his name during his lifetime but little known outside of his Silesian home, the edition was never a large one. Indeed the poet himself expressed a wish that it be so in the sentiment:

"So mirs gehet, wie ich will,
Wünscht ich Leser nicht zu viel,
Denn viel Leser sind viel Richter
Vielen aber nützt kein Dichter."

But the fate of the edition is better known. No sooner had the work made its appearance than all the powers in the Church and State combined to suppress it, and all copies that could be obtained were burnt. No doubt its anonymous author, who at that time held a position of trust at the Court of Duke Ludwig of Brieg, had he been known, would have shared the same fate. His book attacked with unprecedented freedom the corruption of the aristocracy and clergy of his time, and scourged without remorse the unbridled passion and moral looseness that pervaded the society of Germany in his day. Logau died a few months after his book was published, and for a hundred years his work was lost to the world. In 1759, Lessing discovered a copy of it, and, recognizing its literary merit, with his friend Rammler proceeded to issue an edition. However, the censorship of that time was so lavish in its excisions that of the three thousand poems hardly a quarter reached the printer. Eitner in 1869, and Simrock in 1874 met with similar difficulty. Owing to the circumstances and the extreme scarcity of the original edition of the book, one of the founders of a new period in the history of modern High German literature has remained almost unknown; and yet he consigned to his work valuable material for the historian of the epoch of revenge in the Thirty Years' War. Mr. Kersch, we think, owes it to his countrymen to reprint a complete edition of his unicum.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

WILLIAM WINTER's new volume of poems, "Grey Days," will probably be published next month.

MONCURE D. CONWAY is engaged on a sketch of the life of Thomas Paine, and desires the use of letters and other material which may not be already at his disposal.

HALL CAINE has nearly ready his new novel, "Mary Magdalene," a Biblical romance. Should offence be taken at the title, Mr. Caine will change it to "The New Apocrypha."

ALEXANDER W. THAYER, U. S. Consul at Trieste, is now engaged upon the last volume of his long-promised and important biography of Beethoven, which is expected to take rank as a standard work.

THE volume of musical compositions which Richard Mansfield, the actor, has in preparation will contain two poems by William Winter—"Asleep" and "The Broken Harp"—set to music by Richard Mansfield.

RIDER HAGGARD, now visiting in this country, has made arrangements for a literary partnership with a Mr. W. H. Ballou, of New Orleans. The contract, it is said, provides that in event of a failure to pass the proposed International Copyright Law, the two authors agree to share each other's literary labors in every respect. Should the law be passed, they propose to write a joint novel.

"EDGAR SALTUS told me a few days ago," writes Mr. E. W. Bok, "that his new novel is in the printer's hands and will be out in a fortnight. He has given it the title of 'Mary Magdalen.' After the novel is out, the novelist starts for Honolulu, 'and, by the end of next May, with Buddhist aid,' says Mr. Saltus, 'I expect to be within the gates of Llassa. And after that, I am going to get into shape a work on the higher metaphysics.'"

MR. DOUGLAS SLADEN, who recently finished a work on "Younger American Poets," has taken up his residence in New York, and is collecting materials for a book on "Literary New York," which will embrace not only the well-known authors, but the literary clubs, salons, libraries, principal magazines and the great newspapers, with their publishers, editors, leader-writers, critics, etc. The work will contain portraits of the chief personages, and an historical chapter.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

A MANUSCRIPT found among the papers of Frederic S. Cozzens, who wrote the "Sparrowgrass Papers," will be printed as the complete novel in the March Lippincott. It is called "The Sound of a Voice."

THE London Bookseller in its last issue informs its readers that "as American books are, in the near future, likely to become of increased importance to the trade, we shall in future give our American list in a separate division and with the American prices appended."

The Overland Monthly for February contains an article by Captain Huggins, of General Miles' staff upon the Messiah who recently appeared among the Indians of the Northwest. General Huggins made a point of securing an interview with him, and gives an interesting account of this remarkable man and his views.

A LITTLE magazine called "The Doll's Dressmaker" has just begun publication in New York. It has stories about dolls, pictures of dolls, and, best of all, patterns of tiny garments for little eyes, scissors and fingers to linger over. The editor and publisher is Jennie Wren, No. 35 East Seventy-seventh Street.

The American Bookmaker begins its twelfth volume with the January number. As an inducement to new subscribers they offer the "Dictionary of Printing and Bookmaking," noticed in a former issue of the WEEKLY. To encourage the production of fine printing the Bookmaker has opened a "Competitive Department," in which money prizes will be awarded for the best examples of work. The Bookmaker has steadily progressed in usefulness to its constituency, while in its typography it has from the start been a model worthy of emulation.

BUSINESS NOTES

HOLYOKE, MASS.—The Winona Paper Co. have suspended payment. The liabilities are said to amount to nearly $600,000.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—The S. Carson Co. has purchased the printing business of Enoch Pond, and will hereafter carry it on in connection with their book and stationery business at 208 Post Street. Mr. Pond continues to act as superintendent.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

MR. WM. H. WALKER, formerly with Joseph McDonough, the Albany bookseller, has entered the employ of Bowers & Loy, booksellers, 111 Nassau St., N. Y.

CASSELL & CO. will publish at once, under the title of "Black America," the series of articles which have been appearing in the London Times on the Negro Question in the United States. They are from the pen of Mr. W. Laird Clowes, who paid a special visit to America in order to prepare them.

DR. SMILES' most recent effort of biography, his memoirs of the famous publisher, the late John Murray, is announced for publication by Mr. Murray. The title is "A Publisher and His Friends," and, besides a life of the publisher of Byron and Moore, it will contain selections from his correspondence. It is little over a hundred and twelve years since John Murray was born. Dr. Smiles will give an account, too, of the progress of the firm from its origin in 1768 down to 1843.

IT is said that the papyri acquired by the British Museum contain more interesting things than the fragment of the "Politeiai" attributed to Aristotle, which is to be first published. This is an important acquisition, of course, but it seems to be rather disappointing. For the whispers of forgery that are rife the Museum authorities have only themselves to thank. This is, no doubt, an age of advertisement; but one hardly expects to see a papyrus puffed like a patent medicine.—The Athenæum.

THE Unknown Library is the title of a new series just begun by the Cassell Publishing Company. The stories are written by well-known writers who prefer for the once to write over a pseudonym. The books are long and narrow, just the right shape to slip readily into the pocket of a man or woman's coat, and they are bound in flexible cloth and ornamented with a modest design. The type is large and the margin generous. The first volume in the Unknown Library is "Mademoiselle Ixe," the story of a Russian Nihilist, by Lanoe Falconer. "The Story of Eleanor Lambert," by Magdalen Brooke, is the second in the series.

E. P. DUTTON & CO. have prepared for the Valentine season a batch of artistic and decidedly unconventional souvenirs. The latest are two large booklets entitled "My Valentine" and "Love's Language," the pages of which are decorated with garlands of flowers, cupids and other symbols of love, printed in colors, gold and silver. Smaller booklets are "Forget Me Not" and "Love's Garden" with colored illustrations, and "In the Old Sweet Way," a charming cupid's missile, with delicate monotint illustrations. "Leaves of Thought" is a two-leaved card, the front of which has a leaf in gauze on which is traced a spray of "forget-me-nots." Love's Journal" is a fac-simile of a "daily journal," on the first page of which is inscribed the sentiment of the giver. Four pretty shaped valentines are, "Heartsease," a bunch of pansies; "From My Heart," and "From Heart to Heart," both heart-shaped; and "Tender and True," apple-blossoms. The cards are carefully and artistically printed by Nister.

AN OBSERVER'S OPINION.—"What do you think the most notable feature of American literature to-day?" "Uncut edges."—Puck.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

PUBLISH TO-DAY:

Talks with Athenian Youths.

Five Selected Dialogues translated from Plato. By the Author of "A Day in Athens with Socrates," etc. 12mo, cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

These dialogues vividly portray the flower of Athenian youth that listened to Socrates' teaching, and have, therefore, not only the philosophic value of the writings of Plato in general, but also the human and social interest that attaches to the mental habits and characteristic figures of the Greek race at the culmination of its civilization.

A Practical Guide to Whist.

By the Latest Scientific Methods. By FISHER AMES. With the Laws of the Game. 16mo, 75 cents.

Mr. Ames' purpose is to furnish a practical guide for players, according to the best authorities, all the valuable improvements of the "American Leads" system being adopted.

JUST COMPLETED.

History of the United States.

By HENRY ADAMS. The Administrations of Jefferson and Madison—1801–1817. Complete set, 9 vols., in a box, $18.00.

"No more spirited, graphic or picturesque study could be desired. Its style is animated, clear and impressive. Its portraits are vivid and well colored. Its descriptions are masterly. Altogether this deserves to rank with the best of the time."—New York Tribune.

NEW FINE ART EDITION.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST.

BY FREDERIC W. FARRAR, D.D., F.R.S.

ILLUSTRATED

With Magnificent Full-Page Engravings

Designed by HOLMAN HUNT, GUSTAVE DORE, ALEXANDRE BIDA, PROCKHORST and other World-Renowned Artists. Also

Reproductions in Original Oil Colors of World-Famous Paintings,

By RAPHAEL, RUBENS, WEST and other Master Painters.

☞ The whole world is now turning to the study of the Life of Jesus as never before. In all sections of the country there is A Great Demand for a Life of Christ that will supply the wants of the General Reader, the Sunday-school Scholar and Teacher, the Bible Student, the Thoughtful Reader, the Minister, and the Layman — one that is at once Popular and Reliable. Dr. Farrar's Life of Christ supplies this great demand, and meets the want of the time more fully than any other work. It is acknowledged by all to be Illustrated with Magnificent Reproductions of World Famous Paintings in Original Oil Colors.

THE BEST LIFE OF CHRIST EVER WRITTEN.

His qualifications for writing this, The Crowning Work of His Life, are unsurpassed. His work is critical and thorough but he spares us the dust, heat and toil of the studio and brings us at once into the gallery to behold The Finished Picture of Our Lord. In a straightforward narrative, with intellectual ability, with manliness of spirit, with singular candor, with a ready command of the appropriate learning with fascinating eloquence, and an indisputable sincerity he gives us the Best Harmony of the Gospels and therefore the ever drawn by mortal pen. It is Highly Commended by the press everywhere, by ministers of all the denominations, by college presidents, by professors, by Sunday-school superintendents, by teachers and men of influence, indeed all who have examined it carefully.

This adaptation to the wants of the people, the large size of the work, and its magnificent illustrations, make it extremely popular. Contains 500 large royal quarto pages, 9 by 11 inches, equal to 1000 pages of a large octavo book. It is bound in the most durable and handsome style.

Extra Fine Cloth, Design Embossed in Gold, Gold Edges, $2.75.

NOTES IN SEASON.

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish at once Valera's novel, "Doña Luz," which is regarded as one of the finest examples of Spanish fiction. It has been translated by Mrs. Mary J. Serrano. They have in press a work entitled "A Plea for Liberty," which comprises essays by various writers, edited by Thomas Mackay, with an introduction by Herbert Spencer. It is described as "an argument against Socialism and Socialist legislation."

ROBERT CLARKE & CO., Cincinnati, have in press reprints of Withers' "Chronicles of Border Warfare: a history of the settlement by the whites of Northwestern Virginia," etc. (1831); Haywood's "Civil and Political History of Tennessee," from its settlement to the year 1796 (1823); and the same author's "Natural and Aboriginal History of Tennessee" (1823). Also a new work, entitled "Beginnings of Literary Culture in the Ohio Valley," by Dr. W. H. Venable.

LEE & SHEPARD will publish shortly "Sardia," a story of love, by Cora Linn Daniels; "A Queer Family," by Effie W. Merriman, author of "Pards," and editor of the Housekeeper of Minneapolis; "Equal Suffrage: readings and recitations," by Alice Stone Blackwell and others; Part II. of Charles F. King's "Geographical Reader;" and "Outlines for the Study of Drawing, Adapted for Normal Work," by Emma F. Bowler, of Bridgewater (Mass.) Normal School.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will issue at once "The Sister's Tragedy, with other poems, lyrical and dramatic," by T. B. Aldrich; "A Sappho of Green Springs, and other stories" by Bret Harte; and "Japanese Girls and Women," by Alice M. Bacon, who has spent many years in Japan, and has had exceptional opportunities for studying its home life. In March they will bring out "As It Is In Heaven," a series of reflections on the future life, by Lucy Larcom; "The Epic of an Inner Life," studies on the Book of Job, by J. F. Genung, of Amherst College; and "King's Chapel Sermons," about thirty discourses by the Venerable Dr. Peabody, of this famous Boston church, who will celebrate his ninetieth birthday on March 19.

A. C. ARMSTRONG & SON have just ready Charles H. Spurgeon's new book, "Sermons in Candles: lectures upon the illustrations which may be found in common candles," one of the most charming and instructive of the many volumes which this author has written. The volume which is issued here by arrangement with the English publisher contains an introduction by Rev. R. S. McArthur, and numerous woodcuts. They have also just published "The Book of Ecclesiastes," with a new translation, by Rev. Dr. S. Cox, as the first volume of the fourth series of the Expositor's Bible, edited by Rev. W. Robertson Nicoll. Also the sixth volume (Matt. xxii. to Mark xvi.) of "The Sermon Bible," one of the most practically useful works of its kind. It is not a commentary, but a thesaurus of sermons on texts arranged consecutively, chapter after chapter and book after book.

BROMFIELD & CO., 658 Broadway, N. Y., have just issued the completed edition of Henry Ward Beecher's "Life of Jesus Christ." It is in four octavo volumes, and resembles in size, color of binding, typography, etc., vol 1 of the unfinished octavo edition published by J. B. Ford & Co., in 1871. Owners of that edition can therefore now complete the set. The volumes can be had either together or separately. Of the second volume, now for the first time published, the first eight chapters are as Mr. Beecher wrote them. The concluding chapters, 26 to 32, have been compiled by his son, Mr. W. C. Beecher, and the Rev. Samuel Scoville, his son-in-law, from Mr. Beecher's sermons preached along the line of this special subject. The text of the "Gospels Consolidated" has been omitted from vol. 1, and a separate appendix substituted containing titles and subject-matter of said Gospels, with full references to Scripture chapters and verses. A second appendix has been added to vol. 2, containing an elaborate description of the engravings with much new and interesting matter on a variety of subjects relating to the Holy Land.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.) D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. and r., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Abbott, Evelyn. Pericles, and the golden age of Athens. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1891. 14+379 p. por. il. D. (Heroes of the nations ser., no. 3.) cl., $1.50; hf. mor., $1.75; pap., $3.50.

Pericles was probably born about the year 493 B.C. This sketch of his life consists of two parts: the first traces of the growth of the Athenian empire and the causes which alienated Athens with Sparta; the second gives an account of the government, the art and literature, the society and manners of Athens under Pericles. The author does not rank Pericles as a great statesman, since he destroyed a form of government under which his city attained to the height of her prosperity and plunged her into a hopeless and demoralizing war. His greatness lay in the ideals he cherished. He saw what a city might do for her citizens, and what citizens might do for their city. In years of peace his dreams took shape, but against facts which followed the war he struggled in vain. The illustrations have mostly been reproduced from Muller's "Denkmäler der alten Kunst;" Boetticher's "Akropolis;" Curtius and Kaupert's "Atlas von Athen," etc.

Aimard, Gustave. The pearl of the Andes: a tale of love and adventure, rev. and ed., by Percy B. St. John. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 3-119 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1653.) pap., n. p.

Aimard, Gustave. The trail-hunter: a tale of the far west, rev. and ed., by Percy B. St. John. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4-128 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1651.) pap., n. p.

Alger, Horatio, jr. The Erie train-boy. N.Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] c. '90. 13-279 p. S. (Leather clad tales, no. 26.) pap., 25 c.

Allen, Grant. The great taboo. N. Y., Harper, 1891. 4+271 p. D. (Harper's Franklin sq. lib., new ser., no. 691.) pap., 40 c.

The "great taboo" is a total prohibition of intercourse with, use of, or approach to a given person or thing under pain of death—an interdict of religious origin and authority, formerly common in the islands of Polynesia. A young girl is washed off the deck of an Australian steamer while sailing near some island below the equator, a young man jumps overboard, reaches her and manages to put the life-belts thrown from the vessel to use, but the vessel fails to see them and sails on. They drift to an island inhabited by the lowest grade of savages and cannibals. Mysteriously their lives are spared, and the story tells of the shocking scenes they witnessed while protected by "the great taboo," pronounced by King Tu Kila-Kila. Their release comes through an old owl who embodies the souls of other owl ancestors dating back to the time of Charles II., of England.

Ames, Fisher. A practical guide to whist, by the latest scientific methods, with laws of the game. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1891. c. '90. 6+92 p. D. cl., 75 c.

This practical guide to play gives the rules and directions for play in the various contingencies of a hand according to the best authorities, arranged in a convenient form for instruction and guidance. All the authorities have been consulted and all valuable improvements of the "American Leads" system adopted.

Arthur, T. S. Home scenes and home influence: a series of tales and sketches. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4-216 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1641.) pap., 20 c.

Arthur, T. S. Seed-time and harvest; or, whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4-216 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1649.) pap., 20 c.

Arthur, T. S. Stories for young housekeepers. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 4-212 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1654.) pap., 20 c.

Baldy, Alice Montgomery. The romance of a Spanish nun. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1891. c. 199 p. D. (American novel ser.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

In a studio of Seville, Emilio Iznago, poet, saw and loved a sculptor's model. Magdelena de Laheria returns this sentiment and the pair are betrothed. The failure of one of Iznago's schemes prevents their immediate marriage, and Emilio accepts a government appointment in the Philippine Islands. In his absence Magdelena forms an attachment for a religious devotee, and becomes imbued with a desire to take the veil. Upon her action in this crisis the novel depends for its interest.

Belot, Adolphe. The woman of fire; tr. from the 60th French ed. Chic., Nile Pub. Co., [1891.] c. 2-216 p. D. por., pap., 50 c.

A wholly unscrupulous woman endowed with remarkable physical beauty is the "woman of fire." The characters, views of life and bold situations are such as are only too well-known through this special type of novels.

Belton, J: Devoe, comp. Literary manual of foreign quotations, ancient and modern, with illustrations from American and English authors, and explanatory notes. N.Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1891. c. 6+249 p. D. hf. leath., $1.50.

The compiler jocosely remarks that there would seem to be no reason "except hunger and the request of friends" for adding one more to the usual kind of dictionaries of foreign quotations. The manual here offered differs from them in three important particulars. First, it is a selection of quotations from Latin and the languages of continental Europe which are or have been referred to by modern writers; only quotations having a distinctly literary flavor are given. Secondly, the quotations are followed as a general rule by extracts from modern authors in which they are used. Thirdly, the origin of the quotation is, when necessary, explained, and the context of the author set forth. The manual is completed by four indexes referring separately to the Latin, German, French and Italian quotations.

Blouet, Paul, [Max O'Rell, pseud.] John Bull and his daughters; from the French. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 2+186 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1617.) pap., 20 c.

Bookworm (The): an illustrated treasury of old-time literature. 3d series. N. Y., A.

 In this list, the titles generally are verbatim transcriptions (according to the rule of the American Library Association) from books received.* Books not received are indicated by a prefixed asterisk, and this office cannot be held responsible for the correctness of their record.*

C. Armstrong & Sons, 1891 [1890.] 380 p. 8°, half rox., $3.

See notice in P. W., "Weekly Record," Nov. 9, 1889, [928.]

Both sides of the tariff question, by the world's leading men; with portraits and biographical notices. N. Y., Alonzo Peniston, 338 Broadway, [1891.] c. '89-'90. 9-297 p. O. cl., $2.50.

A collection of arguments by Gladstone, James G. Blaine, R. Q. Mills, Breckinridge, McKinley, Jr., Allen Thorndike Rice, Arthur Carnegie, H. K. Thurber, etc. Contains portraits of Gladstone, Blaine, Mills, Morrill, McKinley and Carnegie.

Boultwood, Harriet. Martin's mistake. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1891. 64 p. il. 24°, (Little Dot ser.) cl., 20 c.

Bourget, Paul. Was it love? tr. by Camden Curwen. N. Y., Worthington Co., 1891. c. 2+254 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A young widow of twenty-seven, living with her mother in Paris, has for some time allowed a man of earnest character, standing high in political life, to take it for granted that in time she would marry him. At a dinner party she meets Casal, a known libertine of fine appearance and brilliant talents, who fascinates her at once. The story tells of her feeling for both these men.

Burch, Harriet E. The patriot prince. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1891. 128 p. il. 16°, (Monthly ser.) cl., 40 c.

Burgess, J: W. Political science and comparative constitutional law. V. 1, Sovereignty and liberty; V. 2, Government. Bost., Ginn & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 2 v., 19+337 p. O. (Systematic ser., ed. by faculty of Pol. Science, Columbia coll.) cl., ea., $2.50.

A comprehensive work by the Dean of the University Faculty of Political Science in Columbia College. In his preface the author says: "If my book has any peculiarity, it is its method. It is a comparative study. It is an attempt to apply the method which has been found so productive in the domain of natural science, to political science and jurisprudence. It is the method chiefly followed by the German publicists. In the French, English and American literatures, it is, on the other hand, relatively new. . . . It is here that I have chosen to lay out my work and I trust it will be found that some slight advance has been made in the development of the comparative method in the treatment of this domain of knowledge." Four appendices to the first volume give the Constitutions of the United States, of Germany, of Prussia and of France in the original languages. The second volume contains the index to both covering 38 pages.

Burkhead, J. de Witt, D.D. Theology for the masses; or, Bible truths for all men. [Montgomery, Ala., W. C. Holt, 1891.] c. '87. 343 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The author is pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Montgomery, Alabama. His book is published in answer to requests made him to put his pulpit utterances in permanent form. He proves all the doctrines that have been founded on the Scriptures by the Scriptures themselves, aiming to place their teachings in a clear light before all degress of intelligence. Problems that have occupied the ablest minds for centuries seem perfectly easy of solution to this earnest teacher.

Conway, Moncure D. George Washington's rules of civility traced to their sources and restored. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] c. '90. 3-180 p. O. cl., $1.

Among the manuscript books of George Washington preserved in the State Archives at Washington, the earliest bears the date written in it by himself, 1745, when he was in his fifteenth year. The great interest of the book centres in these rules of civility. While getting materials for his biography of Washington Mr. Conway discovered that in 1745 Washington was attending school in Fredericksburg, Va. The first church there was under the Rev. James Marye, a native of France. He was led to suspect a French origen of these rules, and traced them to a Jesuit college in France. The story of their migration is given, and the 110 rules are then given with the original French.

Corner, W:, comp. San Antonio de Bexar: a guide and history. San Antonio, Texas, Bainbridge & Corner, 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 7+166 p. il. O. cl., $2.

A full description of the Texan city that has played so large a part in missionary efforts. Full particulars of climate, railroads, churches, buildings. A table of historical, statistical and interesting dates relating to the city is arranged by months, dates from 1685 to 1886, and occupies thirty-six pages.

Two-fifths of the entire American people are farmers. They constitute the conservative element of the population, standing as the personification of patriotism, industry and independence. The writer pictures the unfortunate situation of these farmers, "writhing in the clutches of monopolies and money-sharks," and then gives his remedy. "Co-operation, aided and supported by government. Our legislative halls must be filled with honest, earnest men, who come directly from, and understand and appreciate the needs and demands of the people."

The author has endeavored so to group the circumstances connected with the Battle of Cedar Creek, which was fought on November 15, 1864, that they will have a spiritual aspect and bearing. The thoughtless, sleeping, heedless, 8th Corps he compares to the careless sinners in the camp of life, and points out to them their sure destruction if they do not listen to the voice of Christ calling them in the wilderness.

Drummond, H: Pax vobiscum. 3d ed. rev. N. Y., Ja. Pott & Co., 1891. c. '90. 5-60 p. D. leatherette, 35 c.

The writer of "The greatest thing in the world" explains to his readers that rest cannot be found unless the mind be put into the condition that produces rest. Rest is not a cause but an effect. The causes of rest are discipline, humility, meekness and patience. Christian experiences are not the work of magic, but all come under the same law of cause and effect. By truly living according to the laws of Christ all men may attain happiness.

Ever since the publication of the first edition in 1874, when the band of Hampton Student Singers were helping raise the walls of Virginia Hall, there has been a steady demand for this music. Many new melodies have since been brought into the college by students from various parts of the South. Some of the most beautiful of those now sung at Hampton, are now published for the first time. To these are added a number of Tuskegee students' songs, arranged by R. H. Hamilton. A description of Hampton College, its work and resources is given in the book.

Gunton, G: Principles of social economics, inductively considered and practically applied, with criticisms on current theories. N. Y., G: P. Putnam's Sons, 1891. c. 23+451 p. O. cl., $1.75.

The writer starts from the theory that it is in the needs of the masses that the economics of the future must be studied, and statesmanship determined. Adam Smith and his followers failed to recognize the laborer as the great factor in a market, whose consuming power must be increased. The growing incompetency of political economy to deal with modern conditions has been recognized within the last twenty years, and the younger economists of Europe and America are forming a new school. In the hope of giving economic science a humane, hopeful aspect this book is written.

Halévy, Ludovic. Criquette; tr. by Arthur D. Hall. N. Y. and Chic, Rand, McNally & Co., 1891. c. 4-292 p. D. (Rialto ser., no. 32.) pap., 50 c.

"Criquette" was the appropriate sobriquet of Celine Brinquart, a vivacious child, who sold flowers in summer in a Parisian suburb, and hot cakes during the winter in a Belleville theatre. Here her histrionic talent attracted a noted comedian, who had her cast for the rôle of Princess Colbri, in Gri Gri. After a début in the Porte Saint Martin, the story includes several romances, incidents alternately humorous and pathetic, scenes of squalor, Bohemianism, affluence, etc. The time is from 1859-1870. The Franco-Prussian war is incidentally mentioned.

Harris, W: T. Hegel's logic: a book on the genesis of the categories of the mind: a critical exposition. Chic., S. C. Griggs & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 29+403 p. S. (German philos. classics.) cl., $1.50.

The eighth volume in this valuable series edited under the supervision of Prof. G. S. Morris, lecturer on philosophy in Johns Hopkins University. Every volume is a condensed presentation made by an author, who has made a specialty of the philosopher whose work he interprets. Since 1856 the author of this volume, who is United States Commissioner of Education, has worked pretty constantly on the subject of this logic, first using expositions of it found in histories of philosophy and then proceeding to Hegel's own exposition. His views have changed and modified during these long years of study, and he has endeavored to make his reasonings helpful to students of philosophy and to teach them that philosophy may come to mean the most practical of all species of knowledge, as help in solving all problems and specially applicable to literature and art.

To a testimonial intended to cheer Walt. Whitman's declining years, not merely in a complimentary sense, came some eighteen hundred people to listen to this eloquent tribute to his genius, spoken by Col. Ingersoll. He dwelt at length upon the great American poet's devotion to democracy, humanity, philosophy, individuality, and freedom of creed and worship. His address also embodies a dissertation on poetry full of independent thoughts. Contains portrait of Walt. Whitman.

The Chevalier and the Prorege of Arcopia, a kind of prime minister for a little Italian king, have inquiring minds and untiring bodies. They go from place to place in Italy, and the author gives semi-detached narratives of their ideas of music, painting, architecture, bibliography and diplomacy. The characters never converse; the author tells the whole story. An ironical vein shows brightness, but the form, which is said to be "an experiment in a new variety of fiction," makes the story difficult to follow.

Reed, T: Allen. A biography of Isaac Pitman, (inventor of phonography.) N. Y., I: Pitman & Sons, [1891.] 6+191 p. por., il. D. cl., $1.

Isaac Pitman was born at Trowbridge, Wiltshire, England, in 1813. He was one of eleven children, six of whom became teachers of public schools. Up to the age of sixteen he had rarely had an opportunity to converse with educated people. He had read many books, pronouncing the words mentally inaccurately. In reading "Paradise lost" he became conscious of the sounds of words, and set himself the herculean task to learn pronunciation by reading Walker's Dictionary from cover to cover. Here he for the first time saw a scientific classification of the sounds of the language, and their relations to each other, as well as the glaring inconsistencies and absurdities of current orthography, on which he in after years made so determined an onslaught. He began his study of shorthand in 1829. His system is now used by 97 per cent. of the most expert stenographers. Mr. Pitman is still in vigorous health.

This new series is under the editorship of Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, Assistant Professor of History in Harvard University, is designed to supplement the Epochs of modern history series, and published in similar size and style, with full marginal analysis, working bibliographies, maps, introduction and index. These brief works will show the main causes for the foundation of the colonies, for the formation of the Union, and for the triumph of that Union over disintegrating tendencies. "To make clear the development of ideas and institutions from epoch to epoch—this is the aim of the author and the editor." The author of this initial volume is Secretary of the State Historical Society, of Wisconsin, and author of "Historic waterways," "The story of Wisconsin," etc. The bibliographies heading every chapter throughout the series are specially valuable. Suitable for general readers and the class-room.

Ward, Herbert. My life with Stanley's Rear-Guard. N. Y., C: L. Webster & Co., [1891.] c. 3–151 p. map, D. pap., 50 c.

Mr. Ward explains that although asked by Stanley to write his experiences with the Rear-Guard, he preferred to remain silent while the bitter controversy was going on, thinking the subject had better be dropped. Dragged into the dispute against his will, he confines his narrative chiefly to giving some idea of the dangers, difficulties and sufferings at Yambuya, hoping for a fair and impartial judgment of the question where the responsibility really rested for the failure to move forward from Yambuya.

Whitney, W: Dwight. A brief French grammar. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1891. c. 6+177 p. S. cl., 65 c.

Much of the material of this book has been used in the author's larger French grammar, but the arrangement is here entirely different, the treatment of the irregular verbs especially being much condensed. The selected sentences all taken from authors of reputation will be found chosen with special reference to progressive mathematical drill.

Willoughby, Westel W. and W: F. Government and administration of the United States. Balt., Johns Hopkins Press, 1891. c. 143 p. O. (Johns Hopkins univ. studies, 9th ser., nos. 1–2.) pap., 75 c.

These chapters were originally prepared for, and used as a manual in the public schools in the District of Columbia. They have now been revised and amplified to furnish assistance to students beginning the study of the history and practical workings of our political institutions. The purpose is to give the student a better understanding of the salient points of our federal system than can be obtained from the ordinary text-books on Civil Government. The book furnishes such supplementary information as can be obtained only with great difficulty by most teachers. These outlines are merely suggestive, and have been carefully arranged in the order which would naturally be followed in a course where they would be of great assistance. Valuable bibliographical notes are included.

THE COPYRIGHT SITUATION.

ANY international copyright bill is better than no international copyright! This is about the position of the advocates of international copyright. Anything to defeat any bill! That is about the position of its opponents. The friends of international copyright opposed the lithographers' amendment, not so much because they objected to further compromise of this compromise, the pending measure, as because they saw in it a trick, to which the proponents of the amendment were not necessarily a party, to put the bill in such a parliamentary position as to jeopard its final passage. That, however, its opponents have succeeded in doing by the amendment passed by the Senate on Tuesday, which requires conference action before the bill can become law. We hope sincerely that our fears are ill-founded, and that the amended bill may secure the approval of the House.

It will certainly be very difficult, if not impossible, to obtain again the present chances for the present bill. As a result of last fall's political land-slide, the next House will be largely composed of new men, many of whom on narrow grounds will have prejudices against international copyright, and others, who will object, on broader grounds, against the restrictive provisions which are a part of the present compromise. The Authors' League has yielded much in accepting these restrictions, but it has worked in the best of faith for the bill as it stands. The publishers who favor manufacturing restrictions are now in a decided minority, but the whole publishing interest has done its best for this bill. Any new bill would probably be much more in the line of copyright pure and simple, the right of property unencumbered by ifs and buts. If we can get this bill this year, however, all friends of copyright may fairly rest content.

INTERNATIONAL COPYRIGHT DELAYED.

ON the 9th inst., the International Copyright bill was taken up in the Senate on the motion of Mr. Platt. After the reading of the bill, and the correction of the word "statute" in section 8, page 8, line 7 of the bills as printed to "statue," as it appears in the manuscript bill, Mr. Platt addressed the chair as follows:

"Mr. President, I do not wish to take the time of the Senate in any lengthy explanation of this bill. We have now waited fifty-three years for this moment, when an international copyright law could be enacted. Fifty-three years ago Henry Clay made a report which, in the estimation of thoughtful men, thoroughly demonstrated not only the expediency, but the duty of extending the right of copyright to foreigners, the passage of an international copyright law.

"This bill is practically the bill which was passed by the Senate some two or three years ago, known as the Chace bill. It passed the Senate then with only ten votes in the opposition, as I remember, on the yeas and nays. It does not differ in principle or material from the Chace bill, except in one particular, and that is it depends upon foreign countries adopting similar legislation. In other words the last section of the bill is what may be called a reciprocity clause. It provides:

"SEC. 13. That this act shall only apply to a citizen of a foreign State or nation when such foreign State or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens; or when such foreign State or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America copyright privileges substantially similar to those provided for in this act; or when such foreign State or nation is a party to an international agreement which provides for reciprocity in the grant of copyright, by the terms of which agreement the United States of America may at its pleasure become a party to such agreement. The existence of either of these conditions shall be determined by the opinion of the Attorney-General of the United States whenever an occasion for such a determination arises.

"It differs in structure from the Chace bill in that the Chace bill suggests amendments to the existing statutes, whereas this bill recites the existing statutes as they will be when amended, as practically proposed by the Chace bill, a better form of enactment.

"As I said, there has been no departure in principle from the Chace bill. There may be in one or two instances a little change of language from the Chace bill, but not in principle. As that bill was so thoroughly discussed in the Senate and received so strong a support in the Senate I shall not, at this period of the session, with the important business which is to come, take the time of the Senate in discussing the bill.

"I will simply say that the bill proceeds upon one broad fundamental principle, and that is that what a man fashions by his brain, his genius, his imagination, or his ingenuity, is property just as much as what he fashions by his hands or acquires by manual or other labor, and that being property, it should be property the world over and should be recognized as such. If an American writes a book, the right to publish that book should be recognized as property not only in this country, as it now is under the Constitution, but as property everywhere. If a citizen of another country writes a book, the right to publish that book should be as much property in this country as in his own country.

"That is the broad principle on which this bill rests—the protection of property, for which governments are instituted. The principle has been applied in the case of patents, and not a little of the growth and prosperity of the country is due to the fact of the recognition by this Government that a foreigner who invents a new machine or discovers a new process shall be entitled to secure a patent for the same in this country.

"The Constitution puts authors first in saying that Congress may secure to them exclusive rights; it puts them before inventors; but the legislation of the country has extended the provisions of the Constitution in the matter of inventions very much further than it has in the matter of authorship and those who come in under the generic term of authors.

"I believe myself no measure before this Congress is so calculated to enhance not only the intellectual but the material growth of this country as this copyright bill, and I trust it will pass, and pass without amendment. As I said, we have waited fifty-three years for this opportunity, and this opportunity may be wholly lost by amendments in the Senate.

"I do not know that I would say that this is a perfect bill, but it is a bill which has had long consideration by committees of the Senate and of the House of Representatives. It comes to us from the House, and now is our opportunity to obtain the passage of such a law. If there is anything in it which needs further examination, which would call for further legislation, the way for the people who desire international copyright to obtain it is to pass the bill while we have the opportunity to pass it, and establish the principle. Then, if it needs further application, we can trust to the future that justice will be done."

Mr. Wm. P. Frye, of Maine, then took the floor, saying: "I am in favor of a copyright bill and have been ever since I have been in Congress. I shall vote for this bill, whether it is amended or not; but I have always entertained the notion that any constituent of mine had a right to have presented to the Senate any petition respectful in its form, any bill, or any amendments to any pending bill, and that I, as a Senator, had no right to refuse a constituent in these directions. I cannot consent, and I informed these gentlemen that I could not consent to deprive any constituent of mine of that right which I believe belongs to him, whether it hazarded the final passage of the bill or not.

"A good many bills are yet to pass the Senate and a good many are to go to conference by reason of the amendments placed upon them in the Senate. It is not possible that these bills are all to be lost because they go into conference. I presume there will not be a bill of any special importance pass the Senate from this time to the end of the session that will not go into conference, and the result will be that all those bills would become laws, amended perhaps, by the action of of a conference committee. So, while I make this statement I do not feel that it is my duty to apologize to the publishers or the writers of these books for offering an amendment which my constituents earnestly desire shall be offered. Therefore, Mr. President, I offer the [following] amendment:

"In section 3, line 23, after the word 'book,' insert 'map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, chromo, or lithograph;' so as to read:

"Provided That in case of a book, map chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, chromo, or lithograph, the two copies of the same required to be delivered or deposited as above, etc.

"In section 3, line 26, after the word 'therefrom' insert 'or from engravings, cuts, negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or from transfers made therefrom;' so as to read:

"The two copies of the same required to be delivered or deposited as above shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States or from plates made therefrom, or from engravings, cuts, negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or from transfers made therefrom.

"In section 3 line 28, after the word 'book,' insert 'map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, or lithograph, cut, print, or photograph;' so as to read:

"During the existence of such copyright the importation into the United States of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, or lithograph, cut, print, or photograph, so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same not made from type set within the limits of the United States, shall be, etc.

"In section 3, line 29, after the word 'set,' insert 'engravings, negatives, or drawings on stone made;' so as to read:

"Or any plates of the same not made from type set, engravings, negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States shall be, etc.

"In section 3, line 35, after the word 'book,' insert 'map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, chromo, or lithograph;' so as to read:

"And except in the case of persons purchasing for use and not for sale, who import not more than two copies of such book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, chromo, or lithograph at any one time, in each of which cases the written consent of the proprietor of the copyright, signed in the presence of two witnesses, shall be furnished with each importation."

Mr. Frye here remarked: "Mr. President, of course an explanation is necessary as to this amendment.

"On page 3 of the bill, beginning in line 23, there is the following proviso:

"Provided, That in the case of a book the two copies of the same required to be delivered or deposited as above shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom. During the existence of such copyright the importation into the United States of any book so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same not made from type set within the limits of the United States, shall be, and it is hereby, prohibited except—

"In certain specified cases.

"In other words, the printers were fortunate enough to receive absolute protection in their business in the United States under this bill, but the lithographers, the photographers, and the plate engravers have no protection whatever. They are left at the mercy of the foreign nations with their cheap labor.

"In the business of lithography alone there is an investment of $18,000,000, which is carried on in two hundred and fifty-nine cities of the United States, and employs nearly 14,000 men and women. Yet, under this bill, they are left entirely at the mercy of Germany, which pays only one-third of the price paid for the same kind of work in the United States.

"This amendment is for one sole, single purpose, and no other, and that is to afford to the lithographers, photographers, and plate-work men precisely the same protection that is afforded by the bill itself to the printers. I certainly cannot myself see any reason why it should not be done."

In support of the amendments, Mr. Frye read letters from E. C. Allen & Co. and Vickery & Hill, both of Augusta, Me., publishers of so-called family papers of purely local reputation, who distribute chromos as premiums, claiming that the bill would actually protect the home market for lithographic productions against American workmen and in favor of foreign workmen.

Mr. John R. McPherson, of New Jersey, made an argument in favor of the amendment speaking for a combination of lithographers, photographers, printers of music and others, and presented a lengthy petition signed by Joseph P. Knapp, Donaldson Brothers, Schumacher & Ettlinger, F. Heppenheimer's Sons, Julius Bien & Co., Sackett & Wilhelms Lithographing Company, G. H. Buek & Co., The Giles Company, Lindner, Eddy & Clauss, The Gast Lithograph and Engraving Company, J. Ottman Lithographing Company, Trautmann, Bailey & Blampey, of New York City, and The National Lithographers Association of the United States, per H. T. Koerner, Secretary, embracing 57 establishments in 19 cities of the Union giving their position.

Mr. Eugene Hale, of Maine, supported the amendment of his colleague's because he thought the bill "as now framed is in the interests of a particular select class of American manufacturers and laborers, and discriminates against the others."

Mr. John H. Reagan, of Texas, said: "This bill, Mr. President, is much more than a copyright bill. It is curious to see that at the threshold the discussion is not about the protection of authors in the fruits of their labor and study, but the protection of mechanical interests and capital and persons engaged in particular vocations. It seems to me that that is entirely foreign to a copyright bill, and I shall propose an amendment.

"I propose to strike out the words beginning with the word 'provided,' in line 23, page 3. down to and including the word 'permitted,' in line 46, on page 4; and to strike out the words 'printed upon type set within the limits of the United States,' on page 5, in lines 26 and 27. If that amendment is adopted it will bring up the question whether we are to adopt a copyright bill or a protective-tariff bill.

"In my judgment, Mr. President, that is the question presented exactly by the discussion this morning. If we adopt this bill, instead of its being a fair and just international copyright bill, we give foreign authors the benefit of their publications in this country upon condition that special privileges are given to the men who print and publish their productions. That, it seems to me, Mr. President, is taking away from foreign authors the virtue which would be in a bill to conserve and to preserve to them their interests as authors.

"The whole equity of an international copyright bill, as I understand it, is based upon the idea that an author of a book should have the fruits of his labor, just as to an inventor, or any other scientific or useful appliance, is secured the right to the fruits of his labor. In this case, if we adopt the bill as it is presented to us, and as it is proposed to be amended, we shall first do injustice to foreign authors; we will next do injustice to American readers. . . .

"While I recognize the fact that a legitimate international copyright bill would increase the cost of literature to readers in this country, I also recognize that for a limited period of time justice requires that the authors ought to have the benefits of their labors, and I would yield as much. But when they go beyond that and make this a pretence for levying tribute upon those readers and authors for the benefit of American printers, then, Mr. President, I do not agree to that, and if the bill comes up in that form I shall certainly vote against it, and I hope for its defeat.

"Mr. President, it seems to me a little hard that no measure, however beneficent, can come up in Congress but whatever virtue there is in it must be loaded with a special job. This is not right. This is one of the modern inventions of American legislation. It was not so in former times, when broad, general questions could be discussed upon their merits and decided without appeals to local interests, without appeals to local prejudices, without appeals to voters for their support and influence in elections. It seems that any class in this country have a very potential influence over legislation when they come forward and demand from Congress to yield something to them, to give them some advantages over other people; then you will have their friendship and support; otherwise you will have their condemnation and not have their votes. Just how far this element may influence the actions of others I do not know. I only say that whether it influences the actions of Senators or not, it unquestionably is the motive prompting these appeals for class legislation."

Mr. Richard D. Coke opposed the bill because he thought it was "an embargo on the spread of intelligence, on the diffusion of literature, on the spread of education among our people"—a bill, in short, "framed in the interest of a class, to the disadvantage, and detriment and injury of the great mass of the American people."

Mr. John Sherman, of Ohio, objected to the bill because he was not willing to prohibit the importation of foreign books. He thought that copyright should not be exclusive—that no foreigner should have a copyright here unless he allows the importation of books from abroad subject to duty. Mr. Platt pointed out that the length and breadth of Mr. Sherman's argument might be illustrated by applying it to the patent system. "It would be this," he said: "No foreigner shall have a patent in this country unless he allows all articles which have been produced under his patent abroad to be imported here simply upon the payment of duty. That would be no patent at all, and is no copyright at all.

"As it seems to me, the trouble which the Senator from Ohio has rests entirely upon a misapprehension of what will be done with the copyright in this country. It should be observed that this bill is not mainly to give the foreigners copyrights in this country. The main object of it, as far as we are concerned, is to give Americans copyright abroad. It seems to me that it cannot be assumed for a moment that a foreigner will come to this country and copyright his book, or his engraving, or whatever it may be, with the purpose of preventing the sale of it, for that is what the Senator from Ohio says. He says, suppose he comes over here and goes to all the expense of having a book printed in this country, as he has to do, and then concludes that he will not circulate it in this country. Such a supposition is impossible. It is incomprehensible to suppose that an author, or any person who desires to obtain the advantage of our copyright law, will come here and seek a copyright for the purpose of preventing the sale of his work in this country. There is no object in such a proceeding. His business abroad is no better for it.

"On the other hand, the very object of his coming here, and securing a copyright in this country, is to secure this market and to secure it exclusively. That is what we propose to give him; it is what we ought to give him. So the fear which the Senator has, seems to rest upon what appears to me to be impossible apprehension or the apprehension of an impossible contingency."

Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, interrupted Mr. Platt, saying: "The Senator knows that I agree entirely with him about his bill in every particular, but I should like to have him state for information what provision is made, if any, in regard to this matter. Suppose there is a valuable foreign book, the edition of which is of great value by reason of its beauty, its rarity, or its containing what other editions do not contain—annotations or illustrations—does this bill, in the first place, preserve the right of the public libraries and the colleges to import such things as the law exists now in regard to admission duty free?

"In the next place, what opportunity is there for individuals who desire to acquire such things to obtain them? For instance, let me illustrate the case by referring to Mr. Dana's "Two Years Before the Mast." I purchased a little English edition, which I now own, printed from type not much larger than the head of a pin, published abroad. I suppose that was the only English edition of that book. Suppose that such an edition existed here of some English author, not a very famous one, so that his works were not in much demand, is there any possibility of our getting other editions from abroad that are preferable?"

Mr. Platt replied: "I was coming to that point, but I want to state that the argument, based upon the supposition that the author or whoever proposes to avail himself of our copyright system would come here and take out a copyright and then prohibit the circulation of the book, need not excite any apprehension.

"Then the Senator says, we ought to have the right to buy an edition of a book which is not published in this country. The bill preserves that. It preserves in the first place the right for colleges, libraries, and people who desire books for educational purposes to import two books each, and that is extended in the bill in lines 34 and 35. on page 4.

"I commence to read on page 3 to show its connection on page 4:

"During the existence of such copyright—

"That is, where an author has come here and had his book manufactured here, two copies of it, has gone to all that expense, and of course with reference to its publication and circulation in this country—

"During the existence of such copyright the importation into the United States of any book so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same not made from type set within the limits of the United States, shall be, and it is hereby, prohibited, except in cases specified in section 2505 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

"That protects colleges and institutions. It allows them to import foreign editions.

"And except in the case of persons purchasing for use and not for sale, who import not more than two copies of such book at any one time.

"That authorizes, with the consent of the proprietor of the copyright, the importation of this edition, which would always be given as a matter of course.

"Now, there is a very homely old saying that you cannot keep your cake and eat it too. You cannot give to the author a copyright in the United States, which, under the Constitution is an exclusive right, and then say, 'Why, we give you this exclusive right in the United States, but the books which have been printed abroad shall come here.' That is not the exclusive right; it is no right at all. No publisher would take the publication of a book under those circumstances. It will not make dearer books in the United States, for the United States edition in the usual course of trade will always be a cheaper edition than the foreign editions. . . .

"The trouble about it is, Senators do not seem to understand that in the very nature of things copyright and patent are exclusive in their character, and if they are not exclusive they are of no value. It seems to me that this bill has gone just as far as it can to meet precisely the cases which the Senator from Ohio is troubled about, without entirely destroying the copyright principle.

"A suggestion was made by the Senator from Ohio that the expense of the importation, the consular certificate, and all that sort of thing, would be so great that nobody could get a copy from abroad! In the first place, nobody will want to do it except as a matter of fancy to gratify a fancy for some peculiar edition, some expensive edition, some particularly printed edition. If a person simply desires to gratify a fancy in having a foreign edition of a book, of course the person can afford to pay for it. There will be the book circulated in this country, and in a condition where it can be read. If a person wants a finely bound book or a very peculiarly printed book, that is a matter of fancy; it is a matter of indulging his taste, and for that why should he not pay what is necessary to pay in order to acquire the means to gratify his taste and his fancy?

"But it will not be so expensive as the Senator suggests, because those books can be imported by mail, I understand. I think I am not mistaken about that. The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. Carlisle] will correct me if I am wrong; but two books of any edition might be imported by mail, I understand; and there are regulations to observe in the Post-Office Department. It does not require a broker in the city to order them, or anything of that sort. It will not be very cumbersome or very onerous to thus gratify one's taste. But if you are going to give a foreign author a copyright in this country, or to give an American a copyright in another country you must put it in the power of that author to 'contract with one person for the circulation of his book, or whatever else is the subject of copyright, whether in this country or in a foreign country.

"I will take now the case of an American, for this is to be a reciprocal law. Suppose he goes abroad and seeks to copyright his work abroad, and he does so. He makes a contract with his publisher there. Is he then to have that contract broken up by anybody importing a book from America free, for there is no tariff? It seems to me that there is not the difficulty which the Senator from Ohio sees in this matter."

The Vice-President at this juncture presented telegrams received by him from the President of the Boston Art Club, John Andrew & Son Company, of Boston, the Gravure Etching Co., also of Boston, and J. P. Rinn, the Treasurer of the Paint and Clay Club, artists of Boston, all protesting against the adoption of Mr. Frye's amendment. A similar protest was read from the President of the Papyrus Club, of Boston, a society of authors and artists, and from the Boston Society of Architects. A telegram from General Francis A. Walker, of Boston, was also laid before the Senate, stating the opposition of artists to the lithographic amendment. Another protest against the same amendment was received by the Vice-President from the Heliotype Printing Company, of Boston. The President of the American Library Association sent a communication, urging the passage of the bill in its present form, which was also laid before the Senate by the Vice-President.

Mr. Wm. M. Evarts, among others, made the point that "We have debated and debated and we passed this bill on every question that now is brought up for consideration, unless it be the amendment proposed here by the Senator from Maine. We passed this bill in the Senate at the last session of Congress by a vote of 38 to 10, and here it comes again, the same bill in all its general features, and on all these general contentions on one side or the other. It did not pass the other House when the bill was sent down at the last Congress. Now here comes up to us a bill, our Senate bill, in all its features, in all its substance, and in all the principles of duty and of obligation which have been brought to this point.

"Therefore, Mr. President, I should consider that we would be placing ourselves in a very extraordinary point of view if we were to strike at the foundation principles as to whether we will give foreign copyright, when, after our debate, discussion, consideration, evidence taken pro and con, we had by a great majority, and really after debate was exhausted, and without contention, the sense of the Senate was fairly made up on that topic.

"Now, Mr. President, at this stage of the session there arises a question of the wisdom of legislation. The great contention, the great area of debate in the public mind and in the two Houses of Congress and in foreign countries, in literature, in all the diversified forms in which the subject has received treatment, is now here I suppose a settled opinion of the Senate that this bill should be passed upon these general views, and at this stage of it there is introduced an amendment limited in its character and resting upon we will say very sound considerations.

"It seems that although these photographers, etc., were protected in the right of copyright just as much I suppose as printers and bookmakers in foreign countries, if it is reciprocal, and certainly we open here to lithographers and photographers, etc., the benefits of copyright, it seems the protected sanction by which importations of these copyrighted articles secured here, as I understand, may be printed abroad and introduced here. Am I right? The Senator from Maine can well assure me if I am. That is the proposition.

"Now, I cannot draw any distinction between the rights of these photographers and lithographers to vote these sanctions of protection that have been thrown over the larger subject of the printing of books. I have not the least idea, however, that there is lurking in the minds of the printers of books or the authors of books or in the committees of either House of Congress or in our discussion any desire or purpose to draw this distinction.

"Then when the public mind of all engaged in printing, in authorship, in the various compositions that come within the copyright system has been thus expressed, how does it happen that at this very last moment we are confronted with the question whether we shall preserve and secure in the present Congress the great general bill which we are so much interested in, or shall expose it to loss by the reopening of this amendment in the other House, on the general question of reconsideration of which we have an example here, especially from the Senator from Ohio on the general principles of our bill?

"I have no doubt that the Senator from Maine is right in thinking that the very large and enterprising publications in his State exceed those of any other establishment, but I cannot overlook the fact that in the State of New York and in the city of New York there are very important and interesting employments of industry and of trade upon these subjects of photography, etc. I have received their petitions and presented them; I have had interviews with the most intelligent gentlemen presenting their views, but I have been obliged to make this answer to them: 'You come at a stage in legislation when at this introduction of your rights into the general establishment of rights which you sympathize with and wish to join in receiving these advantages, you jeopard that whole framework, and if it goes down at this Congress the whole structure must be built up, and we cannot have any assurance that there may not have been changes in public views and in relations of political feeling on these subjects.' Therefore my answer has been necessarily, 'This right of yours will be confirmed in all its phases, except this sanction, if this bill is passed, and by the passage of the bill and its becoming a law, you place yourself upon the necessary footing of acceptance in an amendment of that law whenever an opportunity presents itself for that purpose.'

"Indeed, Mr. President, if I were to give my judgment here on this topic, I should say that, taking it altogether, the interest of these photographers in obtaining this amendment or a provision equivalent to their wishes at this session of Congress would be greater by this bill being accepted and becoming a law, and there being left present to both Houses of Congress nothing but a minor suggestion whether the law ought to be perfected in reference to these interesting and valuable industries and trades. No gainsay could be given, as I understand it, against the adoption, and then it would be a very different question in going from here under a separate bill that we adopt in their favor. It would go to the other House under entirely different circumstances from those in which this bill in its general frame and structure would go back there if so amended. Nothing there can be opened in the mind or in the wishes of any legislator there. There will be no desire nor any freedom, as it seems to me, to treat a supplemental bill, as I should call it, otherwise than is necessary to the completion and perfection of the bill that has become a law, and thus the principle established.

"That is my view. We understand very well what is the condition when we have before us in either House nothing but a question of conformity to the general established measure that has become a law by including what has been omitted by inadvertence or by inopportuneness from the general bill.

"I therefore must concur in the feeling, notwithstanding my great respect for the interests and wishes of the photographers in my own city and other parts of my State, in thinking that this is the best thing that can be done for the general proposition, and that the minor proposition will follow in favor of these particular industries as a matter of course."

Mr. Platt here took the floor, saying: "Mr. President, if I can have the attention of the Senator from Maine and the Senator from New Jersey, I wish to say just this about the proposed amendment. I think I agree that there may be a measure of justice in the principle which they are seeking to incorporate into the bill by these amendments. I doubt very much whether if these amendments should pass they would not do great injustice. In other words, I doubt whether the same language can be made applicable to protecting the printing of a book and protecting the printing of engravings, lithographs, chromos and articles of that kind. There is a difference, an inherent difference, in the things to be reproduced. What the author does, is to write his thoughts, the results of his observation and researches, upon white paper in written characters. That manuscript is not reproduced. The making a book of it can be done entirely independent of the author's work. His work is done when it is written on paper. The reproduction is not from the paper; it is from setting up type corresponding with the written ten characters which he has put on paper.

"With regard to all this matter of the reproduction of engravings from steel or lithographing or chromo-work, that is different. You reproduce that directly from the thing which the artist himself has prepared. In other words, the quality of the author's work goes on the stone or the plate of the steel engraving, and unless it is reproduced to a certain extent under his direction, or under circumstances which do not interfere with his idea as he puts it on stone, then the quality of the work is not going to be what the author desires it to be.

"Now it is this essential difference between the two things which makes me feel that this amendment (aside from the fact that I think it imperils and endangers and defeats the passage of the bill) ought to be more fully considered in a committee that has an opportunity to understand the workings of the business, and can produce such a provision as will take care of the persons engaged in the work without in any way destroying the quality of the art.

"I am very sorry that these gentlemen came so late, that they did not come and be heard before a committee and explain to the committee the processes showing what should be done in the way of protection of the American industry without destroying the quality of the art which had been produced by the person who received the copyright. As the Senator from New York has said, there will certainly be a disposition on the part of everybody who is in favor of this copyright bill to do such substantial justice to anybody who comes within the principle which has been extended to the printers as can be done without doing injustice in other quarters."

Mr. Joseph R. Hawley, of Connecticut, made a telling speech in favor of the bill, and Mr. H. W. Blair, who seemed to be sore over the set-back to the Eight-hour bill, argued against it. Then Mr. Frye advocated his amendment. "The bill protected type printing and book publishing;" he claimed "but it was a gross injustice to stop at that. There was the same reason exactly that the foreign designers of maps, charts, musical compositions and engravings, who copyrighted their productions in the United States should be compelled to employ the labor of this country as that foreign authors should. The same reasons that worked for the printer ought to work also for the lithographer. Was there anything," he asked, "so sacred about the copyright bill that it must not be amended? The amendment which he had offered was just and fair. Every friend of the copyright bill admitted that, and the only objection to it was that made by the Senator from New York, that the adoption of the amendment might expose the bill to hazard."

The vote was then taken; the result being—yeas 27, nays 24, as follows:

Yeas.—Allen, Allison, Berry, Blackburn, Blair, Chandler, Coke, Daniel, Davis, Frye, Gorman, Hale, Ingalls, McPherson, Manderson, Morgan, Pierce, Plumb, Power, Ransom, Reagan, Sawyer, Sherman, Shoup, Squire, Turpie—27.

Nays.—Bate, Carlisle, Dawes, Dixon, Edmunds, Evarts, Faulkner, George, Hampton, Harris, Hawley, Higgins, Hoar, Jones of Arkansas, Morrill, Platt, Pugh, Quay, Stewart, Stockbridge, Vest, Warren, Washburn, Wolcott—24.

Mr. Sherman moved the following amendment:

"Section 3, line 30, after the word 'and,' it is proposed to strike out 'it is' and insert 'they are,' and in line 31, after the word 'hereby,' it is proposed to strike out the word 'prohibited' and insert 'subject to the duties provided by law;' so as to read:

"During the existence of such copyright the importation into the United States of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, or lithograph cut, print or photograph, so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same not made from type set, engravings, negatives or drawings on stone, made within the limits of the United States, shall be, and they are hereby, subject to the duties provided by law, except in the cases specified in Section 2505 of the Revised Statutes of the United States."

Mr. Platt opposed this, concluding his remarks with: "I am simply astonished, Mr. President, that any one should talk about giving copyright in America to a person not a citizen of America, which is the exclusive right to control the sale of the reproduction of his book, and then say that right shall be interfered with by any cheap literature which may come here from abroad. The two things are inconsistent. They are utterly hostile to each other. It is not copyright if this amendment is adopted; it is a delusion and a sham."

The Senate adjourned before Mr. Sherman's amendment came to a vote.

In the afternoon of the 11th the copyright bill came up for a few minutes after the Naval Appropriation bill had been disposed of, and also on the morning of the 12th, but Mr. Platt decided to let it go over for a day or two longer. Mr. Sherman, whose amendment to the measure is now pending, is in New York and will not go back to Washington probably before next week. During his absence nothing is expected to be done with the copyright question, and so the bill will continue to be the unfinished business of the Senate.

ANNUAL MEETING OF NEWSPAPER PUBLISHERS.

ALMOST every section of the United States and some parts of Canada were represented at the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the Hoffman House, New York, February 11. James W. Scott, of the Chicago Herald, was in the chair as President of the association. The morning business was purely routine. Brief reports were presented by the Secretary, Treasurer, and by the manager of the New York office. In the afternoon the association went into executive session and considered several trade matters, particularly advertising. A committee was appointed to make a thorough trial of type-setting machines. The meeting was continued on the 12th, at which resolutions were adopted authorizing the President to appoint a committee to consult with the officials of the World's Fair "as to the best way in which the interests of the country may be promoted before and during the continuance of the Fair." In the evening over a hundred persons sat down to a sumptuous banquet.

VIRTUE WAS ITS ONLY REWARD.

AN English publisher, who is somewhat lacking in a sense of humor, related the following to the London correspondent of the New York Times, as if it were a grievance. He was shipping a big consignment of books to America and sent the invoice to the Consulate here in order to prepay the duty. The price of the books was stated at 2s., but by a clerical error the vertical shilling mark was mistaken for the numeral 1, and the customs charge levied was paid on a value of 21d. When the publisher discovered this he was honest enough to write to the consignee in New York explaining the mistake. The consignee had already received the books without question, but he now went to the Custom House and told the officials of the error and proffered additional payment. The officials then bethought them of the law providing that when the invoiced value of an article was increased over 10 per cent., 50 per cent. added duty must be charged. Accordingly, as 3d is 13 per cent. of 2s., this act of perhaps unusual honesty was taxed at 50 per cent. on the entire duty paid. "I could only explain to the publisher," concludes the correspondent, "that American humor is an acquired taste."

COMMUNICATIONS.

BLAIRSVILLE, PA., Feb. 10, 1891.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: In your issue of Feb. 7 I find a letter from D. P. Henderson, of Chattanooga, Tenn., which admirably states the remedy for the present unhappy condition of the book trade. I commend every word of it to the attention of publishers. No other prescription can meet the case. In addition to the second point—colored edges and wrappers—I name a third, the entire disuse of uncut or ragged edges. I cannot sell an unfinished volume, and always feel humbugged when one comes. Very truly yours,

HOWARD P SHEPLEY

NEW YORK, Feb. 9, 1891.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: In your issue of February 7 a correspondent at Chattanooga, Mr. D. P. Henderson, suggests that publishers send at least one copy of each new book "to every bookseller, with exchange or return privilege if not sold."

This would be a very fine scheme for the bookseller, but how would the publisher come out? Experience has taught us that the "on sale" account is one of the most difficult to obtain a settlement of (except, of course, in cases of books which are quickly sold, and which stimulate additional orders). We have a few accounts of this kind that have run one or two years without settlement, the dealers simply paying no attention whatever to our statements and letters—and drafts.

The "on sale" system also offers an opportunity (which some dealers seem to be incapable of resisting) to return "by mistake" any regularly bought stock that may have remained unsold; and, on the whole, we believe it is not a paying one, so far as concerns the majority of small dealers.

Let some one devise an effective plan by which publishers can obtain prompt settlements of these "on sale" accounts without spending their profits in postage and stationery (such as, for instance, a small deposit by the bookseller as a running guarantee), and they will be more inclined to follow Mr. Henderson's suggestion.

PUBLISHERS.

CAN IT BE REFUTED?

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 7, 1891.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly:

SIR: As is known to the trade generally, we are closing our business, and have now about disposed of our stock. We are only waiting to rent the property, which we own and have occupied for more than 30 years, and then we will fold our tent as a firm and quietly "hie away." In closing our account with the daily papers here, they noted the fact that it was the oldest firm account on their books, being continuous since 1855, and that our "ad." had found a place in every issue since. In thanking them for the kindly notice we made a brief statement, and now repeat it, to appear in yours if you think it of interest: 1st, We are the oldest firm in this city, in any line of trade. 2d, That we are the oldest firm in the United States, either as booksellers, stationers or publishers. We mean by that term that no firm of two or three men is now in business, without change, that was formed when we started, in October, 1855. If we are wrong, we are open to conviction.

STEELE & AVERY.

JAMES REDPATH, prominent in the anti-slavery movement in this country, died on the 10th inst. at St. Luke's Hospital, New York, of injuries received a week before, in being run over by a car while crossing Park Row to reach the Post-Office. Mr. Redpath was born in Bewick-on-Tweed, England, in 1835, and came to this country when a boy. In 1860 he published a "Life of John Brown." In 1880 he published Redpath's Weekly, which lived two years. He was next appointed managing editor of the North American Review by Thorndike Rice. His last literary work was to assist Jefferson Davis in the preparation of his autobiography.

BUSINESS NOTES.

ABERDEEN, WASH.—Austin & Morten, booksellers and stationers, are advertising to sell out.

BRENHAM, TEX.—Julian McFarland, bookseller, has sold out.

CARROLLTON, KY.—Matt Biersdorfer's stock of books and stationery has been burned out.

CINCINNATI, O.—Welke & Pohl, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

CLEVELAND, O.—The stock of German books of Emil Jeschke was sold January 17, at sheriff's sale, for $1025.

COVINGTON, KY.—The A. Lindsay Company has been incorporated at this place to manufacture and publish books; capital stock claimed is $50,000.

JERSEY CITY, N. J.—The Christian Literature Company has been incorporated here with a nominal capital stock of $50,000, to print and publish books.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Parkin & Gibb, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

LAWRENCE, KAN.—The Field & Hargis Book and Stationery Co. has been incorporated with a capital stock of $20,000. The directors are S. T. Field, T. M. Hargis and W. E. Chapman. The business of the firm known as Field & Hargis has increased so rapidly that they found it necessary to increase their facilities. Their business is no longer confined to the limits of Lawrence, Douglas County, nor to Kansas, but has extended to adjoining States and territories. The new company will soon take charge of the present stock, and the business facilities will be increased.

LOCKPORT, N. Y.—Charles Lantaff, bookseller and stationer, Lockport and Elmira, N. Y., it is reported, has sold his Lockport store to Joseph Newton, the consideration in the bill of sale being $2500, and has made an assignment.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.—J. C. Olmstead, bookseller, is selling off his stock at auction.

MIDDLETOWN, O.—H. H. Crawford has closed up his book and stationery store.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—H. H. West & Co.'s stationery and bookstore was destroyed by fire Thursday night, Feb. 5. Although fully protected by insurance it may be some time before a settlement can be made with the insurance companies. They will fit up at once a new store at 347 and 349 East Water Street.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Catholic Publication Soc. Co. have secured desirable premises at No. 12 East 17th Street, and will remove thereto May 1. They will give especial attention in their new quarters to the retail trade, a branch to which they have given very little care in the past, confining themselves almost exclusively to a wholesale business.

OGDENSBURG, N. Y.—The Edgar A. Newell Company has been formed at Ogdensburg, N. Y., to take over the business, wholesale and retail, of Edgar A. Newell, consisting of books, stationery, notions, wrapping-papers, etc., and the business, both wholesale and retail, formerly owned by R. T. & G. W. Robinson & Co., consisting of frames, draperies, window-shades, glass etc. The officers of the company are Edgar A. Newell, president and manager; Charles A. Merriman, treasurer, and William A. Megaw, secretary. The company directors are: Edgar A. Newell, Chas. A. Merriman, Wm. A. Megaw, R. T. Robinson and G. W. Robinson. The other stockholders of the company are: Eugene Smith, D. E. A. Pearson, Wm. T. Welch and O. B. Robinson, all of whom have an active interest in the business.

PEORIA, ILL.—It is reported that F. B. Dawson, bookseller, has made an assignment.

PORTLAND, ME. — We regret to hear that McLellan, Mosher & Co., stationers and booksellers, have made an assignment. Liabilities are estimated at $17,000 and assets at $14,000.

RIVERSIDE, CAL.—Trowbridge & Maynard, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—B. G. Raybould is closing out his stock of books.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.—Spencer & Kimball, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.—M. A. Wertheimer & Co., booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.—Horace H. Moore, bookseller, has gone out of business.

TRENTON, N. J.—Dunn, Baker & De Con, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

WACO, TEX.—R. J. Tolson & Co., booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

WEST PLAINS, MO.—Frank W. Brown intends selling his book and stationery business.

XENIA, O.—Thompson & Breathby, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

U. HOEPLI, Milan, has just issued a valuable antiquarian catalogue of works relating to Italian history—in fact an approximately complete bibliography of Italian history. It is divided into two parts: (1) Italian history in general, and communal and municipal. The second part is arranged alphabetically under the headings of the names of the cities or the communes. Naturally, nearly all the books catalogued are in the Italian language, though many in English, German and French are found. (No. 68, 7101 titles.)

Catalogues of New and Second-hand Books.—Bowers & Loy, 111 Nassau St., N. Y., New York Book Reporter, No. 2. Miscellaneous. (689 titles.)—Luzac & Co., 46 Great Russell St., London, List of a choice collection of Sanskrit literature. (12 p. 16°); also, Monthly list of Oriental books. (December, No. 10, 16 p. 16°.)—Jos. McDonough, 53 State St., Albany, N. Y., Miscellaneous. (No. 69, 602 titles.)—U. Maggs, 159 Church St., Paddington Green, London, Miscellaneous. (No. 93, 1397 titles.)—James Rimmell & Son, 91 Oxford St., London, Clearance Catalogue of Topographical books, engravings, etc., including many relating to London and Middlesex. (No. 129, 964 titles.)—Henry Sotheran & Co., 136 Strand, London, Sotheran's Price Current of Literature, Jan., 1891. (No. 500, 32 p. 12°.)

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

B. HERDER, St. Louis, Mo., has in press "The Life of Jesus Christ according to Gospel History," by Rev. A. J. Maas, S.J., of Woodstock College.

THE WELCH, FRACKER CO. have in preparation, a "Life of Charles Brockden Brown, with a View of Post-Revolutionary Literature," by Edward Irenæus Stevenson.

MISS ARABELLA D. ARMSTRONG, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Armstrong, was married to Dr. John E. L. Davis, at the residence of the bride's parents, 4 E. 63d Street, New York, on the 7th inst.

HARPER & BROTHERS have nearly ready in the series of Queen Victoria's Prime Ministers the volume on Sir Robert Peel. The volumes already issued are on Lord Beaconsfield and Lord Melbourne.

L. R. HAMERSLY & CO., 1510 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, has just ready a revised edition of the "History of the U. S. Marine Corps, from 1740 to the present time," by Richard S. Collum, Capt. U. S. M. C.

LONGMANS, GREEN & CO. will publish at once "Across East African Glaciers," by Dr. Meyer, an account of the first ascent of Mount Kilimanjaro, one of the most important events of recent African explorations.

AMELIE RIVES-CHANLER'S novel, to which she has given the name "A Girl of the Pavement," is said to be now in the hands of a New York firm under consideration. She desires its publication first in serial form.

A BOOK on the "Childhood and Youth of Charles Dickens," by Robert Langton, consisting largely of entirely original and interesting information, is to appear shortly in London. It will be fully illustrated.

THE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF PENNSYLVANIA will publish at once the Writings of John Dickinson, beginning with a Life of him which has been written by Dr. Charles J. Stillé. A separate edition of the Life will be offered to the trade.

WORTHINGTON COMPANY will publish shortly a new issue of E. G. Squier's "Adventures on the Mosquito Shore," published about thirty-five years ago under the title of "Waikna." The volume will contain seventy wood and photogravure illustrations.

THE SALEM (Mass.) PRESS PUBLISHING AND PRINTING COMPANY have ready for publication a genealogy and history of the Treat Family in America, the record of which, up to 1800, is considered nearly perfect. Subscriptions are solicited by the compiler, John Harvey Treat, Lawrence, Mass.

THE MILTON WESTON CO., 149 Michigan Ave., Chicago, announces that their pamphlet on "World's Fairs, from London, 1851, to Chicago, 1893," by the late General C. B. Norton, is issued free only to the press, and that the public is expected to pay twenty-five cents per copy. The pamphlet is fully worth twice that amount.

THE Shakespeare Society of New York intends to publish a four-text edition of "Hamlet." It will contain the three versions of 1603, 1604, and 1623, accurately reproduced, and a translation of the German version performed in Dresden in 1626, the original of which is supposed to have been taken to Germany from London in 1603 by actors.

THE New York agency of Macmillan & Co. will hereafter be conducted as a distinct business under the same firm-name. The New York house will act as agents for Messrs. Macmillan & Co., of London, and for the publications of the Oxford and Cambridge University Presses. The business of the New York house will continue under the charge of Mr. George P. Brett, as resident partner. The change dates from June 1, 1890.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL CO. announce for the Easter season three tokens of an attractive character. The first two are compiled by Rose Porter, and entitled "Cathedral Echoes, or, Easter praise," and "Easter, Interpreted by Robert Browning." The third is a collection of Mary Lowe Dickinson's choicest poems, titled "The Living Christ—Easter Thoughts for the King's Daughters." These booklets will be issued in white vellum covers, decorated with appropriate designs.

C. A. WATSON, Fourteenth Street and Fifth Avenue, N. Y., has just published the first number of a new magazine entitled Romance, containing twenty short stories of varied character by Stevenson, Kipling, Daudet, and others, selected by the New York Story Club. The magazine is gotten up in attractive shape and pocketable size, printed in large clear type on good paper. The underlying idea of the collection is a protest against long stories, dull stories, and maudlin stories. The subscription price is $3 per year.

NORMAN W. HENLEY & CO., 150 Nassau St., N. Y., will publish shortly an "Arithmetic of Electricity," by T. O'Connor Sloane. The work gives electric calculations in such a simple manner that it can be used by any one having a knowledge of arithmetic. It treats of calculations for wiring, resistance in general, arrangement of batteries for different work, and all other practical calculations of heating effects, work and energy, and is supplemented by the most practical series of tables ever published.

STREET & SMITH, N. Y., will publish at once in their Primrose Series, "Cleopatra," translated from a French work founded on Sardou's celebrated drama, by A. D. Hall, which will have interest at this time, as the leading character of this story is being represented in this country by Sarah Bernhardt in the original, and in English by Fanny Davenport; and will add to their Select Series, "The Three Blows," a story of revenge and to their Sea and Shore Series, "Texas Jack," a border story, by Ned Buntline.

TUTTLE, MOREHOUSE & TAYLOR have recently issued a limited edition of "The Philosophical Works of Leibnitz," translated and furnished with notes by George Martin Duncan, of whose capacity as translator Prof. George Trumbull Ladd, of Yale University, speaks highly in a few introductory remarks. Until recently no collection at once complete and trustworthy had ever been made of the writings of Leibnitz. Gerhardt's edition has been used by the translator, who has selected those portions which give the clearest survey of his system of thought.

BENZIGER BROTHERS will publish shortly

"Letters," being volume 18 of the Centenary Edition of St. Alphonsus' works and the first volume of the Letters; "Counsels of St. Angela to Her Sisters in Religion," and "St. Joseph: short meditations for March," by Rev. Richard F. Clarke, S.J. They have in preparation "Life of Just de Bretenières, Missionary Apostolic and Martyr in Corea." They will publish during the course of the year, "The Priest at the Altar; or, The Sacrifice of the Mass Worthily Celebrated," from the French of Father Chaignon, S.J., by Bishop de Goesbriand.

THE case of Dodd, Mead & Co., New York, vs. H. J. Smith & Co., Chicago, Ill., came up in the Common Pleas Court No. 3, of the latter city, last week. The allegation was that Dodd, Mead & Co. had the sole right to print and publish certain books written by the late E. P. Roe; that they published these in two styles, one in paper covers at 50 cents per copy retail, the other in cloth covers with an elaborate design at $1.50 per volume, retail. That the defendants purchased a large consignment of the cheaper edition, rebound them in cloth covers, bearing a stamped design closely resembling the design of the defendants on the more costly edition, which they are offering for sale at 60 cents per volume, thereby decreasing the demand for the more costly edition of the complainants. The defendants denied that they were imitating the more costly edition of the plaintiffs, and the Court declined to grant preliminary injunction, saying that it was not inclined to interfere with a man's business by such a process. The application for a permanent injunction is still to be disposed of.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have in preparation two volumes of short stories, one by H. C. Bunner, the other by Richard Harding Davis; a new volume by Andrew Lang, entitled "Essays in Little," the subjects including Stevenson, Kipling, Dumas, Scott and Lever; and a new edition (the sixth) of Woolsey's "Introduction to the Study of International Law," revised and brought down to date by the author's son, Theodore S. Woolsey. They also announce that four more volumes in the Famous Women of the French Court Series will be issued by them. The first, "Marie Louise and the Invasion of 1814," will be ready this month. The three others are in press, and their titles are "Marie Antoinette at the Tuileries," "Marie Antoinette and the Downfall of Royalty," and "Marie Louise, the Return from Elba, and the Hundred Days." Ten volumes, therefore, will compose the whole series—three on Marie Louise, three on Josephine and four on Marie Antoinette. Arrangements have been made for the publication of the series in London.

A SECOND volume of Charles Booth's "Labor and Life of the People" is in press and will be published in the spring. It embraces Central London, and will be accompanied by maps.

AN international exhibition of books has been opened in Copenhagen as a celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the introduction of printing into Denmark by Gottfried von Ghemen who printed the first book in Copenhagen, in 1491.

MR. HERBERT SPENCER will publish in March an entirely new edition, in three octavo volumes, of his "Essays, Political, Scientific and Speculative." It will contain many new essays not included in the previous editions, and will be uniform in size with his other works.

WILLIAMS & NORGATE propose, if they meet with sufficient support, to print a considerable quantity of Irish texts, edited (with English translation) by Mr. Standish Hayes O'Grady, under the title of "Silva Gadelica." It will comprise tracts from Liber Lageniensis or the Book of Leinster, the Book of Ballymote, the Lebher Breac, the Book of Lismore, and other manuscripts on vellum, together with some taken from good paper manuscripts which internal evidence marks as issuing (whether in the first degree or not) from seventeenth century transcripts (also on paper) of vellum copies now lost, or at all events unknown.

KEGAN PAUL & CO. will publish in April a book by Whateby Cooke Taylor, entitled, "The Modern Factory System." It is to some extent the sequel to an earlier one, published about four years ago, entitled "Introduction to a History of the Factory System," but is a complete and separate work. It continues the history of organized labor in England down to the present time, dealing with some of its latest developments, and with many problems of modern industry exciting a good deal of interest just now. They are about to issue a new edition of James Sully's "Pessimism," with a preface and bibliography, bringing up to date the development of pessimistic literature in Germany and other countries.

CHATTO & WINDUS will shortly publish a volume in which Mr. H. R. Fox-Bourne proposes to review the whole history of "Stanley's Emin Relief Expedition." A chapter will be devoted to the lamentable affairs of the Rear Column, about which so many books and newspaper contributions have already appeared; but these will only be discussed as a subordinate part of the general enterprise. The intention of the forthcoming volume is to point out and trace what, in the author's opinion, were the deliberate faults and avoidable blunders of the entire expedition, and the causes of its failures, in so far as it failed. The book will be, says the Athenæum, from which we quote this information, "in fact, an outspoken indictment of Mr. Stanley and his employers." Prof. Henry Drummond, by the way, is going to reply to Mr. Stanley in the preface to a new edition of "Tropical Africa."

PICK-UPS.

"PACKS FOR BISCOMB" was the order sent to James Pott & Co. by one of the cultivated many who wanted to read Prof. Drummond's latest book.

RHYMER'S RELATIONSHIP TO THE MUSES.—"Rhymer is a wonderful poet. He seems a brother to the muses." "Yes. He has wooed them all and they have apparently agreed to be sisters to him."—N. Y. Sun.

Book-Agent (entering): "Madam, I have a work of art to show you. It is a book—" Lady of the House (re-opening the door): "And I have a work of art to show you. It is a landscape."—Puck.

BOTH CRITICAL.—"Your books haven't any meat in them, Bronson," observed Scaddleberry. "My dear fellow, you should patronize a butcher, not a novelist," returned Bronson.—N. Y. Sun.

The Life of Jesus, the Christ.

By HENRY WARD BEECHER.

COMPLETED EDITION. In two volumes octavo, neatly packed in a card box. Cloth, $5.50; sheep, $7.50; half morocco, $9.50. Second volume alone: Cloth, $3.00; sheep, $4.00; half morocco, $5.00.

This edition resembles in size, color of binding, typography, etc., Vol. 1 of the unfinished octavo edition published by J. B. Ford & Co. in 1871, but has many more illustrations. Owners of that edition can now, therefore, complete their sets, or can return us the old volume as part payment for the new set. Terms on application.

Of the second volume, the first eight chapters are as Mr. Beecher wrote them. Chapters 26–32 have been compiled from Mr. Beecher's sermons preached along the line of this special subject. The text of "The Gospels Consolidated" has been omitted from Vol. 1, and separate appendixes substituted containing titles and subject-matter, with references to the Scripture passages. A second appendix has been added to Vol. 2, containing an elaborate description of the engravings, with much new and interesting matter relating to the Holy Land, etc.

The Founding of the German Empire.

VOLUME II.

Based chiefly on Prussian State Documents, by Heinrich Von Sybel. Translated by Marshall Livingston Perrin, assisted by Gamaliel Bradford, Jr. Vol. II., 634 pages, with portrait of Bismarck. 8vo, gilt top, $2.00; half morocco, $3.00. To be completed in five volumes.

A more absorbing history has never been written. The first volume has met with universal approval. The second volume herewith presented carries the narration from the dramatic negotiations of Count Brandenburg in 1850 down to the Assembly of Princes at Frankfort, in 1863, covering a period of the most vivid and vital interest. These events were a preparation for the still more stirring times when Germany was to measure her forces with Austria and France, and change the face of the Continent in a way more permanent than was ever dreamed of by Napoleon the Great. With the prospect of these coming events the remaining three volumes, which not only keep up but also enhance the interest, will be awaited with keen expectation. They will be issued at an early date.

MY LIFE WITH STANLEY'S REAR-GUARD.

HERBERT WARD.

Nearly 200 Pages with Folding Map.

A friend of Mr. Stanley and one of the most trusted and experienced Captains of the Rear-Guard; many have wondered why Mr. Ward has kept comparatively silent while the bitter controversy has been going on. In this book he speaks freely and fearlessly. He is not bitter nor prejudiced, but endeavors to do justice to his unfortunate companions by relating facts of which he produces ample proof. His narrative is absorbingly interesting and throws new light on the Rear-Guard troubles.

Cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cents.

A NEW BOOK BY W. O. STODDARD.

INSIDE THE WHITE HOUSE IN WAR TIMES.

The author of "Dab Kinzer," "Lives of the Presidents," etc., etc. The most charming and instructive of all Mr. Stoddard's works. In its pictures of men, women and events it justifies its title. Humorous, pathetic and exciting incidents follow one another through the pages of this book, making it intensely interesting from cover to cover, to both young and old. Small octavo, illustrated by Dan Beard.

Stamped cloth, $1.00.

DOÑA LUZ.

BY JUAN VALERA,

Author of "Pepita Ximenez."

TRANSLATED BY MRS. MARY J. SERRANO.

No. 67, Town and Country Library.

12mo, Paper, 50 cts.; Cloth, $1.00.

"The fascination of Doña Luz and her history is that of a most tender and tragic beauty. We know hardly any figure in fiction more lovely and affecting than Doña Luz. . . . It is all very fine and masterly work, scarcely to be matched in the contemporary fiction of our language, if that is not putting the case too faintly."—W. D. HOWELLS, in Harper's Magazine.

A NEW EDITION OF

BY JUAN VALERA.

TRANSLATED BY MRS. MARY J. SERRANO.

12mo, Paper, 50 cts.; Cloth, $1.00.

The Nation says: "'One of the jewels of literary Spain' is what a Spanish critic has pronounced the most popular book of recent years in that language, Don Juan Valera's novel, 'Pepita Ximenez.'"

The St. Louis Republic says: "Valera is a smooth, graceful writer, and his 'Pepita' must excite a great deal of attention."

The Boston Transcript says: ". . . A very striking and powerful novel."

The Evening Telegram says: "A remarkable good story is 'Pepita Ximenez.' . . . The novel is to be strongly recommended."

The Sun (New York) says: "There is a new source of pleasure to novel-readers of discriminating taste in the work of Señor Juan Valera. . . ."

The Critic says: "It is a very entertaining and, moreover, a very artistic piece of work, full of quaint and delicate humor and of shrewd insight into varied human character."

The Baltimore Sun says: "It is the best novel that a Spanish author has given us."

NOTES IN SEASON.

J. G. CUPPLES CO. will shortly issue a new science of soul, brain and body in a volume written by Prof. J. R. Buchanan, entitled "Therapeutic Sarcognomy," said to make a total revolution in physiology and medical philosophy, by presenting in one systematic view the functions of brain, soul and body, with their exact anatomical connections and complex relations, and outlining a new system of practice in disease and a new method of diagnosis.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT CO. have in press Vol. VII. of their entirely new edition of "Chambers' Encyclopædia;" "The Old Navy and the New," by Rear-Admiral Samuel Ammen, with an appendix of personal letters from General Grant; "The Design of Structures," by S Anglin, giving a practical treatise on the building of bridges, roofs, etc., with numerous diagrams, examples, tables, etc.; and "An Introduction to the Study of Metallurgy," by C. Roberts Austen, with numerous diagrams.

N. D. C. HODGES, Agent for United States, Canada and England for the publications of the University of Pennsylvania, announces in preparation in the series on philology, literature and archæology, "The Terrace at Persepolis," by Morton W. Easton, Prof. of Comparative Philology; "An Aztec Manuscript," by Daniel G. Brinton, Prof. of American Archæology and Linguistics; and "A Monograph on 'The Tempest,'" by Horace Howard Furness. The papers of this series take the form of monographs covering about 200 pages.

ALMOST simultaneously with the announcement of the death of its author, Charles L. Webster & Co. put into the market the new edition of Gen. W. T. Sherman's Memoirs. It is the third edition, revised and corrected by the General himself, and appears as before, in two volumes, with an engraving after Sherman's photograph. It contains the two appendices with criticisms from other officers, and the letters brought out by the first edition from a host of native and foreign authorities. Portraits are also given of Gens. Thomas, Schofield and McPherson. The work appeared first in 1875.

THE most interesting announcement that Houghton, Mifflin & Co. could plan for many readers is one they now make of a new volume by Mr. Aldrich, to be published next week. It is entitled "The Sisters' Tragedy, with other poems, lyrical and dramatic." At the same time will be published a Guide-Book to Browning's Works, giving a great deal of historical and biographical information which has been industriously brought together and judiciously arranged by Rev. George Willis Cooke; a new book by Bret Harte, "A Sappho of Green Springs, and other stories;" and the eleventh volume of the Gentleman's Magazine Library, which is the second part of "Architectural Antiquities." Their announcement includes a book published by them last week, namely, "Later Leaves," including additional reminiscences of Montagu Williams, the eminent English lawyer.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a special edition of Irving's "Alhambra," to be known as the Darro Edition, which will be issued as a companion to the Artist's Edition of the "Sketch-Book," and will be tastefully printed with unique ornamentation from Moorish designs and contain a large number of photogravure illustrations produced from photographs taken especially for the book. They also announce Kinglake's "Eothen" and "The Sayings of Epictetus," in the Knickerbocker Nuggets; "The Life and Writings of George Mason, of Virginia," in the Early Statesmen Series; "Chapters on Banking," by Prof. Dunbar, of Harvard, and "The Industrial and Commercial Supremacy of England," by the late Thorold Rogers, in the Economic Monographs; and "Drinking-Water and Ice Supplies," in Dr. Prudden's Health Manuals. A popular edition of Dr. W. Seward Webb's "California to Alaska" is already in press, and their next novel will be "The Sardonyx Seal," a romance of Normandy, by Belle Gray Taylor.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Albert, Mrs. Octavia V. Rogers. The house of bondage; or, Charlotte Broo .s and other slaves: original and lifelike, as they appeared in their old plantation and city slave life; with introd. by Bp. Willard F. Mallalieu, D.D. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1891. c. '90. 16+161 p. por. D. cl., 75 c.

These sketches were first published as a serial in the Southwestern Christian Advocate. The subjects of these incidents actually lived and endured the sad experiences pictured by Mrs. Albert, who makes them very impressive by telling them in the narrator's own words. The heartrending scenes are chiefly in Virginia, Georgia and Louisiana. As a slave born, the author is thoroughly conversant with the racial qualities of her people, and peculiarly fitted to tell their story, give their physical, mental and moral status, and show that their vices are for the most part a condition of the institution of slavery.

Allen, Jos. H: Positive religion: essays, fragments and hints. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1891. c. 9+259 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The habit of regarding religion as a thing of opinion, of emotion or ceremony, has blinded men to it as a force. Any word, the author holds, which recognizes the positive quality in it, independent of party, race, age or creed, is a step towards the revival of it as a power, wholesome, invigorating and inspiring in the lives of men. For fifty years the author has taken an active part in nearly every public discussion that has touched on religious theory or social ethics. This volume gives faithful transcriptions of his judgments on many questions during the fifty years since this line of thought became the occupation of his life.

The poem is divided into six books, preceded by an introduction entitled "At Bethlehem." Pontius Pilate and his wife journeying to Rome through Galilee, are directed to the house of Mary Magdalene for accommodations for the night. The memory of the Christ whom he has allowed to be crucified haunts the Roman Procurator, and he seeks an interview of Mary Magdalene, to learn what the followers now think of their Messiah. His remorse becomes unendurable, and he flies the house before the dawn. Among Mary's listeners is an Eastern slave, belonging to one of the Magi who came to pay tribute to the infant Jesus. To him Mary relates the story of the life of Christ. His teachings, His death, His resurrection, and the Magus listens, at times interrupting with comparisons and contrasts between the teachings of Christ and those of Buddha. Mr. Arnold closely follows the Gospel narrative, but exercises poetic license in making Mary Magdalene identical both with Mary, the sister of Lazarus, and with the "woman who was a sinner." This edition has an introduction by Richard Henry Stoddard and gives reproductions of the paintings of Hoffman on the life of Christ. Dedicated to Queen Victoria.

and overworried generation. The author points out that people misunderstand and neglect their bodies, and underrate the nervous strain of uncontrolled emotions. She urges all nervous and melancholic people to look out and not in, and find in objective work a means of neutralizing their subjective restlessness. Singing and acting are considered from the standpoint of sincerity and simplicity, which are the foundations of art. An important book in the education of mind and body.

Cox, S:, D.D. The book of Ecclesiastes, with a new translation. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, [1891.] 12+335 p. D. (Expositor's Bible, 4th ser.) cl., $1.50.

Founded on lectures delivered twenty-five years ago and published in 1867 under the title "The quest of the chief good." This book the author has now revised and practically rewritten, having during intervening years arrived at clearer and more definite conceptions on the subject of Hebrew poetry. Scholars are now agreed that the Book of Ecclesiastes sets forth the quest of the chief good, and urges the quest in wisdom, in pleasure, in devotion to public affairs, in wealth, and in the golden mean. The writer is author of commentaries on Job, Ruth, etc.

A companion volume to the author's work on "Alexander," published a year ago. With Polybius and Livy in hand Col. Dodge has repeatedly visited the scenes of the great Punic captain's achievements. He has visited every section of Italy and has compared the facts given by the ancient chroniclers with the existing topography. The charts in the text of the volume will be found to show every essential feature of Hannibal's movements over the length and breadth of the peninsula. In a few instances the author has been compelled to treat historical matter controversially. The legends at the head of chapters admirably sum up their contents. Full index.

The story of a servant-girl's life in Paris, introducing characters in her own walk of life, and describing with minute realism many of the temptations that beset those who die serving in a great city, who create its luxuries, perish from the evil of its industries, who form the crowds upon its streets, and after lives of shame and misery are buried in unmarked graves in the public ground of its cemeteries.

Gracey, Rev. J. T., ed. Missionary year-book for 1889–90; containing historical and statistical accounts of the principal Protestant Missionary Societies in America, Great Britain and the Continent of Europe. Rev. ed. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1891. 428 p. O. cl., $1.25.

Grandgent, C. H. Materials for French composition. Pt. 1: Exercises based on "L'Abbé Constantin:" for pupils in their second or third year's study of French. Bost., D. C. Heath & Co., 1890 [1891.] 4+21 p. S. (Heath's modern language ser.) pap., 15 c.

For every one of the thirty-five exercises, the author has taken as a model about a page of the "Abbé Constantin," and has constructed in English, from the words and phrases it contains, a new conversation or narrative, rendering peculiarly French expressions by corresponding English idioms, and using the single words in forms and relations different from those they have in the original. The idea is that pupils can succeed in writing idiomatic French only through the study and imitation of good French models.

Kemble, Frances Anne. Further records, 1848–1883: a series of letters, forming a sequel to records of a girlhood and records of later life. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1891. c. 2+380 p. D. cl., $2.

Continues story of "Records of a girlhood" and "Records of later life." The seamy side of American life as viewed by an Englishwoman is depicted in the letters from York farm, near Philadelphia, in which condemnation of the climate, domestic service, living expenses, potato-bugs and the burden of Christmas gifts is mingled with bright gossip of a personal, social and literary character. Other letters record the writer's visits to New York, Boston, Lenox, Rochester and other American cities, and her life in England and on the continent, with anecdotes of celebrities. The traits of American women are freely commented upon, and the conclusion is reached that the climate makes them less tender and affectionate than other women.

Lee, Mary Catherine. In the cheering up business. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. 2+322 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Rebecca Parmelee is left at seventeen, the eldest of four orphan children, who are virtually turned out by an "invincible stepmother." After trying everywhere for work of any kind, Rebecca is asked by a complaining, dissatisfied aunt to come and cheer her up, and find a home. This Rebecca calls starting in the "cheering-up" business. She goes to a little Quaker settlement in New England, and the author of "A Quaker girl of Nantucket" makes a delightful story of her efforts to make life bright for the mentally and physically weary with whom she comes in contact.

Ludlum, Jean Kate. At Brown's: an Adirondack story. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1890 [1891.] 341 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

A young girl mentally and physically exhausted after her mother's long illness and subsequent death, is ordered to the Adirondack mountains to regain strength during a winter season. The descriptions of people and scenery and her improving influence upon her surroundings make a bright story.

Macaulay, T: Babington (Lord). Macaulay's second essay on the Earl of Chatham; ed. by W. W. Curtis. N. Y., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1891.] c. 9+144 p. S. (Students' ser. of English classics.) cl., net, 42 c.

This essay is the last Macaulay ever wrote for the Edinburgh Review. It is a model of pure English, and an example of what is most worthy of imitation in English style. The essay as given is to be studied chiefly as a piece of literature. But the notes will be found suggestive to those who desire to gain a knowledge of English history during the period covered by the essay. The notes at the back of the book cover twenty-four pages, and are arranged chronologically. Chronologies of Macaulay's life and of Pitt's life open the volume. The editor is Principal of High School, Pawtucket, R. I.

Move (A) for better roads: essays on road-making and maintenance, and road laws; with a synopsis of other contributions and a review by Lewis M. Haupt, and an introd. by W: H. Rhawn. Phil., University of Pennsylvania Pr., [Henry Carey Baird & Co.,] 1891. c. 319 p. O. cl., $2.

The highest scientific, engineering and financial talent and skill have made the railroads and transportation system of the United States the wonder of the world. Common roads have not improved in proportion. In 1889 William H. Rhawn offered to contribute through the University of Pennsylvania a prize for the best paper upon the construction and maintenance of common roads. The papers for which prizes and honorable mention were awarded, together with notes and a carefully prepared digest of all other papers, are here presented as a contribution to the cause of better roads. It is intended to present a draft or drafts of a model legislation bill for a road law in an additional volume. Full list of contributors and full index.

Parsons, Rev. Ja. C. English versification for the use of students. N. Y., Leach, Shewell & Sanborn, [1891.] c. 13+162 p. D. cl., net, 78 c.

The author is Principal of Prospect Hill School, Greenfield, Mass. He thinks students should give as much time to the prosody of their own language as they do to the classical languages. One of the chief features of the book is the copiousness of the examples, which from the beginning train the ear of the pupil to detect all the varieties of melody and harmony in the works of the acknowledged masters of English versification.

Pearse, Mark Guy. Elijah, the man of God. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1891. 3–120 p. D. cl., 50 c.

A timely volume, as the International Sunday-school Lessons throughout the world are now dealing with the life of this prophet, who became the saviour of Israel at one of the most critical periods of its history. Jezebel had succeeded to David and Solomon, and the people of God had been called upon to worship Baal and Ashtaroth, when Elijah was called from the wilderness to re-establish the old religion. Covers the Bible narrative included from 1 Kings xvii. to 2 Kings x.

Rockwell, Reese. Ringing bells. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 2–346 p. D. cl., $1.25.

"The common deeds of the common day,
Are the ringing bells in the far away."

This couplet conveys the moral of a story which tells how Marmaduke Carrington kept his mother's secret; of Desire Van Wyck's wedding; why Jean Rahey gained and Chrystal Leigh lost an inheritance, and how Duke fulfilled a moral obligation. The scenes alternate from Boston to Old Weston. The most pleasing part of the story is that which happens in a New England farmhouse.

Sermon Bible (The). Matthew xxii. to Mark xvi. N. Y., A. C. Armstrong & Son, 1891. 3+389 p. O. cl., $1.50.

Under texts taken from this portion of the Bible are given outlines of important sermons by eminent preachers existing only in manuscript; less full outlines of sermons which have appeared in volumes not easily accessible; very brief outlines of sermons published in popular volumes; and full references to theological treatises, commentaries, etc., where help may be found in the elucidation of the text. The series is under the charge of the editor of the Clerical Library, who is aided by specialists in the preparation of the separate volumes.

In addressing students in college long ago, Mr. Spurgeon urged upon them the necessity of enlivening all their sermons with illustrations. "If you do not wake up," he said, "but go through the world asleep, you cannot see illustrations; but if your minds were thoroughly aroused, and yet you could see nothing else in the world but a single tallow candle, you might find enough illustrations in that candle to last you six months. I will prove my words." The attempt to prove them produced the rudiments of these sermons. Appropriately illustrated.

After a serious break-down, following a year of exhausting revival work, the writer's physician said quietly, "He will never preach another sermon." An entire change of climate brought new hope, and little by little ability to preach in the ordinary tones of conversation. This led him to study emphasis and inflection, with a view to economize vital force in reading and preaching. The results of these studies proved specially effective in reading the Bible, and for the benefit of others the author words his method. An article originally prepared for the Homiletic Monthly on "The physical factor" is embodied in the volume.

Ward, May Alden. Petrarch: a sketch of his life and works. Bost., Roberts Bros., 1891. c. 2-293 p. D. cl., $1.25.

Mrs. Ward calls special attention to the fact that Petrarch lives and will live to most people as the poet of sonnets and lover of Laura, and then devotes her volume to showing him as the apostle of culture, the instigator of the revival of letters and the precursor of the Renaissance. Petrarch has left upwards of six hundred letters and on these his biographers chiefly base their statements. Mrs. Ward has consulted the most recent writers, including Koerting, Bartoli, Geiger, Mezières, Carducci, etc. A chapter is devoted to the friendship between Petrarch and Boccaccio. Petrarch's religious zeal and fiery patriotism are well handled. Index.

Webster, Prentiss. A treatise on the law of citizenship in the United States; treated historically. Albany, N. Y., Matthew Bender, 1891. c. 22+338 p. O. shp., $4.

The necessity of temporary and permanent sojourn by foreigners in this country, and by American citizens in foreign countries, growing out of trade and commercial relations, require that a citizen of the United States should understand his exact relation to this government, and his relations to foreign governments; and to reach this understanding the question of citizenship should be discussed with the light of the existing practice, not solely from the standpoint of the municipal statutes of this country, but more especially from the standpoint of the practice of the international common law to which our own practice has materially contributed. . . . The purpose of the writer is to lead up historically to the standpoint by which citizenship in its international sense should be judged.—Preface. Dedicated to Benjamin F. Butler.

PICK-UPS.

WHEN Cuthbert Bede's "Nearer and Dearer" was first published in this country, a well-known spinster left an order for the book on the slate of a little bookshop in Boston, presided over by a confirmed bachelor, thus: "Dear Mr. ——, get nearer and dearer. Arabella ——." Mr. ——, who had not yet heard of the new book, was in a great state of mind until he learned definitely what Arabella really wanted.

NOT REMUNERATIVE.—"It's all very well to talk of writing for posterity," sighed the poet; "but posterity isn't editing any magazine."—Puck.

THE failure is reported of the Hansard Publishing Union of London. The business of this ancient printing house was bought a year or so ago by a syndicate of speculators and turned into a limited liability company, which advertised with a prodigious splurge. Such bewildering announcements were made of properties absorbed and of branches established in England and in Austria, that a grand rush for shares ensued and no difficulty was found in making a Board of Directors almost wholly of respected members of Parliament. Now a receiver is applied for.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 21, 1891.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or our advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

In case of business changes, notification or card should be immediately sent to this office for entry under "Business Notes." New catalogues issued will also be mentioned when forwarded.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, to insure correctness in the final entry.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

RETAIL BOOKSELLING A PROFESSION.

THE following is intended as introductory to a series of articles which will attempt to put into accessible form direction and information of a practical kind that may be of service to the young recruit in the ranks of the book trade, as well as suggestive to those who may already have worked their way along without assistance of any kind The articles will be restricted as far as possible to the practical side of the question, and be based upon the experience of men whose good fortune it has been to serve their apprenticeship under the direction of masters of the profession. The matter presented, therefore, will not represent the notions of an individual, or of a theoretician, but will be an epitome of the opinions of several who are now actively engaged in the profession.

Much that will be offered may perhaps strike veterans as trite, commonplace, or as something with which every one must be acquainted. This cannot very well be avoided in an attempt to help beginners or the inexperienced to a proper understanding or appreciation of a profession in which, unfortunately for us, the opportunities for proper apprenticeship have become lamentably rare.

We invite the co-operation of all who feel so inclined to contribute what they can to make this series of the utmost value and interest. The articles now in preparation will touch upon such subjects as Entering the Profession; Preparatory Training; In the Store; Catalogues, their Use and Study; and others, carrying the series through all the phases of a bookseller's life. This covered, we hope to turn our attention to the field of the bookmaker.

Booksellers have become much too conservative; they have become much too reticent in the matter of communicating their experiences in their practical every-day life to their fellows; by persisting in which, we are inclined to think, they have lost much. They might well take a lesson from their co-workers, the librarians, who, in the first place, by associating themselves together and holding annual meetings to exchange notes and opinions, have given and received a stimulus that has carried their profession to the very front rank. And who, in the second place, by availing themselves of their organ, the Library Journal, to convey to one another their opinions, and the result of their practice and experience in the various branches of their work, are performing a service for their profession that is of the greatest possible value. Who will say that this is not within the range of our profession?

There is no business in existence more difficult or trying than the book business. By this term, of course, we mean the business in all its branches. For the most part we shall confine our observations in this series of articles to bookselling and not book-producing, as the two are so radically different, that they call for almost entirely different qualifications.

The retail bookseller should, and undoubtedly does, hold the leading position, as his requirements are many and of a higher order than is called for in the wholesale trade. Retail bookselling is beyond all doubt and in every sense of the term a profession. It is a calling that requires a scholarly education and long training. Some exception may be taken to this statement, but only by those who have given the matter little or no consideration. They would undoubtedly classify it with the ordinary mercantile business, asserting, with some show of correctness, that the book business is the handling of merchandise pure and simple, like hardware, household utensils and the like. A simple investigation, with only a slight knowledge of what is required of the retail book salesman would, we think, rapidly dissipate any such ideas.

The facts are, the retail bookseller—one who can justly lay claim to that title—is a man who must of necessity have a knowledge of the books he sells beyond their mere value as a mercantile commodity. The flat-iron, or the bedstead, or scrap-basket speak for themselves, and need no explanation from the salesman as to their purposes, they being apparent to the purchaser. But this is not so with a book. In many cases the purchaser is not clearly impressed with its purport, as the title is apt to be misguiding, and does not fully distinguish its character. The purchaser naturally relies on the bookseller for information as to the character of the book he wishes to buy, of what it treats, how it ranks as an authority, and why it holds the leading position as against other works of a similar character. It may be possible that after all it does not answer the purpose of the purchaser as fully as desired; likely as not, it does not touch as completely as wanted on that portion of the subject under examination. The bookseller is called upon to supply the deficiency, and all he has to rely upon in this emergency is his knowledge of the book and its contents, the rank of its author, and the position he holds or that has been allotted to him by the critics. No one who has not been through this experience can for a moment imagine the amount of versatility that the retail bookman is called upon to possess. Take into consideration the vast range of literature, and the thousand-and-one subjects it covers; then consider the ever-increasing army of readers and students who expect the retail bookseller to be ready to supply them with information upon any one of these subjects, and we think no one will deny that if there is a profession, retail bookselling certainly must be. Take, for example, a few questions—such as are daily put to the bookseller: "What have you of the Elizabethan dramatists; and which are considered the best, omitting Shakespeare?" "What have you on the Cromwellian Settlement of Ireland?" "The best history of the French Revolution?" "I want the best history of England from the earliest times to the present; not a concise history, but one giving the most details." "I want a history of Ireland from the English point of view." "I want a history of the United States, particularly of the period of Jefferson's administration." "Is there anything that will give me information about the discussion that took place that led up to the formation of the Constitution of the United States?" "I have such and such a work on the geology of the State of South Carolina; but I want something more descriptive, especially of the southern portion." Or, works are wanted bearing on Co-operation; Evolution, from the scientific and religious point of view; Political Economy in various creeds; the Tariff, Free Trade, Protection, etc., etc.; the history of Patagonia, or the Australian aborigines; a full account of the Malay Archipelago; the Life of Alexander the Great; the Tractarian movement of Oxford; the insurrection in Poland; an account of Ivan the Terrible; the best book on the Pentateuch; a cook-book that gives menus for every day of the year, or one that gives full directions for dressing the table; to say nothing of books that teach the art of etiquette, letter-writing, card etiquette, problems in chess, poker and whist, the latest novel, the best work of certain authors, or works that will be suitable for and delight an old lady or gentleman of 70, who have read everything, or a young miss of 18, or a young man just leaving college, down to the tot just out of the cradle. Now analyze these few questions, and see what a field they cover; and these are but a few of the questions daily put to the retail bookseller.

How is the knowledge gained to give this amount of information demanded and expected by the public? Only by long and conscientious training, much reading and study, and constant application; for it is to be borne in mind that the condition of affairs is ever changing by the issue of new publications, and what is the standard work to-day is supplanted by the newcomer to-morrow. An average of 3000 new books is issued in the course of the year, of which the retail bookseller must have some knowledge beyond their value as mercantile commodities. He must have some idea of their literary value, for it rarely happens that he is not asked for his opinion regarding them—in short, the public relies upon him largely in this respect.

The retail bookseller is an educator and a blessing to any community in which he may be placed. In smaller localities this is especially so, for in all matters pertaining to the intellectual development of his neighbors he wields an influence not to be underrated. How many a mind has he not started on its career, that has finally achieved the highest honors; and to how many has he not shown a light, in the shape of some great work of the past, that has suddenly illumined the soul of his auditor, and filled him with the desire of emulation! These points, we fancy, are rarely thought of. Yet we state most emphatically that a leaven of good is worked into the mass of humanity by the retail bookseller, for which he gets little or no credit. We call to mind numberless cases, and will venture the assertion that there is no retail bookseller who is a professional one—by this we mean to distinguish him from those who sell books as merchandise by size and quantity, together with produce and novelties—who has not had the experience, in the daily and weekly contact with his customers, of leading them away from pernicious and frivolous literature to books of a more solid and enduring character. The young men or women beginning to gather about them a few books consult the bookseller, and rely upon him for guidance in selection. Take the older reader. How often is the course of his reading not changed to his advantage by the suggestion of his bookseller! He aids in the formation of the library, public and private. It may almost be said he even takes the illiterate, and makes of them intelligent and aspiring citizens. These facts are indisputable, and show most clearly that the retail bookseller is entitled to rank among the highest workers for the good of mankind. The mercantile element of his business is as necessary for his existence as salary is to the professor, the teacher, the doctor or clergyman. His knowledge of the contents of the books he sells, their aims and purport, is likewise as essential as the knowledge of his subject for the teacher or for the doctor the knowledge of the nature of the drugs which he prescribes.

THE PASSAGE OF THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

At last a copyright bill has passed both houses of the Congress of the United States. But it is not yet law. The Senate amendments have now to go to a Conference Committee, which must agree and have its report accepted by both houses before the bill can go to the President. There is little time, but there is hope that this may be done before March 4. Otherwise work must be begun all over again.

The bill is amended in three important points: (1) It requires manufacture of art-works as well as books within the United States as a condition of their copyright. This is wrong, because art-works cannot be duplicated mechanically, as books can; the amendment should be modified to cover only processes which are essentially duplicative, as lithography and photography. (2) It permits importation of copyrighted foreign books, on payment of tariff duties. While the retention of the type-setting clause preserves the most essential feature of the manufacturing provision which is the essence of the compromise on which this bill is founded, this amendment is out of line with the principles of copyright, which give an author the property-right to dispose of his book as he will, and would also make all sorts of practical difficulties. (3) It permits the importation of periodicals without restriction. This might admit "periodicals" like our own "cheap libraries," consisting chiefly or solely of copyright material.

We repeat our word, that any bill is better than none. We trust no effort will be relaxed to secure a Conference report that will strike the happy mean, and, in any event, the passage of a Copyright law.

The Board of Trustees of the Booksellers' and Stationers' Provident Association are making an earnest effort to increase the membership of the Association to 1500. The society now numbers 1155 and pays one thousand dollars benefit to the friends of deceased members. For some time it has been the aim of a number of the members to work up the standard of membership to 1500, so that in case of epidemic or an unforeseen demand upon the treasury of the Association through an abnormal number of deaths and the consequent defection of members, the society might be able to survive the pressure by drawing upon the reserve fund that would have accumulated by the excess of membership above one thousand. As the Constitution provides for the payment of $1000 benefit, the death-tax of every additional member over the thousand would find its way into the reserve fund. This, in years, if properly cared for, would provide a safeguard in case of such unusual occurrences as have been referred to. Every member therefore owes it, if not to his own interest, at any rate to the Association, that the three hundred and eighty-five missing members shall be added to the roll before the next annual meeting. Persons between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, of sound health and good moral character, connected with the book and stationery trades and associate branches (including unmarried women who are actually engaged in the book and stationery trades), and such other persons as the Board of Trustees may deem proper to admit, may become members after passing a satisfactory medical examination. The affairs of the Association are administered ably, and as economically as possible—none of the officers claiming or receiving a cent of salary.

THE COPYRIGHT BILL IN THE SENATE.

On the 13th inst. the Sherman amendment was adopted by a vote of 25 to 24. Mr. Platt made a very earnest plea to the friends of the bill not to further endanger its chances by making any change in addition to the lithographers' amendment already inserted. Mr. Carlisle made one of the most earnest arguments in favor of the amendment. Mr. Carlisle has been opposed to any change in the bill as it came from the House of Representatives, because any change was expected to defeat the measure. Since the adoption of the lithographers' amendment, however, he felt at liberty to vote for any modification that seems to him desirable, and the Sherman amendment received his approval. Messrs. Daniel, Reagan and Vance were the other principal opponents of Mr. Platt, Mr. Vance intimating that, if he could have his way, he would abolish domestic copyright. Mr. Hoar's argument against the amendment was very brief, but as earnest as he could make it. The bill was laid aside to take up the message from the President announcing Admiral Porter's death.

On the 14th the Copyright Bill was proceeded with. Mr. Carlisle offered an amendment intended to carry out the policy of the Sherman amendment adopted on the previous day. It strikes out all of Section 3 after the Sherman amendment, and substitutes for it a provision that the section shall not be construed so as to subject to duty any article now admitted free under the laws of the United States; and that, if any person in the United States print or cause to be printed, either for sale or exportation, any book, map, chart or dramatic or musical composition in which there shall be a subsisting copyright, without the consent in writing of the proprietor thereof, or shall knowingly import for sale or hire any such article having been so unlawfully printed or made, or shall offer the same for sale, he shall be liable in damage to the proprietor of such copyright, and upon conviction shall also be subject to a fine not exceeding $1000. The question as to the meaning and effect of the amendment and as to its necessity in order to carry out the principles of the bill, gave rise to a long discussion, chiefly of a legal and technical character. The question was taken on Mr. Carlisle's amendment, and it was agreed to—yeas, 29; nays, 24.

Mr. Reagan moved to strike out of the third section the proviso requiring two copies of books, maps, charts, and so forth, to be deposited, which are to be printed from type set or plates engraved or lithographed within the United States. This was rejected by a vote of 39 nays, 16 yeas.

The bill and amendments were then reported from the Committee of the Whole to the Senate, and Mr. Platt demanded the yeas and nays on the committee amendment in bulk. The vote was taken, and the amendments were disagreed to—yeas, 29; nays, 31.

Mr. Daniel moved to amend the proviso requiring copyrighted books to be printed from type set within the United States or from plates therefrom by adding to it the words "or shall be otherwise produced in the United States from process executed in the United States." He spoke in explanation and advocacy of his amendment, illustrating his views by reference to the Encyclopædia Britannica, which, he said, from being sold at $7 a volume, was now reduced in price, owing to new processes, to a dollar a volume. Mr. Edmunds remarked that if Mr. Daniel meant the new process of heliograph the American farmer had better pay $3 a volume for books printed in the ordinary way than $1 a volume for books printed by the heliograph process—the latter being liable to injure the eyesight of those who read them. "But suppose the American farmer has not the three dollars and has the one dollar?" was Mr. Blair's proposition. "He had better wait until he has the three dollars," was Mr. Edmunds' response. Mr. Daniel suggested to Mr. Edmunds that the farmer should not be denied the right to follow his own judgment and to buy the dollar book, rather than the three-dollar book. Mr. Edmunds made some further remarks in defence of his position. The discussion drifted into other channels—the thirteenth section of the bill, as to international agreements, being criticised by Mr. Allison and Mr. Edmunds, and defended by Mr. Hoar.

The discussion was interrupted at half-past 3, when the message of the President announcing the death of General Sherman was laid before the Senate.

On the 17th the bill was taken up for a short time late in the afternoon. Two amendments—the one offered on the 14th by Mr. Daniel and one proposed by Mr. Vance—were defeated. Mr. Platt opposed the Daniel amendment, and read a letter from Mr. Kennedy representing the Printers' Union, explaining how the amendment was "loaded," and was a blow aimed at American printers. After discussion the amendment was rejected—yeas, 19; nays, 27. Mr. Vance moved to amend section 3, which prohibits the importation of foreign copies of copyrighted books, by providing that such prohibition shall not extend to newspapers and periodicals. Disagreed to—yeas, 19; nays, 29.

Mr. Edmunds proposed an amendment making a technical correction in the last section by substituting the President of the United States for the Attorney-General as the proper authority to announce by proclamation the acceptance by any foreign country of the conditions of reciprocity involved in the bill. The grant of power to the Attorney-General to declare the existence of the conditions in consequence of which the law was intended to take effect was, Mr. Edmunds argued, entirely unconstitutional and opposed to all precedents, and though Mr. Platt objected at first to the change it was finally agreed to without a division.

When the Senate adjourned the pending question was on a modification of the Sherman amendment, which was adopted in the Committee of the Whole and rejected in the Senate last week. It was drawn up as the result of consultations between Mr. Sherman and Mr. Carlisle, and is designed to permit books copyrighted here and printed abroad to be imported subject to the regular tariff duties. The bill as it stood prohibited the importation of such books.

On the afternoon of the 18th the bill was taken up as unfinished business, the pending question being on the Sherman amendment as offered the day before by Mr. Power to admit copyrighted books, etc., printed in foreign countries on payment of tariff duties. It was agreed to—yeas, 36; nays, 24.

Mr. Frye renewed the amendment heretofore offered by him (adopted in Committee of the Whole and disagreed to in the Senate), requiring maps, dramatic or musical compositions, engravings, cuts, prints, photographs, chromos, or lithographs to be printed from plates executed in the United States. It was agreed to—yeas, 41; nays, 24.

Mr. Ingalls moved to strike out of section 3 the proviso allowing the publisher of a newspaper or magazine to import two copies of any newspaper or magazine published in a foreign country, and to insert in lieu thereof the following: "And except in the case of newspapers and periodicals, which are hereby exempt from prohibition of importation." Agreed to without division.

Mr. Daniel proposed an amendment, in which all of section 3 was to be struck out after the word "same," in the following words:

Provided, That in the case of a book, map, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, chromo, or lithograph, the two copies of the same required to be delivered or deposited as above shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from engravings, cuts, negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, or from transfers made therefrom. During the existence of such copyright the importation into the United States of any book, map, dramatical or musical composition, engraving, chromo, or lithograph, cut, print, or photograph, so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same, not made from type set, engravings, negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States, shall be, and it is hereby, prohibited, except that all books, maps, charts, dramatic or musical compositions, engravings, cuts, prints, lithographs, or photographs, or negatives thereof, or any paintings, drawings, chromos, or statues, or statuary, so copyrighted, the author, inventor, designer, or proprietor of which shall be a citizen, subject, or resident of a foreign country, may be imported into the United States upon the payment of the duties, if any, imposed by law at the time of such importation, and except in the case of persons purchasing for use and not for sale, and except in the case of newspapers and periodicals, which are hereby exempted from prohibition of importation: Provided, nevertheless, That in the case of books in foreign languages, of which only translations in English are copyrighted, the prohibition of importation shall apply only to the translations of the same, and the importation of the books in the original language shall be permitted.

The amendment was defeated by a vote of 17 yeas and 31 nays.

Mr. Pasco, of Florida, proposed a substitute for the whole bill in the shape of a single measure the text of which was as follows:

SEC. 1. That the privileges of copyright granted under and by Title LX., chapter 3, of the Revised Statutes, to authors and others who are citizens of the United States or residents therein, shall be, and they are hereby, extended to authors and others named in section 4952 of the Revised Statutes, who are citizens, subjects, or residents of foreign countries, under the conditions and in the manner set forth in this act.

SEC. 2. That any contract made by foreign authors, and others to whom the privileges of copyright are extended by this act, with reference to the publication of their works in the United States, shall have the same force and effect as in like cases when contracts are made in the United States by and between citizens and residents thereof, and the circuit and district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction in all suits arising upon such contracts, and such courts shall also have jurisdiction in all cases arising in the United States with reference to the rights of citizens, subjects, and residents of foreign countries arising under this act.

SEC 3. That this act shall only apply to a citizen, subject, or resident of a foreign state or nation, when such foreign state or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens. The existence of the condition aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States by proclamation made from time to time as the purposes of this act may require.

Only eighteen Senators supported it, while it was killed by the negative votes of thirty-three Senators.

The Senators were not disposed to make any further changes in the bill, and at last it was put upon its passage. Only fourteen of the fifty Senators present voted in the negative, and the amended measure was declared passed by the votes of the other thirty-six. The vote was as follows:

Yeas—Messrs. Blair, Carey, Chandler, Cullom, Dixon, Dolph, Edmunds, Evarts, Farwell, Faulkner, Frye, Gray, Hampton, Hawley, Higgins, Hiscock, Hoar, McConnell, McMillan, McPherson, Mitchell, Morrill, Paddock, Pasco Platt, Plumb, Sanders, Sawyer, Stanford, Stewart, Stockbridge, Warren, Washburn, Wilson (Iowa), Wilson (Maryland), Wolcott—36.

Nays—Messrs. Bate, Berry, Call, Carlisle, Casey, Coke, Daniel, George, Harris, Jones (Arkansas), Pettigrew, Pugh, Reagan, Vest—14.

Mr. Platt made the formal motion that the Senate insist upon its amendments and ask a conference with the House, and Messrs. Platt, Hiscock and Gray were selected to act as the Senate conferrees.

The following is the text of the amended bill as passed, the Senate amendments being printed in italics:

A BILL

To amend title sixty, chapter three, of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to copyrights.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section forty-nine hundred and fifty-two of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4952. The author, inventor, designer, or proprietor of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, or photograph or negative thereof, or of a painting, drawing, chromo, statue, statuary, and of models or designs intended to be perfected as works of the fine arts, and the executors, administrators, or assigns of any such person shall, upon complying with the provisions of this chapter, have the sole liberty of printing, reprinting, publishing, completing, copying, executing, finishing, and vending the same; and in the case of dramatic composition, of publicly peforming or representing it or causing it to be performed or represented by others; and authors or their assigns shall have exclusive right to dramatize and translate any of their works for which copyright shall have been obtained under the laws of the United States."

SEC. 2. That section forty-nine hundred and fifty-four of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4954. The author, inventor, or designer, if he be still living, or his widow or children, if he be dead, shall have the same exclusive right continued for the further term of fourteen years, upon recording the title of the work or description of the article so secured a second time, and complying with all other regulations in regard to original copyrights, within six months before the expiration of the first term; and such persons shall, within two months from the date of said renewal, cause a copy of the record thereof to be published in one or more newspapers printed in the United States for the space of four weeks."

SEC. 3. That section forty-nine hundred and fifty-six of the Revised Statutes of the United States be, and the same is hereby, amended so that it shall read as follows:

"SEC. 4956. No person shall be entitled to a copyright unless he shall, on or before the day of publication in this or any foreign country, deliver at the office of the Librarian of Congress, or deposit in the mail within the United States, addressed to the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, District of Columbia, a printed copy of the title of the book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, or chromo, or a description of the painting, drawing, statue, statuary, or a model or design for a work of the fine arts for which he desires a copyright, nor unless he shall also, not later than the day of the publication thereof in this or any foreign country, deliver at the office of the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, District of Columbia, or deposit in the mail within the United States, addressed to the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, District of Columbia, two copies of such copyright book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, cut, print or photograph, or in case of a painting, drawing, statue, statuary, model, or design for a work of the fine arts, a photograph of same: Provided, That in the case of a book, map, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, cut, print, photograph, chromo, or lithograph, the two copies of the same required to be delivered or deposited as above shall be printed from type set within the limits of the United States, or from plates made therefrom, or from engravings, cuts, negatives, or drawings on stone made within the limits of the United States or from transfers made therefrom. During the existence of such copyright the importation into the United States of any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, engraving, chromo, or lithograph, cut, print or photograph, so copyrighted, or any edition or editions thereof, or any plates of the same not made from type set, engravings, negatives, or drawings on stone, made within the limits of the United States, shall be, and it is hereby, prohibited, except that all books, maps, charts, dramatical or musical compositions, engravings, cuts, prints, lithographs, or photographs, or negatives thereof, or any paintings, drawings, chromos, or statues or statuary so copyrighted, the author, inventor, designer, or proprietor of which shall be a citizen, subject, or resident of a foreign country, may be imported into the United States upon the payment of the duties, if any, imposed by law at the time of such importation. and except in the case of persons purchasing for use and not for sale, and except in the case of newspapers and periodicals, which are hereby exempted from prohibition of importation: Provided, nevertheless, That in the case of books in foreign languages, of which only translations in English are copyrighted, the prohibition of importation shall apply only to the translations of the same, and the importation of the books in the original language shall be permitted."

SEC. 4. That section forty-nine hundred and fifty-eight of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so that it will read as follows:

"SEC. 4958. The Librarian of Congress shall receive from the persons to whom the services designated are rendered the following fees:

"First. For recording the title or description of any copyright book or other article, fifty-cents.

"Second. For every copy under seal of such record actually given to the person claiming the copyright, or his assigns, fifty cents.

"Third. For recording and certifying any instrument of writing for the assignment of a copyright, one dollar.

"Fourth. For every copy of an assignment, one dollar.

"All fees so received shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States: Provided, That the charge for recording the title or description of any article entered for copyright, the production of a person not a citizen or resident of the United States, shall be one dollar, to be paid as above into the Treasury of the United States, to defray the expenses of lists of copyrighted articles as hereinafter provided for.

"And it is hereby made the duty of the Librarian of Congress to furnish to the Secretary of the Treasury copies of the entries of titles of all books and other articles wherein the copyright has been completed by the deposit of two copies of such book printed from type set within the limits of the United States, in accordance with the provisions of this act and by the deposit of two copies of such other article made or produced in the United States; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby directed to prepare and print, at intervals of not more than a week, catalogues of such title-entries for distribution to the collectors of customs of the United States and to the postmasters of all post-offices receiving foreign mails, and such weekly lists, as they are issued, shall be furnished to all parties desiring them, at a sum not exceeding five dollars per annum; and the Secretary and the Postmaster-General are hereby empowered and required to make and enforce such rules and regulations as shall prevent the importation into the United States, except upon the conditions above specified, of all articles prohibited by this act."

SEC. 5. That section forty-nine hundred and fifty nine of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4959. The proprietor of every copyright book or other article shall deliver at the office of the Librarian of Congress, or deposit in the mail, addressed to the Librarian of Congress, at Washington, District of Columbia, a copy of every subsequent edition wherein any substantial changes shall be made: Provided, however, That the alterations, revisions, and additions made to books by foreign authors, heretofore published, of which new editions shall appear subsequently to the taking effect of this act, shall be held and deemed capable of being copyrighted as above provided for in this act, unless they form a part of the series in course of publication at the time this act shall take effect."

SEC. 6. That section forty-nine hundred and sixty-three of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4963. Every person who shall insert or impress such notice, or words of the same purport, in or upon any book, map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, print, cut, engraving, or photograph, or other article, for which he has not obtained a copyright, shall be liable to a penalty of one hundred dollars, recoverable one-half for the person who shall sue for such penalty and one-half to the use of the United States."

SEC. 7. That section forty-nine hundred and sixty-four of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4964. Every person who, after the recording of the title of any book and the depositing of two copies of such book, as provided by this act, shall, contrary to the provisions of this act, within the term limited, and without the consent of the proprietor of the copyright first obtained in writing, signed in presence of two or more witnesses, print, publish, dramatize, translate, or import, or knowing the same to be so printed, published, dramatized, translated, or imported, sell or expose to sale any copy of such book shall forfeit every copy thereof to such proprietor, and shall also forfeit and pay such damages as may be recovered in a civil action by such proprietor in any court of competent jurisdiction."

SEC. 8. That section forty-nine hundred and sixty-five of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, so amended as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4965. If any person, after the recording of the title of any map, chart, dramatic or musical composition, print, cut, engraving, or photograph, or chromo, or of the description of any painting, drawing, statue, statuary, or model or design intended to be perfected and executed as a work of the fine arts, as provided by this act, shall within the term limited, contrary to the provisions of this act, and without the consent of the proprietor of the copyright first obtained in writing, signed in presence of two or more witnesses, engrave, etch, work, copy, print, publish, dramatize, translate, or import, either in whole or in part, or by varying the main design with intent to evade the law, or, knowing the same to be so printed, published, dramatized, translated, or imported, shall sell or expose to sale any copy of such map or other article as aforesaid, he shall forfeit to the proprietor all the plates on which the same shall be copied and every sheet thereof, either copied or printed, and shall further forfeit one dollar for every sheet of the same found in his possession, either printing, printed, copied, published, imported, or exposed for sale, and in case of a painting, statue, or statuary, he shall forfeit ten dollars for every copy of the same in his possession, or by him sold or exposed for sale; one-half thereof to the proprietor and the other half to the use of the United States."

SEC. 9. That section forty-nine hundred and sixty-seven of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 4967. Every person who shall print or publish any manuscript whatever without the consent of the author or proprietor first obtained, shall be liable to the author or proprietor for all damages occasioned by such injury."

SEC. 10. That section forty-nine hundred and seventy-one of the Revised Statutes be, and the same is hereby, repealed.

SEC. 11. That for the purpose of this act each volume of a book in two or more volumes, when such volumes are published separately and the first one shall not have been issued before this act shall take effect, and each number of a periodical, shall be considered an independent publication, subject to the form of copyrighting as above.

SEC. 12. That this act shall go into effect on the first day of July, Anno Domini eighteen hundred and ninety-one.

SEC. 13. That this act shall only apply to a citizen or subject of a foreign state or nation when such foreign state or nation permits to citizens of the United States of America the benefit of copyright on substantially the same basis as its own citizens. The existence of the condition aforesaid shall be determined by the President of the United States by proclamation made from time to time as the purposes of this act may require.

The bill as amended has now gone to the House and lies upon the Speaker's table. Whenever business on that table is reached, which may be any morning when an appropriation bill does not intervene, the Speaker will report the Senate amendments; the House will undoubtedly nonconcur; and conferrees on the part of the House will be named.

THE well-known bibliographer, Dr. J. Petzholdt, born 1812, died at his native place, Dresden, January 17. Dr. Petzholdt was the author of several valuable bibliographical works, and the editor of the Anzeiger für Bibliographie und Bibliothekwissenschaft from 1840 to 1884. For a number of years he was connected as librarian with the Saxon Court.

CANADIAN DUTIES ON TRADE NEWSPAPERS.

THE publishers of several "trade newspapers" devoted to the general interests of certain trades, and not to those of any particular dealer, which had been regularly mailed as "second-class matter" to Canada, recently reported to Postmaster Van Cott that they had been notified by the Canadian Customs authorities that copies addressed for delivery in Canada were detained at the Custom-House awaiting the payment of customs duties. The Postmaster, having reported the facts to the Post-Office Department at Washington, has been informed that, in reply to inquiries on the subject, the Canadian Post-Office states that "under the present Canadian customs tariff, as applied by the Customs Department, trade periodicals of the character described are classified as 'advertising periodicals,' and considered liable to duty at the rate of 6 cents per pound and 20 per cent. ad valorem, and that this department is, therefore, required to hand over to the customs all copies of such publications received in the mails from the United States."

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

MRS. KATE CHASE SPRAGUE is hard at work on that much-looked-for life of her father.

PROF. CHILD has obtained access to much valuable material since he began his monumental work on "English and Scottish Popular Ballads." Consequently, it is more likely to fill ten volumes than the eight originally contemplated.

THE late Prof. Thorold Rogers left behind him the materials for the concluding volumes of his "History of Prices and Agriculture in England." A single volume will be made of them by his son, Mr. Arthur G. L. Rogers, and issued in one volume by the Clarendon Press.

JACOB A. RIIS, the author of "How the Other Half Lives," came to this country from Ribe, Denmark, at the age of about 20. He had learned English by reading Dickens, and his coming to America was due in part to his appreciative reading of Cooper's tales. He is now about 40, and for fourteen years, off and on, has been a police reporter in New York.

TWO German writers of note are at present in this country. One is Dr. Paul Lindau, the novelist, whose home is in Berlin; the other is Ernest von Hesse-Wartegg, whose numerous works on Africa and America have run through several editions and been translated into several languages. He is an honorary member of the Academy of Sciences and of the New York Historical Society. His wife is the prima donna known as Minnie Hauk.

THE report that the venerable poet John Greenleaf Whittier has finally decided to write no more has been confirmed. His literary career will be closed by two pieces of verse (now in the hands of editors), one of the poems being a sort of farewell to his friends and admirers. It is encouraging to feel that this noble man's work has not been in vain, and that even now his admirers are not waning. It is said that every year his publishers look to a sale of between fifty and sixty thousand volumes of his poems, and that they are never disappointed.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

WILLIAM HEINEMANN, London, will shortly publish an original tragedy, entitled "Nero and Actea," by Mr. Eric Mackay, author of "A Lover's Litanies" and "Love-Letters of a Violinist."

BENZIGER BROS. have in preparation "Saints of the Society of Jesus," by Rev. D. A. Merrick, and "Devotion of the Seven Sundays in Honor of St. Joseph," from the Spanish, by a Religious.

THE British Museum authorities will publish the recently discovered work by Aristotle on "The Constitution of Athens," in two forms, one an autotype fac-simile, the other the printed text. Longmans, Green & Co. are agents for the work.

FREDERICK WARNE & Co. have nearly ready the English translation of Major Casati's book, entitled "Ten Years in Equatoria and the Return with Emin Pasha." It will be in two demy-octavo volumes, with nearly two hundred original illustrations and several maps.

A GERMAN publisher, desirous of giving an impetus to the use of more intelligible words in the language of the book trade, which to an ordinary mortal, however well acquainted he may be with the German language, is well-nigh unintelligible, notifies his associates that hereafter he will discard the expression emballage and substitute therefor the word packung or packing.

THE AMERICAN ACADEMY OF POLITICAL AND SOCIAL SCIENCE will shortly issue a translation of Prof. Meitzen's great work on statistics. English literature on this subject is so very meagre that every one interested either in its theoretical or practical aspects will be glad to learn of this important accession to our stock of scientific material. Dr. R. P. Falkner, of the University of Pennsylvania, has made the translation.

L. UPCOTT GILL, London, will publish at once a new volume by Mr. J. H. Slater, the editor of Book Prices Current, entitled "Round and About the Book-stalls." "In this work," says the Athenæum, "the author, by a novel system of analysis, endeavors to indentify those classes of books which are now but little thought of, but which should rise in value in the near future, and also those books of present value which, being of mean appearance, are likely to be met with on the stalls of the dealers for a small sum. The principles upon which books of all sorts derive their value are also discussed and commented on."

PERSONAL NOTES.

FRANCIS P. HARPER sailed for Europe on the City of New York, February 18.

MR. H. B. BURROWS, of the Burrows Brothers Co., will be in New York after the 23d inst., with headquarters at the Imperial Hotel.

EDWIN S. STUART, bookseller, was elected Mayor of Philadelphia on the 18th inst., by what is claimed the largest majority ever given to a Republican candidate for the Mayoralty of that city. Booksellers, without regard to party bias, will feel flattered that one of their fraternity has been raised to such high place in his community, and we join in hearty congratulations to the Mayor-elect of the City of Brotherly Love.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted," subscribers only are entitled to a free insertion of five lines for books out of print, exclusive of address (in any issue except special numbers), to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS NEW BOOKS

ESSAYS IN LITTLE.

By ANDREW LANG. 12mo, $1.00.

A new collection, comprising some of the latest essays by this delightful writer on literary themes. Among the subjects treated are "Alexandre Dumas," "Robert Louis Stevenson," "Kipling's Stories," "Walter Scott's Poems," "Charles Lever," "Thackeray," "Dickens," "John Bunyan," etc.

INTRODUCTION TO THE STUDY OF INTERNATIONAL LAW.

By the late THEODORE D. WOOLSEY, D.D., LL.D. New and revised edition. 8vo, $2.50.

In this, the sixth edition of this standard work, the author's son, T. S. Woolsey, Professor of International Law in Yale University, has brought the discussion of the subject up to the present time in a form a little more popular than before.

MARIE LOUISE AND THE INVASION OF 1814.

A new volume on the "Famous Women of the French Court." 7 vols., 12mo. Each with portrait, $1.25.

This volume takes the reader from the beginning of 1814 to Napoleon's second abdication and departure from Elba. In a military point of view this campaign ranks among his ablest, and the narrative of it is, perhaps, the most intensely interesting.

PREVIOUS VOLUMES.—Marie Antoinette and the End of the Old Regime—Citizeness Bonaparte—The Wife of the First Consul—The Court of the Empress Josephine—The Happy Days of the Empress Marie Louise—Marie Louise and the Decadence of the Empire.

"M. Saint-Amand has filled himself with the history and the life of the times, and possesses the art of making them live in his pages. His books are capital reading."—Independent.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS,

27 and 29 West 23d St., N. Y.,

HAVE RECENTLY ISSUED:

Chesterfield's Letters. Letters of Philip Dormer, Fourth Earl of Chesterfield, to his Godson and Successor. Now first edited from the originals, with a Memoir of Lord Chesterfield by the Earl of Carnarvon. (No. XXX. in the Knickerbocker Nuggets Series.) With portraits and illustrations. 2 vols., $2.00.

Pericles and the Golden Age of Athens. By EVELYN ABBOTT, M.A., Fellow of Balliol College, Oxford. (No. III. in the Heroes of the Nation Series, uniform with Clark Russell's "Nelson" and Fletcher's "Gustavus Adolphus.") 12mo, cloth extra, $1.50; half leather, gilt top, $1.75.

The Vikings in Western Christendom. A.D. 789–888. By CHARLES F. KEARY, author of "Outlines of Primitive Belief," "The Dawn of History," etc., etc. 8vo, cloth extra, with map, $2.50.

Chief Contents: Heathendom—The Creed of Heathen Germany—Christendom—The First Contests—Character of the Vikings—The Vikings in Ireland—Louis the Pious—The Conquests of Christianity—Civil War—Viking Raids in Europe, A.D. 834–845—Defences Broken Down, A.D. 846–848—Decay and Disintegration—The Great Army—Pause in the Viking Raids—Charles the Fat—The Invasion of Germany—The Great Siege of Paris—The Creed of Christendom.

A Commentary on the Campaign and Battle of Manassas of July, 1861, with a Summary of the Art of War. By General G. T. BEAUREGARD. With maps. 8vo, cloth, $1.00.

A Literary Manual of Foreign Quotations. By JOHN DEVOE BELTON. 8vo, half leather, gilt top, $1.50.

The distinctive feature of this compilation is the presentation of the English equivalents of the originals, together with extracts from the writings of noted authors in which the quotations have been used.

"This is a valuable work of reference for the scholar and general literary student, and the historical and literary references alone are worth the purchase of the book." —Rochester Union and Advocate.

Principles of Social Economics. Inductively considered and practically applied. With criticisms on current theories. By GEORGE GUNTON, author of "Wealth and Progress," etc. 8vo, cloth, $1.75.

"Mr. Gunton is a fair, open fighter, as even his opponents will acknowledge, and never seeks cover under those threadbare adjectives of recent economical literature—'crude,' 'unscientific,' 'illogical,' and 'sentimental.' However widely many of Mr. Gunton's fellow-economists may differ from him as to his new treatment of the more abstruse questions of political economy, all of them must acknowledge that his work, with its abundant statistics and its wealth of historical references, is the growing limb of a living tree, and not the brittle branch of a sapless trunk."—Christian Union.

My Life with Stanley's Rear-Guard.

NEARLY 200 PAGES, WITH FOLDING MAP.

A friend of Mr. Stanley, and one of the most trusted and experienced Captains of the Rear-Guard, many have wondered why Mr. Ward has kept comparatively silent while the bitter controversy has been going on. In this book he speaks freely and fearlessly. He is not bitter nor prejudiced, but endeavors to do justice to his unfortunate companions by relating facts of which he produces ample proof. His narrative is absorbingly interesting, and throws new light on the Rear-Guard troubles.

Will Publish, Wednesday, Feb. 25:

The Sisters' Tragedy.

With Other Poems, Lyrical and Dramatic. By THOMAS BAILEY ALDRICH. 1 vol., crown 8vo, gilt top, $1.25.

Mr. Aldrich has published no other volume of poetry which displays the lyrical and dramatic qualities of his poetic genius so effectively as this. The several poems are not only interesting as story, or description, or characterization, but are so felicitous in imagery and expression as to satisfy and delight. Mr. Aldrich's literary conscientiousness and care are as rare and as remarkable as his literary art.

A Guide-Book to the Poetic and Dramatic Works of Robert Browning.

By GEORGE WILLIS COOKE, author of works on "Ralph Waldo Emerson," "George Eliot," "Poets and Problems," etc. 1 vol., crown 8vo, gilt top, $2.00; with sets of Browning, $1.75.

Mr. Cooke's previous books have proved his ability to supply just such a volume as is needed more or less by all readers of Browning. His object is not to translate or simplify difficult passages, but to furnish historic and biographical information concerning such of the characters and incidents of Browning's plays and poems as require illumination; and, in general, to render his book useful in answering many of the legitimate questions which Browning's works suggest.

A Sappho of Green Springs, and Other Stories.

By BRET HARTE. 16mo, $1.25.

These stories illustrate the remark of one critic: "Of all American writers of fiction, Mr. Harte is by all odds the master of the short story. Crisp, witty and dramatic, his tales have a knack of holding the attention." Also of another, who says: "No other living writer can so perfectly present a character to the eye in a paragraph. This is owing to the clearness of his conception and the facility of his literary art."

Later Leaves.

Being the Further Reminiscences of MONTAGU WILLIAMS, Q.C. 1 vol., 8vo, $3.75.

Mr. Williams, the eminent English advocate, in this book continues the interesting story begun in his "Leaves of a Life." It relates additional chapters of his remarkable experience and success in his profession, and surely will not lack deeply interested readers.

The Gentleman's Magazine Library.

Vol. XI. Architectural Antiquities. Part II. Edited by G. LAURENCE GOMME, F.S.A. 8vo, $2.50; Roxburgh, printed on hand-made paper, $3.50, net; Large-paper Edition, Roxburgh, printed on hand-made paper, $6.00, net.

NOTES IN SEASON.

P. BLAKISTON, SON & CO., Philadelphia, will publish in March "A New Systematic Work on Surgery," by C. W. Mansell Moullin, M.D., Surgeon to the London Hospital. They have also nearly ready "Plain Talks on Electricity and Batteries for Medical Men," by Dr. Horatio Bigelow.

THE United States Book Company has just ready the first four volumes of the De Quincey literary material discovered by Dr. Japp. It is entitled "Suspiria de Profundis." This, with a companion volume, will have the general title "Posthumous Works of De Quincey," while the other two are to be called "De Quincey Memorials."

THE D. LOTHROP COMPANY publish this week "Brotherhood," a labor novel, by Mary Cruger; "Go Right On, Girls," a book of advice, by Annie H. Rider; "A Sunday Album," by Rev. J. R. Simmons; and "Helps in Teaching Reading," by Martha S. Hussey. They also have ready new editions of Dr. Clark's Christian Endeavor textbook, "Ways and Means," and Miss Hersey's edition of Robert Browning's "Christmas Eve and Easter Day."

HARPER & BROTHERS will publish at once William Allen Butler's new poem, "Oberammergau 1890," in sumptuous book form, superbly illustrated from photographs taken at the last representation of the famous passion-play; "Harper's School Speaker, Second Book," compiled and edited by James Baldwin, comprising nearly two hundred choice selections carefully graded, and arranged especially for the use of schools in which the old-fashioned custom of speaking pieces still survives; and "Sir Robert Peel," by Justin McCarthy, which forms the third volume in the series of political biographies of the Queen's Prime Ministers.

GINN & CO. will publish in April "Industrial Primary Arithmetic," by Prof. James Baldwin. The author leads pupils, from the first lesson, to make independent researches and to discover facts and principles for themselves. The first half of each page is devoted to class work, the other half to practical exercises and "seat work" to be performed independently by the pupils. The pupils are taught weights and measurements by actually weighing and measuring; they are taught to buy and sell, to make change, to keep a simple system of accounts, to make bills; in short, to perform all those simpler operations in numbers which men and women in the ordinary walks of life are required to understand. Only the actual and tangible are presented for consideration.

D. APPLETON & CO. will publish at once a new book, entitled "An American Girl in London," by the author of "A Social Departure," portraying the strange and humorous adventures of an American girl in London. They will also publish shortly Richard Malcolm Johnston's delightful short stories which have appeared in The Century, Harper's, and other magazines, together with a new story in their Town and Country Library, under the title of "The Primes and their Neighbors." This volume will contain ten of the characteristic tales of middle Georgia which furnish such charming illustrations of the author's mellow humor. The new story, entitled "The Durance of Mr. Dickerson Prime," is accompanied by "Miss Sally Cash," "The Misadventures of Mr. Littleberry Roach," "Gibble Colt's Ducks," and other tales which magazine readers will be glad to have in permanent form.

CHARLES L. WOODWARD, New York, announces a limited edition of "The History of Ancient Vinland," by Thormod Torfason, translated from the Latin of 1705 by Prof. Charles G. Herbermann, Ph.D., LL.D., with an introduction by John Gilmary Shea. This is the first work on New England local history, if it is conceded that the Vinland of the early Scandinavian navigators of the North Atlantic actually lay within the limits of the United States. To those who believe and those who doubt, it is the first work published bearing entirely on Vinland, and as a treatise by a native of Iceland, drawn from ancient manuscripts, has its value as a discussion of the subject by an historical scholar of nearly two centuries ago. The translation has been carefully and closely made, so that it gives students a clear transcript of the original, now a book of uncommon occurrence. The edition will be only one hundred copies, and will be printed from the type of the U. S. Catholic Historical Magazine.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Sizes are designated as follows: F. (folio: over 30 centimeters high); (Q. 4to: under 30 cm.); O. (8vo: 25 cm.) D. (12mo: 20 cm.); S. (16mo: 17½ cm.); T. (24mo: 15 cm.); Tt. (32mo: 12½ cm.); Fe. (48mo: 10 cm.). Sq., obl. nar., designate square, oblong, narrow books of these heights.

Aitken, Isabella T. Bohemia, and other poems. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1891. c. 160 p. S. cl., $1.

Aldrich, T: Bailey. The sister's tragedy, with other poems, lyrical and dramatic. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. '90. 108 p. D. cl., $1.25.

This volume, covering but a year or two of literary activity—contains about thirty-five poems, many of which have already appeared in the Atlantic Monthly and elsewhere. The volume is distinguished by the more constant presence of the dramatic faculty. The personal element is also greater than in previous collections. There are several poems in honor of the poets' craft—the lines "In Westminster Abbey," the eulogy of Shakespeare and Tennyson, the tribute to E. R. Sill, etc.

Barberine; or, the ballet dancer's husband; adapted by Mary Neal Sherwood. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1891. 8–365 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 143.) pap., 25 c.

Bartlett, G: C. The Salem seer: reminiscences of Charles H. Foster. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] c. 157 p. por. D. cl., $1.

The writer met Charles Foster, the famous spiritual medium, in 1870, and was associated with him until Foster's death in 1885. He gives in this volume a plain statement of facts and descriptions of many séances, thinking the record may be of service to investigators of these phenomena, and hoping the book will stimulate practical and scientific men to investigation.

Berean beginner's lesson-book on the international [Sunday-school] lessons for 1891. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1891.] c. '90. 222 p. il. maps, T. (Berean ser., no. 3.) bds., 15 c.

The first half of the year deals with 1 Kings xii. to 2 Kings xxv. The second half with the Gospel of St. John.

Berean intermediate lesson-book on the international [Sunday-school] lessons for 1891. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, [1891.] c. '90. 215 p. maps, T (Berean ser., no. 2.) bds., 15 c.

Berean senior lesson-book on the international [Sunday-school] lessons for 1891. N. Y., Hunt & Eaton, 1891. c. '90. 238 p. maps, T. (Berean ser., no. 1.) bds., 15 c.

Block, L: J. Dramatic sketches and poems. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1891. c. 220 p. D. cl., $1.

Beside the dramatic poems there are a number of lyrical and narrative verses on various subjects, and a few sonnets.

Bowen, Ja. L. Massachusetts in the war, 1861-65; with an introd. by H: L. Dawes. Springfield, Mass., Bowen & Son, 1890. 1050 p. por. 8°, cl., $4; hf. leath., $4.75; full leath., $5.50.

Burgess, Rev. O. F. Save the masses: educate, evangelize: a paper read before the Methodist ministers of Minneapolis, Minn., with introd. by T: J. Morrow. Minneapolis, Minn., T: J. Morrow, [1891.] 2–30 p. O. pap., 10 c.

"When you want to raise a building, you put screws and levers under its lowest parts. When you lift the lowest brick, you lift every brick above it." This is the figure which the author applies to the salvation of the world to-day. He quotes freely from General Booth's "In darkest England."

Busey, S: C., M.D. Congenital occlusion and dilatation of lymph channels. N. Y., W: Wood & Co., 1891. 187 p. 8°, cl., $1.50.

Cooke, G: Willis. A guide-book to the poetic and dramatic works of Robert Browning. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. 16+450 p. D. cl., $2.

The book gives the following information: The date, place and circumstances of the writing of every poem; the date of publication, and other bibliographical details; the historical or biographical incidents on which a poem is based; Browning's own explanations of poems; about fifteen poems not included in published volumes; reference under each title to such books as will be found most helpful in interpretation of the poem; special editions, volumes of selections, illustrations, poems set to music; significant criticisms by leaders of literary opinion; in case of dramas, accounts are given of stage presentation; original prefaces are reprinted where they do not now appear with the poems, etc. The page references are to the Riverside edition of 1889, which is in six volumes uniform with this book. The arrangement is alphabetical, following the index to the Riverside edition. Index. Appendix. By the author of "George Eliot, a critical study of her life," "Ralph Waldo Emerson," etc.

Drury, Karl. The three blows; or, love, pride and revenge. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1891.] c. 4–219 p. D. (Select ser., no. 77.) pap., 25 c.

Fenn, G: Manville. A double knot: a novel. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 365 p. D. (Lovell's international ser., no. 141.) pap., 50 c.

The basis of the novel is a fatal resemblance of two of its characters. This chance likeness results in false positions and sensational incidents. There is interest also in its several romances, numerous characters and fair representation of various conditions of society.

Fleming, May Agnes. Married for money. N. Y., J. S. Ogilvie, 1891. 250 p. 12°, (Sunnyside ser., no. 18.) pap., 25 c.

Fobes, Walt. K., comp. Five minute declamations. 2d pt. Bost., Lee & Shepard. 6+241 p. S. cl., 50 c.

Prose selections from American orators. Among others included are Phillips Brooks, G: W: Curtis, Cleve-

Immediately after the marriage of Estelle Brunaire to Raymond de Beaurand, the latter commits suicide. His relatives can furnish no explanation of this tragic incident, but Bolvin, of the Parisian police, fancies he holds the clue, and evolves a theory, which Theodore Benoist undertakes to work out, with a view to avenging his friend.

Halévy, Ludovic. A marriage for love; tr. by A. D. Hall. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1891. 5-106 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 146.) pap., 25 c.

Hall, A. D. Sardou's Cleopatra: a novelization of the celebrated play. N. Y., Street & Smith. [1891.] c. 4-263 p. D. (Primrose ser., no. 14.) pap., 50 c.

Herron, Rev. G: D. The message of Jesus to men of wealth; introd. by Josiah Strong, D.D. N. Y. and Chic., Fleming H. Revell Co., [1891.] 32 p. S. pap., 20 c.

Social justice has been the dream of the ages; civilization, abstract truth, the state, are powerless to fulfil it. Self-interest is "the heart disease of society." The only remedy is the divine remedy, the cross of Christ, i.e., absolute self-renunciation; an unreserved surrender of self-interest to God's interest in humanity, dominant in all the acts of life.

Jameson, Ja. S. The story of the rear column of the Emin Pasha relief expedition; ed. by Mrs. Ja. S. Jameson; il. by C. Whymper from the author's sketches; with natural history appendix. Authorized ed. N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 32+455 p. por. maps, O. cl., $3.50; hf. rus., $4.50.

Mr. Jameson was naturalist to the last expedition under Stanley. Gives his daily record of the scenes, incidents and associations of his journey up the Congo, portions of his letters to his wife and others, followed by an appendix on the natural history of the trip, a letter from Tippoo Tib, and various documents of special interest at this time, when controversy has arisen over the fate of the rear column, the murder of Major Barttelot and the unfortunate death of Jameson. The natural history appendix, undertaken for the scientific and historical societies of London, has been edited by specialists: Birds, by R. R. Bowdler Sharpe; Coleoptera, by H. W. Bates; Lepidoptera, Rhopalocera and Heterocera, by Osbert Salvin, F. Du Caine, Godman, and H. Druce. New map and fac-simile letter from Tippoo Tib.

Judson, E. Z. C., ["Ned Buntline," pseud.]. Texas Jack, the white king of the Pawnees. N. Y., Street & Smith, [1891.] c. 4-210 p. D. (Sea and shore ser., no. 28.) pap., 25 c.

King, C: Two soldiers. [Also] Dunraven Ranch: two novels. Phil., J. B. Lippincott Co., 1891. c. '88, '90. 263 p. D. (American novel ser.) cl., $1; pap., 50 c.

The subject of the first story is the rivalry in love and in war of Gordon Noel and Captain Fred Lane, both of the Eleventh Regiment, U. S. Cavalry. The scenes are those of social life and the battlefield. The subject of the second is the love-making and marriage of Lieutenant Perry, the scene being sometimes in a Texas military station, and sometimes at Dunraven Ranch, in that State.

Points out some characteristics of the British parliamentary system as contrasted with the congressional system of the United States.

Locker-Lampson, F., ed. Lyra elegantiarum: a collection of some of the best social and occasional verse by deceased English authors, rev. and enl. ed., by F: Locker-Lampson, assisted by Coulson Kernahan. N. Y., Ward, Locke & Co., 1891. 20+425 p. D. (The Minerva lib., no 21.) cl., 75 c.; hf. cf. or hf. mor., $1.75.

An edition of this book was brought out by White, Stokes & Allen in 1884. See P. W., "Weekly Record," Nov. 1, 1884, [666.] The poems are chiefly compositions which have amused the leisure of distinguished persons who have won their spurs in very different fields, of statesmen, soldiers, students and divines, who have used metre as the mere outlet for transitory feelings, to give grace to a compliment, or point and beauty to a calm reflection. Since the edition of 1884 Robert Browning has died, and "Youth and art" and "Garden fancies" have been added to the collection among the new material.

Meyer, Annie Nathan, ed. Woman's work in America; with introd. by Julia Ward Howe. N. Y., H: Holt & Co., 1891. c. 457 p. D. cl., $1.50.

The subject of woman's work in America has been divided into as many chapters as there are phases of work, and every chapter has been treated by a specially fit writer. The introduction is by Julia Ward Howe; education of women in the eastern States, by Mary F. Eastman; in the western States, by May Wright Sewall; in the southern States, by Christine Ladd Franklin; woman in literature, by Helen Gray Cone; in medicine, by Mary Putnam Jacobi; in the ministry, by Rev. Ada C. Bowles; in law, by Ada M. Bittenbender; in the state, by Mary A. Livermore; in industry, by Alice Hyneman Rhine; in philanthropy—charity, by Josephine Shaw Lowell; in care of the sick, by Edna Dow Cheney; in care of the criminal, by Susan Hammond Barney; in work of anti-slavery women, by Lillie Chace Wyman; in work of the W. My secrete log-boke. [N. Y., Brentano's, 1891.] 46 p. il. and folding plate, Q. imitation water-stained pap., $2.

Purports to be a fac-simile of the log-book of Christopher Columbus, which he threw overboard on February 12, 1493, at the 34th degree of latitude above the equator, 102 Spanish miles from the coast of the Azores. Enclosed with it is the royal warrant of Isabella, Queen of Castilla and Leon, creating him Viceroy, Admiral and General Governor of all islands and countries west of the Azores he might discover. The mechanical work on the book is unique. The parchment is discolored by sea-water. The text in old Gothic lettering exactly imitates a fifteenth century manuscript. The illustrations in pen and ink include views of countries visited, nautical and astronomical drawings, and a map. Its historical facts are correct. The outside cover has been embellished according to the taste of Old Neptune with shells and seaweed.

As in the story of "Pepita Ximenez," a small group of persons are introduced to the reader, but every one is strongly individualized and made the exponent of local conditions in a manner that is very instructive as well as interesting. Doña Luz spends her girlhood in the home of her ch ldhood in Spain, which has fallen into the hands of a steward who had helped to ruin her father. She is thirty years of age before she learns to love. A priest, in delicate health, widens her views and teaches her a very noble conception of life and its responsibilities. W. D. Howells has said that he knows hardly any figure in fiction more lovely and affecting than Doña Luz.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

FEBRUARY 28, 1891.

"Every man is a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help thereunto."—LORD BACON.

LITERARY PROPERTY.

IT has long since become a fashion with certain journals, and, now and again, some so-called custodians of literature, to undervalue the services of the publisher and to lead the public into a false notion that authors as a class are wronged by publishers as a class. A notable case, for example, occurs in the Sunday issue of the New York Tribune for February 16, which gives a column and a half to extracts from the new English magazine, The Author. The Tribune emphasizes its approval, not only by the space allotted to the quotation, but by its preface avowing that it is "the most sprightly and vigorous literary periodical now extant, full of force and burning conviction, lightened by many a flame of satire, and bringing to writers a guardian and advocate, of which throughout the history of authorship they have been sadly in need." There are one or two statements made by this periodical, which, without contradiction, or at least explanation, would put the profession of publishers in a false light. The following clause states exactly, and in very plain language, the "platform" of the society which is sponsor to the journal:

"The chief aim of the society—this has been advanced again and again—is to promote the recognition of the fact, hitherto most imperfectly understood, that literary property is as real a thing as property in every other kind of business; that it should be safeguarded in the same manner, and regarded with the same jealousy.

"Hitherto the mere existence of literary property, even in the face of such potent facts as the enrichment of publishers, has been carefully concealed and even denied. Risks of publishing, costs of publishing, have been dangled before the eyes of authors, so that they should regard the subject as one of extreme peril and pure speculation. One can never even now read a leading article about publishing without being solemnly assured that the trade is one in which frightful risks are constantly run, and that the success of any book is pure speculation.

"Now, as a matter of fact, there is very little speculation indeed in publishing, and there are very, very few publishers—only the leading houses—who ever run any risks at all, either by buying books or by bringing out books at a risk. Risks are run when a house starts a magazine, or when it embarks on illustrated editions of an expensive kind, or when educational books are published. The ordinary risk run in the production of books is, as a rule, next to nothing. For, first, the author is seldom paid except by results; next, the author, when a house consents to 'take the risk,' is, for the most part, one who commands a certain sale. With the smaller houses books about which there is the slightest risk are always paid for by the authors in advance, either wholly or in part. And very, very seldom indeed do the ill-advised authors who advance their money ever see it back again."

In conjunction with this line of thought, and with the statement that, "publishers run no risk in placing a book upon the market," let us consider these two points from a strictly commercial standpoint. A man owns a piece of real estate, which he has earned by hard labor of hand or brain, which he lets to another party at a price satisfactory to both. The second party puts up a building on the property, and lets the building to a third party who starts a business. We will consider first the question of risk in the matter. Did the party who owns the property, run any risk? Surely not. He simply leased the property to a responsible party and received for it an annual rental which he considered just and fair. If he leased to an irresponsible party, he of course suffers from this mistake; and in this respect the author suffers exactly the same if he intrusts his book to an irresponsible publisher. The man who leased the property ran a risk by first paying rental for the ground, secondly by investment of putting up a building, and thirdly by his chance of not finding a tenant for his building. The third party ran a commercial risk. Again, suppose the lessee was fortunate in his investment and realized a profit which is at times greater than the original owner of property received as rental; and the business man was successful and realized more for his enterprise than either of the other two parties. Would there be any question as to the legitimacy of the transaction? Commercially would it not be considered honorable? And yet it has been claimed that in "literary property" a similar transaction is far from honorable.

The truth of the matter lies in the fact that the publisher's treatment of the author is exactly in line with that in other commercial circles. For example: An author has literary property to dispose of. He goes to a publisher, offers his manuscript, and accepts his proposition to pay him a royalty of 10% on the retail price of all copies sold. The retail price is fixed at $1; the edition manufactured is 2000 copies; the cost of composition and plates, paper, printing and binding is in round numbers, say $600; the market value, that is the trade price, 60 cents a copy. When the 2000 copies are sold the publisher's statement would be something as follows:

Dr.		Cr.
" copyright to author.....	190.00	" 100 press copies	——
	$790.00		$1,140.00

Total profit on an investment of $1140 is $350, provided the whole edition is sold and no expenses are counted in. But these figures do not include the item of advertising, which, especially in the case of a new author's book, is very large, amounting frequently to hundreds of dollars; nor is there taken into account the insurance, travelling expenses and other incidentals which in the publishing business are probably greater than in any other line. The author, whatever the fate of his book, is certain of his royalty, however inadequate as a reward for his labor the sum realized may be. The publisher's gain is problematical, and if there is no call for a second edition he has upon his hands a set of plates, the metal value of which would not cover the loss on his investment.

The final clause in the extract from The Author might almost lead the unsuspicious into the conclusion that authors were beginning to realize that literary property is not without risk and loss, but the intent of the statement is to pass judgment upon the publisher. Authors who have had a taste of investing in literary property should by this time understand that a risk is run, and that publishers are often obliged to carry to profit and loss the failures of investments.

The fact is, that Mr. Besant's society commits over and over again the mistake of stating as a general fact what is true only in individual and exceptional cases, and is not true of publishers as a class. To put it in logical form, some publishers have undoubtedly cheated some authors, but all (or most) publishers do not cheat all (or most) authors. No law, or society, or business method, can protect foolish people from trusting men unworthy to be trusted—whether in authorship or in anything else. Mr. Besant's society can of course help inexperienced authors, but it is a mistake for the society to suggest to the public that all publishers or most publishers are disreputable people.

We are now at work gathering material for the Spring Announcement number of The Publishers' Weekly, which we hope to issue early in March. We ask publishers to mail us as soon as possible information they may be ready to give of books that are to be published by them during the spring season, giving full title, size and price as well as descriptions of the work in hand, as far as practicable. These special announcement numbers have now a recognized value as guides for the bookseller to the publishing seasons in the spring and fall, and publishers will find it to their interest to supply us with prompt and full information. Advertising copy for this issue should also reach us at the earliest possible moment.

THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

From the Evening Post, February 25.

For two days representative Simonds, of Connecticut, has been sitting on the edge of expectancy watching the pile of papers on the Speaker's table, on the top of which lies the Copyright Bill. He has been waiting for a chance, which the Speaker seems loath to give him, to have this bill taken from the table and the House conferees appointed on it.

The delay is making everybody nervous who has any interest in the subject of copyright. Senator Allison has figured up the time still left of the session by hours, including evenings and Sundays, and estimates that there will not be more than time to squeeze through the regular appropriation bills, so that in his opinion every measure outside of those not already in conference might as well give up the ghost. The particularly annoying feature of this affair is that the bills that have powerful lobbies behind them, like the Direct Tax bill, can be picked up for some reason or other without any trouble, while those that rest simply on their own merits stand no show. It is possibly the Speaker's love of "business" legislation that causes this disparity. There is a lot of business in the Direct Tax bill and the Shipping Subsidy bill, while the Copyright bill is based simply on the common rules of honesty, a virtue which seems totally unrelated to the Republican legislative programme for the few days that remain before March 4.

From the N. Y. Tribune, Feb. 26.

A good deal of regret has been expressed that in the present press of business in the House Speaker Reed has so far thought himself compelled to retain upon his desk the Copyright bill as it came with amendments from the Senate, and has so far withheld from the House any chance to concur or non-concur in the changes made, and so either send the bill to the President or throw it into conference. The Speaker, it is understood, has been anxious to save all the time possible just now for use on the appropriation bills and the Shipping bill, and until these are out of the way, the copyright measure will probably have to stay on the table. The way may be clear for it on Monday, however, when its friends hope to get the House to agree to the Senate amendments in bulk, or, failing on any one, to send the measure promptly to a conference committee. If recommitted to the House Committee on Patents it will be effectually sidetracked for the rest of the session.

MR. SIMONDS ON THE COPYRIGHT BILL.

Mr. William E. Simonds, of Connecticut, to whose intelligent activity the success of the International Copyright bill in the House of Representatives must be partly ascribed, is circulating in pamphlet form his speech delivered on December 3, 1890. "Mr. Simonds, we are glad to see," says the Evening Post, "forcibly insists upon the enactment of the measure which he advocates because it is right, but he starts off by showing the material advantages involved in it, more particularly to American printers.

"He quotes the testimony of Mr. J. L. Kennedy, on behalf of the International Typographical Union, before the House Judiciary Committee, to the effect that if the bill becomes a law 'the literary and book-publishing centre of the English world will move westward from London and take up its abode in the city of New York.' As regards book-printing, this really seems to be the belief of the English publishers, to judge from a recent editorial in the London Bookseller. This possible result is, of course, highly gratifying to Mr. Kennedy, who points out further good things in the bill as follows: 'The American author who goes abroad in search of a cheaper publishing market, sending his shell-plates over here to be mounted and to have his presswork done, or else sending the printed sheets home to be bound here, thus evading the heavier duty on bound books, will also be compelled [the italics are ours] to patronize home industry for his mechanical work. In short, it is not difficult for printers to see that such a law will confer inestimable benefits upon their own and allied trades.' We should suppose not. The difficult thing to understand is, why, when the authors of the American Copyright League had consented to give up the privilege of printing their books abroad, the printers were so slow to see an advantage so obvious.

"Mr. Simonds believes in the author's natural right to protection for his productions, and says: 'Either we must deny that the result of the foreign author's labor is his property, or else we must face the shame of confessing that we take his property simply because he is a foreigner and not strong enough to keep it away from us by superior physical force. . . . The author's title to his property is the very best; it is rooted in the creation of the article, and the world concedes that no better title can be imagined than that which arises from the making of the thing.' To show the status of the United States, as compared with other nations, Mr. Simonds gives a table of the terms of protection accorded by the present copyright statutes of various countries. To this list should be added the following countries, all of them having passed copyright laws: Chili, Greece, Hawaiian Islands, Hungary, Luxembourg, Monaco and Portugal. The terms of protection, also, for a few countries are not correctly stated, and should be corrected as follows: Bolivia, not only author's life, but fifty years beyond; Denmark, not fifty years, but author's life and fifty years; Hayti, not 'author's life, widow's life, children's lives, and twenty years,' but author's life, life of his widow, and to children, if any, for twenty years longer, but if no children, then to heirs or assigns for ten years; Holland, during life of author, if he survives the term of fifty years; France, author's life and fifty years, not thirty; Peru, author's life and twenty years, not fifty; Sweden, not author's life and ten years, but author's life and fifty years."

APPROPRIATIONS FOR GOVERNMENT PUBLICATIONS CUT DOWN.

On the 23d inst. the Senate discussed a proposition to print 200,000 copies of a volume on "The Diseases of the Horse," during which debate the current reports and complaints against the abuse of the issue of Government publications were freely discussed. The result was the reduction of the large number of the book proposed to be printed for gratuitous circulation.

The Washington correspondent of the New York Times, commenting on the subject, says: "That the Government does a great deal of unnecessary printing, and that it pays quite as much as the work is worth, no one who has had occasion to look at the matter will doubt for an instant. Tons of stuff issued with the stamp of this and that bureau every year, and some of it very much belated, is utterly wasted, and of the number of really valuable and interesting volumes that are printed, many hundreds, to put it at a low figure, are soon beyond the reach of persons who ask for them at the document-rooms of the two branches of the Congress. Long after this has happened, if one desires to get some particular volume, he can, by going to the second-hand bookshops and paying a good round price for what he wants, get it with great promptness and with large profit to the dealer. Rare reports, sets of the Congressional Record, books bound and unbound, all of which are reported to be exhausted in the document-rooms and at the departments, are in the stocks of these dealers, or can be procured by the dealers without any considerable delay. If members of the Congress who are entitled to these books do not have constituents who care enough about them to ask for one, the members may take up the number assigned to them, and sell them to the second-hand dealers. That they do it there cannot be much doubt, or else the employees of the two houses have a way, which no one suspects, of playing into the hands of the dealers. It is remarkable that some of the dealers can find out about exhausted quotas much more easily and accurately than other persons who want books and documents, but do not care to pay for them."

One of the changes made by the Senate Committee on Appropriations in the Sundry Civil bill affects an important branch of scientific work now being conducted by the Smithsonian Institution. This work comprises researches of various kinds into American ethnology, and has been carried on for a number of years, it is claimed, with valuable educational results. The House voted $50,000 to continue the researches of the Ethnological Bureau during the coming year, and the Senate Committee has not only cut down that sum to $30,000 but has added the proviso that, of the total appropriation, not more than $10,000 is to be expended for the payment of salaries and services rendered in the city of Washington. Major Powell, the director of the Geographical Survey, has written a letter to Senator Allison, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, protesting against the amendments, and Mr. Allison hopes to have the change reconsidered in the Senate.

HINTS TO THE SALESMAN.

One of the best salesmen says the seller should only talk enough to keep the buyer talking.

There is a maxim, "When you buy, keep one eye on the goods and the other on the seller. When you sell, keep both eyes on the buyer."

It is certainly true that salesmen of ready and fluent speech, good talkers, are often surpassed by those who say little.

One of the happiest forms of speech for a salesman, as it is for any person who has to convince others, is that of a short, plain and pithy illustration. It strikes home. Longwinded stories are tedious, and so are hobbies.

The salesman speaks to explain, convince and persuade, and he should keep his final aim constantly in mind. He knows instantly the effect he is producing, and the more favorable it is the better he can talk, because his readiness is encouraged.

GERMAN BOOK PRODUCTION IN 1890.

THE following table from the Börsenblatt, prepared by the Leipzig firm of J. C. Hinrichs, presents a view of the book production in Germany during the past year. These statistics, it must be remembered, present not only the output of books in the German Empire, but of Austria and Switzerland as well. In fact, all countries whose publishers are members of the Börsenverein are represented:

	1889.	1890.
Collected Works, History of Literature, Bibliography	482	519
Theology	1,582	1,763
Law, Politics, Statistics, etc	1,549	1,638
Medicine, Veterinary	1,248	1,353
Natural History, Chemistry, Pharmacy	852	909
Philosophy	188	152
Education, German School-Books, etc.	2,111	2,132
Juvenile Works	591	521
Classical and Oriental Archæology, Mythology	644	626
Modern Languages, Old German Literature	591	602
History, Biography, Memoirs	892	874
Geography, Travel	534	600
Mathematics, Astronomy	228	215
Military, Hippology	525	569
Commerce and Manufactures	840	929
Building, Machines, Railways, Mining, etc	383	446
Forestry and Sport	109	100
Domestic Economy, Farming, Horticulture	430	464
Belles-Lettres	1,715	1,731
Fine Art, Shorthand	768	787
Folk-lore, Almanacs	723	796
Freemasonry	22	19
Miscellaneous	558	621
Maps	421	509

It is significant to notice that the book production in Germany since 1886 has been steadily increasing, and that the increase is altogether in the direction of the more solid branches of literature, as theology, law, medicine and natural history. In fiction the advance is almost imperceptible, the increase in the whole department of so-called schöne litteratur (romane, gedichte, theater, etc.), being but sixteen new works.

THE LONDON BOOKSELLERS' SOCIETY.

THE London Booksellers' Society is progressing in its work on behalf of the English book trade. Its most recent action was in bringing about a reform in the matter of exchanging imperfect books. The Council issued a circular to publishers, asking that when a copy of a book is returned as imperfect a new one may be at once given for it, without the delay and annoyance caused by waiting for the imperfection to be corrected. This circular was responded to very cordially, and many of the largest firms have so far modified their previous practice that there is every reason to believe that this long-standing grievance may now be considered in a fair way of being satisfactorily settled.

The following resolutions are significant as showing what the Society is doing to correct the discount and underselling abuses:

Resolved, That the best thanks of the Council be given to Messrs. G. Routledge & Sons, Limited, for their prompt action in dealing with a case of underselling recently brought to their notice by the Society, and the Council desires to express at the same time its warm appreciation of Messrs. Routledge's action in thus supporting the work of the Society.

Resolved, That the best thanks of the Council be given to Messrs. Low, Marston & Co., Limited, for their letter of the 6th December, referring to a case of underselling reported by the Society, in which Messrs. Low & Co. express their intention to close the account unless an undertaking be given not to allow more than 25 per cent. discount off published price.

Resolved, That the best thanks of the Council be given to Messrs. F. Warne & Co. for their declining an order for books which they had reason to believe would be offered at a greater discount than 3*d.* in the 1*s.*

Resolved, That the Council learns with much regret that another firm of publishers have not more cordially supported the Society in its endeavors to prevent the discount going beyond 3*d.* in the 1*s.* in a case which was brought before them by the Society.

THE BOOKSELLERS' AND STATIONERS' PROVIDENT ASSOCIATION.

WE are glad to note that the movement to push the membership of this Association to the desired limit of 1500 members is progressing encouragingly. At the last meeting of the Trustees, held on the 18th inst., the following twenty new members were elected:

James A. Jenkins, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Horace Holden, East Orange, and George H. Richmond, Short Hills, N. J. R. A. F. Lyon, Greensburg, Pa. John F. Bussing, J. D. Lit, Carl A. Bauer, Charles M. Wood, Edward C. Thatcher, Eugene F. Bantet, A. M. Tompkins, James H. McCahey, Edward R. Watson, Charles W. Weber, George F. Churchill, Edward A. Capen, Nicholas J. Hayes, F. W. Young, J. S. Rigg, Fred W. Muller, all of New York City.

It will be noticed that the majority are from New York. As this is not a New York association, but one representing the whole country, it would be desirable that members in the other States make an effort to add representatives to the list. Information will be gladly furnished by the Secretary, WILBUR B. KETCHAM,
13 Cooper Union, N. Y.

QUESTIONS ASKED IN A BOOKSTORE.

From a Book Clerk's Diary.

How do you like this weather?
What time do you make it?
Have you a postage stamp?
Are you a Christian?
Can you oblige me with an envelope?
Will you donate a few books to our fair?
Can you let me know the price of a work on Natural History I want? I have forgotten the title and author.
Do you believe in spirits?
Did you ever consider what you would save, if you did not smoke?
Oh! can you lend me—er—two cents?
Which is the best drugstore near here?
Buy a dorg, boss?
Why are your prices so high?
How much will you give for an old Bible with the covers off?

THE GREAT ORIGINAL.—"Who was the author of 'Nothing to Wear'?" "Eve, I guess."—Puck.

OBITUARY.

JOHN WILEY.

It is with great regret that we write "the end" to the career of John Wiley, who at the time of his death on February 21 had probably been connected with the book trade longer than any bookseller or publisher who survives him.

Mr. Wiley, born at Flatbush, L. I., in 1808, was, so to speak, born into the bookselling and publishing trade. When a boy, directly after leaving school, he entered the store of his father, Charles Wiley, then a well-known bookseller in New York.

In 1821 Mr. Charles Wiley had laid the foundations of the prosperity which has been almost uninterrupted, by the publication of "The Spy," the first of that series of romances which made the name of James Fenimore Cooper only second to that of the author of the "Waverley Novels."

While travelling in western New York, Mr. Charles Wiley had made the acquaintance of Mr. Cooper, whom he found a most agreeable companion, but had no idea of his literary aspirations until Mr. Cooper walked into his New York office in 1821 and offered him the manuscript of "The Spy."

During his apprenticeship Mr. John Wiley frequently saw Mr. Cooper at his father's store, where he was a great attraction, drawing around him many literary men, among whom were William Cullen Bryant, James K. Paulding, Fitz Greene Halleck, Gulian C. Verplanck and others, who have since taken high rank among the writers of America. In the rear of Charles Wesley's store was a room set apart for these men, known far and wide as "the literary den."

On the death of his father in 1828, Mr. John Wiley went into business for himself. He became New York agent for Thomas Wardle, of Philadelphia, who was at that time the principal importer of English books in this country; and also New York agent for Carey & Lea, of Philadelphia, then the leading publishers in America.

In 1832 he formed a partnership with George Long, the son of a well-known New York bookseller, under the firm-name of Wiley & Long. Subsequently Mr. George P. Putnam, the founder of the present house of G. P. Putnam's Sons, who had just attained his majority, and had served his apprenticeship in the bookstore of Jonathan Leavitt, became a partner, and the name of the firm was changed to Wiley & Putnam. One of the early undertakings of this firm was the publication of the Library of Choice Reading, edited by Evart A. Duyckinck. About 1840 the volumes of this series in their uniform red cloth binding attained great popularity, and included works by Hawthorne, Poe and other writers, which now rank among the classics of America. In 1848 there was again a dissolution of partnership and the house was known simply as John Wiley. In 1865 Mr. Wiley admitted his son, Charles Wiley, into partnership, and in 1875 his son William H. Wiley also became member of the firm, which was then changed to John Wiley & Sons, under which style it still continues. For many years the business was located in the old Mercantile Library Building, on Astor Place. When the structure was torn down the business was moved to 53 East 10th Street.

Of late years scientific publications have been a specialty of the firm, and some of the most valuable technical works published in this country bear the imprint of John Wiley & Sons.

Mr. Wiley was always a strong advocate of international copyright, and contributed several articles to the New York press on the subject. Quite forty years ago he advocated the passage of a copyright law, similar to that now before Congress. Mr. Wiley was an unostentatious, modest man, who, nevertheless, in his leisure moments, performed a great deal of good work in philanthropic and missionary fields. He was one of the original founders of the Church of the Puritans, this city, of which the Rev. Dr. Cheever was the pastor for so many years; also of the Valley Congregational Church at Orange. He was an active member of the American Home Missionary Society and for many years its President. He was also an active member of the Congregational Union of New York.

In 1833 he married Miss Elizabeth B. Osgood. They had five children, three sons and two daughters, all of whom survive their parents. Mr. Wiley celebrated his golden wedding in 1883, and Mrs. Wiley died shortly after.

In 1851 Mr. Wiley removed to East Orange, N. J., and purchased the house in which he died, on Saturday, Feburary 21. The funeral was held from Trinity Congregational Church, of which he was a deacon, on Wednesday, February 25. Mr. Wiley was buried in Rosedale Cemetery, West Orange. We shall print in our next issue a portrait wnich reached us too late to accompany this sketch.

We regret to hear of the sudden death, on the 20th inst., of William T. Tibbitts, senior member of the firm of Tibbitts & Preston, booksellers, of Providence, R. I. The funeral took place from the First Universalist Church on the 23d. We hope to be able, in a future issue, to give a brief sketch of the life of Mr. Tibbitts, whose name has been connected with the book business since 1830.

Prof. Alex. Winchell, of the University of Michigan, died at Ann Arbor, on the 19th inst., aged sixty-six years. He was the author of several works on geology, published by S. C. Griggs & Co. In 1879 Prof. Winchell was again called to the Chair of Geology and Paleontology in the Michigan University, and this he retained until his death. He lectured extensively and contributed profusely to scientific periodicals. By his investigations he established the Marshall group in American geology. His bibliography includes about 200 titles.

Another link with the past has been broken by the death of Mrs. Emma Moxon, the widow of Mr. Edward Moxon, and the Isola who did so much to brighten the latter days of Lamb. She died at Brighton at the age of eighty-two. She was referred to in the exquisite scrap of a letter by Lamb quoted by Canon Ainger in the preface to his excellent edition of Lamb's correspondence.

COMMUNICATIONS.

THE OLDEST FIRM OF BOOKSELLERS IN THE UNITED STATES.

To the Editor of the Publishers' Weekly.

Dear Sir: We notice in the Weekly of Feb. 14, that Messrs. Steele & Avery, of Rochester, N. Y., claim to be the oldest firm as booksellers, stationers or publishers in the United States. There having been no change in our firm since August, 1854, we ante-date them a little.

Truly, David Bugbee & Co.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

GRAHAM R. TOMSON, the English poet, whose lines have often been admired, is a woman, and her name is Miss Frances Wynne.

MRS. BENJAMIN HARRISON is making a collection of the unique communications written her by unknown correspondents and will eventually embody them in book form.

THE Catholic News is authority for the statement that the Rev. Father Burton, the Oblate missionary at Caughnawaga, is about to publish the Bible in Iroquois, the translation having been made by himself.

MAX O'RELL has accepted an engagement to pay a third visit to America next season. He is engaged to give a hundred causeries in the United States and Canada. On his return to Europe, Max O'Rell intends retiring from the lecture field.

BUSINESS NOTES.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Universal School Supply and Publishing Company has been incorporated at Chicago to manufacture school supplies and publish subscription-books, etc. Capital stock is said to be $50,000.

CHICAGO, ILL.—The Elder Pub. Co., formerly at 415 Dearborn St., is now operating in parts unknown.

GALENA, KAN.—E. D. Sharprock, bookseller, has sold out.

GREELEY, COLO.—Thomas W. Wilson, bookseller and stationer, is advertising to sell out.

GRIFFIN, GA.—D. W. Shaffer, bookseller, has sold out.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.—Parkin & Gibb, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—About midnight, February 5, fire was discovered in H. H. West & Co.'s book and stationery store in the new Insurance building. Owing to the inflammable material the fire spread rapidly, and before it could be gotten under control it destroyed much of the stock. The loss will reach $25,000, partly covered by insurance.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.—C. A. Rhode & Co. opened their store on the morning of the 15th to find that about $1000 worth of their stock had been damaged by water through the bursting of a water-pipe in the upper floors of their building.

NEW YORK CITY.—M. W. Jones, subscription-books, has removed to 23 Clinton Place, where he has a larger and more accessible store.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Belford Co. has appointed the United States Book Co., to act from Jan. 31, as their agents for sale to the trade of the Belford Co.'s publications. The Belford's Magazine has been sold to W. P. Springer. In all other respects the business of Belford Co. will be continued as before.—American Bookseller.

PETOSKEY, MICH.—H. C. Piester has sold his book and stationery business.

PORT HURON, MICH.—O. M. Clement, bookseller has closed up his store.

PORTLAND, ME.—We are glad to learn that the prospects are that McLellan, Mosher & Co. will be enabled to continue business. Their creditors are doing all in their power to insure their continuance.

SEATTLE, WASH.—The Seattle Book Co. has removed into more commodious and permanent quarters at 719 Second Street, Hinkley Block, where their line of books, stationery, school-books and supplies, blank-books, legal blanks, office stationery and paper, books, magazines and newspapers will be as complete as any in the city.

SHEBOYGAN, MICH.—Fexar & Barr, booksellers, have dissolved partnership.

NOTES ON CATALOGUES.

J. H. HICKCOX, 906 M Street, Washington, D. C., solicits subscriptions to the new volume (the seventh) of his valuable "Monthly Catalogue of United States Government Publications." The subscriptions to this work have thus far never been adequate to pay the real cost of production, and Mr. Hickcox has reached the conclusion that if sufficient support is not given "it is no longer desirable to waste valuable time for a little glory and no pay." Those who would regret to see the catalogue discontinued will therefore have to make an effort to increase the subscription-list, otherwise this good work must be abandoned.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Review of Reviews has got an American editor in the person of Albert Shaw, of the Minneapolis Tribune, author of several significant articles on municipal government. The American edition of the Review of Reviews will be hereafter set up and printed in this country.

AN unusual interest at the present time attaches itself to some unpublished letters from the late General Sherman which appear in the March number of the North American Review. One written to General Garfield in August, 1870, as to the loyalty of General Thomas, is eminently characteristic of Sherman. Another letter describes the meeting of Grant and Sherman with President Lincoln on board the Ocean Queen at City Point at the close of the war. These letters will doubtless attract a large number of readers.

The Green Bag, that "useless but entertaining magazine for lawyers," published by the Boston Book Company, seems to be prospering as it deserves. It is dignified in its appearance and tone, and, while no doubt it may contain a large amount of "useless" matter to the "general public," is full of life and interest to the profession to which it addresses itself. The issue for February contains a sketch of "David Dudley Field," by Irving Browne (with portrait); the second part of a sketch of "The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania," by Owen Wister, with portraits of fifteen of the Judges; and other articles of note.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

THE FLEMING H. REVELL CO. will publish early in April a new volume of sermons by Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, of the Madison Square Church, New York. It will be entitled "Three Gates on a Side."

THOMAS WHITTAKER will publish in March by arrangement with the author, W. Clark Russell, a genuine boy's story, entitled "Master Rockfellar's Voyage." It will be illustrated by Gordon Browne.

REV. J. W. GUNN, who has had charge of the retail department of Funk & Wagnalls, has closed his engagement with that house and goes to Philadelphia to be business manager or publisher of the Christian Standard. Mr. Gunn was formerly of Springfield, O., is well known in the book trade and was prominent in the organization of the American Book Trade Association.

FREDERICK KEPPEL & CO., 20 E. 16th St., N. Y., will exhibit at their gallery, until March 21, a collection of etchings and dry-points by Prof. Alphonse Legros. The collection is by far the most complete ever publicly shown, and contains many fine etchings and dry-points which have never hitherto been seen in America. The catalogue of the collection has an extended note on the artist and his work prepared by Mr. Keppel.

AVERY & CO., Orange, N. J., have just issued an ingenious game designed to teach languages, called "The Gift of Tongues." The specimen submitted is in the German language, and is planned by Effie Emeline Young, who writes of her theories enthusiastically in a pamphlet accompanying the cards composing the game. These are of various colors, the articles orange, nouns white, pronouns yellow, verbs green, adjectives red, adverbs pink, propositions lilac and conjunctions blue. There are about 175 cards, representing a vocabulary of nearly a thousand words in all their different forms.

WILLIAM BEVERLEY HARRISON, 3 E. 14th St., N. Y., will publish at once for the author, Capt. A. Minott Wright, a book entitled "Three Months with the New York 'Herald,' or, old news on board of a homeward-bounder." The author discusses on a statement made by the N. Y. Herald, during the controversy in the Samoan affair, to the effect that in the event of a war with Germany the German population of the United States would rise against the government and institute a civil war. Capt. Wright thinks "that war is all that is required, in order for us to show the world that our disagreements are largely superficial; and are usually magnified by the editors, in the hope of selling newspapers to those who were beaten at the polls."

HARPER & BROTHERS announce for early publication "Our Italy," by Charles Dudley Warner, a description of the climate, resources and scenery of Southern California, illustrated from photographs and from drawings by eminent American artists; an interesting volume of "Reminiscences of President Lincoln," written by L. E. Chittenden, Register of the U. S. Treasury during the period of the Civil War; Miss Amelia B. Edwards' new book on Egyptian subjects, entitled "Pharaohs, Fellahs and Explorers," which will include several of the lectures which she delivered during her recent visit to America, together with much additional matter; "Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare's Tragedies," edited, with notes, by Dr. William J. Rolfe, intended both as a "supplementary reading-book" for young children, and as an introduction to the study of Shakespeare for those who are old enough to begin that study in earnest, uniform in appearance and plan with the "Tales from Shakespeare's Comedies" recently published; also, Kirk Munroe's "Campmates: a story of the plains," which, as a serial of Harper's Young People, was a source of unalloyed pleasure to multitudes of youthful readers.

HURST & BLACKETT have just ready a new novel by Louis J. Jennings entitled "The Philadelphian."

BENTLEY & CO. will shortly publish a new work by Fraser Rae, entitled "An American Duchess" which is a pendant to "Miss Bayle's Romance."

METHUEN & CO. announce a new series, to be called Social Questions of the Day, under the editorship of Mr. H. de B. Gibbons, author of "Industrial History of England." The common aim of the writers will be to treat their subjects from the point of view of the historical school of economics. The first volume, to appear immediately, will be "Trades Unionism—Old and New," by Mr. George Howell. This will be followed by "Poverty and Pauperism," by the Rev. L. R. Phelps. Among other volumes arranged for are "The Co-operative Movement of To-Day," by Mr. G. J. Holyoake; "Mutual Thrift," by the Rev. J. Frome Wilkinson; "English Socialism of To-Day," by Mr. Hubert Bland; "The Commerce of Nations," by Prof. C. F. Bastable; "English Land and English Men," by the Rev. C. W. Stubbs; and "Christian Socialism in England," by the Rev. J. Carter.

A Plea for Liberty:

With an introduction by Mr. Herbert Spencer. Argument against Socialism and Socialistic Legislation. Including Essays by Mr. George Howell, M.P., Hon. Auberon Herbert, Mr. W. C. Crofts, Rev. B. H. Alford, Mr. Arthur Raffalovich, Mr. W. Donisthorpe, Mr. Edmund Vincent, Mr. T. Mackay, and others. Edited by THOMAS MACKAY, author of the "English Poor." One volume, 8vo, cloth, $2.25.

"Nothing could be more convincing and complete than Mr. Spencer's comparison of society under the rule of voluntary co-operation and society in the bonds of socialistic or compulsory co-operation. The socialistic idea is vitiated by its inherent tendency to tyranny."—From the Saturday Review.

"This collection of essays will not be written in vain; assuredly they will do something, as the editor hopes, 'to enlarge the atmosphere of liberty,' to keep alive the true idea of freedom, which seems in danger of being submerged by democracy."—From the London Times.

The Autobiography of the Earth.

A Popular Account of Geological History. By Rev. H. N. HUTCHINSON, B.A., F.G.S. With 27 illustrations. Crown 8vo, cloth, $1.50.

"The scarcity of popular works on geology at the present time has induced the writer to put together this little book in the hope that it may supply a want."—From the Preface.

"Delightfully written and thoughtfully accurate."—Science Gossip.

Historic Note-Book.

By the Rev. E. COBHAM BREWER, LL.D., Trinity College, Cambridge, author of "The Reader's Handbook," "Dictionary of Phrase and Fable," etc. One volume, 12mo, half morocco, $3.50.

Persons who are familiar with Dr. Brewer's reference-books will appreciate the value of his new work. It is in much the same general style as "The Reader's Handbook," but its subject matter is more purely historical. Special pains have been taken to secure accuracy of statement and breadth of view.

An Exceptional Case.

A Novel. By ITTI KINNEY-RÉNO, author of "Miss Breckenridge, a Daughter of Dixie," etc. American Novel Series. Square 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, $1.00.

Mrs. Réno is quite at home in her interpretation of the open-hearted hospitality and impulsive chivalry of the Southern people. She draws her characters admirably, and weaves into the story situations that are both charming and original. "Miss Breckenridge," her first novel, is a "genuine Southern love-story, redolent of the breath of the New South, full of the fragrance of Southern flowers, and instinct with the rich, warm blood of Southern youth." The new novel is realistic to a degree, and possesses all the charm of its predecessor.

A Draught of Lethe.

The Romance of an Artist. By ROY TELLET, author of "The Outcasts." The latest issue in Lippincott's Series of Select Novels. 12mo, paper, 50 cents; cloth, 75 cents.

Novel-readers will note with considerable satisfaction the appearance of a new writer who is likely to provide them with good entertainment. Each scene of this excellent story is vigorously told, and the characters are well drawn. "It is some time," says the London Review, "since we have come across a novel more attractive and original."

The Design of Structures.

A Practical Treatise on the Building of Bridges, Roofs, etc. By S. ANGLIN. With numerous Diagrams, Examples and Tables. Crown 8vo, cloth, $4.50.

The object of this work is to furnish to students of Engineering and Architecture a concise Text-Book, requiring on the part of the student a knowledge of elementary mathematics only. The different branches of the subject are treated from a practical as well as from a theoretical standpoint, and with this object a large number of practical examples are introduced and carefully worked out, such as occur in the every-day experience of the engineer. Several chapters are devoted to Strength of Joints, and to Punching, Drilling, Riveting and other processes connected with the manufacture of Bridges, Roofs and structural work generally, being the result of many years' experience in the bridge-yard.

NOTES IN SEASON.

WORTHINGTON CO. announce for immediate publication "A Brave Woman," by E. Marlitt, translated by Margaret P. Waterman, a novel of a Central European capital; and "Boris Lensky," by Ossip Schubin, translated by Elise L. Lathrop, a sequel to "Asbein," dealing with the consequences in later life of youthful dissipation. Both books are illustrated.

THE U. S. BOOK CO. now announce that their notice of the issue of De Quincey's works last week was premature. Instead of the "Suspiria de Profundis" they will publish to-day the first two volumes of the collection, under the titles of "De Quincey Memorials." The concluding two volumes, under the title "Posthumous Works of De Quincey," will follow shortly.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY will publish early next week a new volume in the series of Select Novels, entitled "A Draught of Lethe," by Roy Tellet, the author of "The Outcasts;" another story in the American Novel Series, "An Exceptional Case," by Itti Kinney Reno, author of "Miss Breckenridge," and a "Historic Note-Book," by Rev. E. Cobham Brewer.

FORDS, HOWARD & HULBERT, having received cable advices, from Sampson Low & Co., in London, as to publication-day for "Juggernaut: a veiled record," will issue that striking story on Wednesday, March 11. The joint authors, George Cary Eggleston and Dolores Marbourg, are both keen observers and strong, facile writers. The book promises a sensation, both fiscal and political.

A. C. MCCLURG & CO. will publish shortly a story entitled "Down the O-hi-O," which will be of unusual interest to the dwellers near that historic water-way. It concerns the fortunes of a young girl, Kit or Karen Allingham, who, if she is a work of the imagination, is a most successful and most original and interesting creation. The rolling-mills and the law offices of Pittsburg, the Ohio River steamboat, the underground railroad and an old and interesting Quaker community somewhere in Southeastern Ohio, are very vividly sketched.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & CO. will publish on Wednesday, March 11, "As It Is in Heaven," a little book of reflections on the future life, by Lucy Larcom, which will be a pretty Easter offering; "The Epic of the Inner Life," a new translation of the Book of Job, by John F. Genung, who a few years since published the excellent work entitled "Tennyson's In Memoriam, its purpose and its structure," and treats his present subject also as a masterpiece of literature, and not as involving theological questions; and "John Wesley," by Canon Overton, which is the second volume in a series on English leaders of religion, and a worthy successor of the first volume on "Cardinal Newman."

D. APPLETON & CO. have just ready the essays on socialism and socialistic legislation by George Howell, Auberon Herbert, W. C. Crofts, B. H. Alford, A. Raffalovich, T. Mackay and others under the title of "A Plea for Liberty," edited by Thomas Mackay, with an introduction by Mr. Herbert Spencer, already described in the WEEKLY; "The Autobiography of the Earth," a popular account of geological history, by the Rev. H. N. Hutchinson, described by the Science Gossip as delightfully written and thoroughly accurate; also, a new edition of Le Conte's "Elements of Geology," with new plates, new illustrations, and new matter, fully revised to date.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS have just issued "Marie Louise and the Invasion of 1814," forming the ninth volume in the series of Famous Women of the French Court, and the third volume devoted to Marie Louise; the sixth edition revised and enlarged of Theodore Dwight Woolsey's "International Law;" and Essays in Little," by Andrew Lang, a collection of sixteen papers on authors, and other subjects, five of which are new and written for this volume, the others having already appeared in various periodicals and newspapers. The new volumes are also issued in the series of Biographies of Artists, containing "A Memoir of George Cruikshank," by Frederick G. Stephens, with "An Essay on the Genius of George Cruikshank," by Thackeray; and "The Landscape and Pastoral Painters of Holland," by Frank Cundall, describing the lives of Ransdael, Hobbema, Cuijp and Potter.

WEEKLY RECORD OF NEW PUBLICATIONS.*

The abbreviations are usually self-explanatory. c. after the date indicates that the book is copyrighted; if the copyright date differs from the imprint date, the year of copyright is added. Books of foreign origin of which the edition (annotated, illustrated, etc.) is entered as copyright, are marked c. ed.; translations, c. tr.; n. p. in place of price, indicates that the publisher makes no price, either net or retail, and quotes prices to the trade only upon application.

Allen, Luman. Lucia: a romance of passion. Chic., Donohue & Henneberry, 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 329 p. D. (Dearborn ser., no. 20.) cl., 50 c.; pap., 25 c.

A beautiful Southern girl is sent to a Northern seminary. She falls in love; her father opposes her choice, and the taint of insanity in her family is the foundation of the plot. Introduces the Civil War.

Armstrong, W: Jackson. Siberia and the Nihilists; why Kennan went to Siberia; with introd., by Leigh H. Irvine. Oakland, Cal., Pacific Press Pub. Co., [1891.] 160 p. pors. il. D. pap., 25 c.

The author was Inspector of U. S. Consulates in Russia during the second administration of Gen. Grant. The lecture here given is nearly the same as that given in 1884 in New York and Washington, which was at the time criticised by George Kennan as unjust to Russia. The debate between the author and Mr. Kennan is given. A speech of Col. Ingersoll, Kennan's criticism of Armstrong, from the Washington Chronicle, 1884, and Swinburne's ode, "Russia," are included.

Baker, Jas. H. Elementary psychology, with practical applications to education and conduct of life, incl. an outline of logic: for the use of high schools, normal schools and academies, teachers and the general reader. N. Y., Effingham Maynard & Co., 1890 [1891.] c. 232 p. il. D. cl., $1.

The author is Principal of the Denver (Col.) High School. Account is taken of physiological psychology, and the inductive method is employed, though not exclusively. Exercises for review, summaries and references to larger works fit the volume for class-room use.

Baldwin, Ja. Harper's school speaker. 2d book: graded selections. N. Y., Harper, 1891. c. '90. 240 p. D. cl., 60 c.

Selections from popular and classic writers suited for recitation or declamation in grammar school grades. Ruskin, Tennyson, R. L. Stevenson, Kingsley, Wordsworth, Meredith and Thackeray are among the authors represented.

Baring-Gould, S. John Herring: a West-of-England romance. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 444 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1763.) pap., 30 c.

Baring-Gould, S. Red spider: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 222 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1697.) pap., 20 c.

Beckwith, Anna Louise. Constance Winter's choice. N. Y. and Chic., Rand, McNally & Co., 1891. 170 p. D. (Globe lib., v. 1, no. 144.) pap., 25 c.

Constance Winter, although her mother has endeavored to keep her mind wholly to practical things, is drawn to the stage. Miss Cushman's acting in Meg Merrilies decides her career. An accident gives her the opportunity to appear as Romeo, and the story tells of a brilliant dramatic career.

Benrimo, A. Vic: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 150 p. S. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1624.) pap., 20 c.

Bissell, Mary Taylor, M.D. Household hygiene. N. Y., N. D. C. Hodges, 1890 [1891.] c. '90. 7+83 p. D. (Fact and theory papers, no. 7.) cl., limp, net, 75 c.

The author's purpose is to instruct women, particularly in the science of "household hygiene." Contains advice on the site and soil, hygiene in architecture, plumbing, ventilation, heating, water supply and the sick-room. The chief contents have already appeared in the Art Interchange.

Body, Rev. G: The school of Calvary; or, laws of Christian living revealed from the cross: a course of Lent lectures. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 12+159 p. 12°, cl., $1.25.

Brown, D. Walter. American patent system: a practical guide to the inventor and the investor in patents. N. Y., D. Walter Brown, [The American News Co., 1891.] c. 64 p. sq. T. bds., 25 c.

Reprinted, with additions, from the American Machinist. The purpose is to inform the patentee and the purchaser of a patent on the legal points that apply to their individual cases. What is required of an inventor; how to secure validity; how to proceed when you wish to take out a foreign patent, and many other rulings of the law as it relates to a citizen of the United States, are briefly explained.

Burnham, J. Hampden. Canadians in the imperial, naval and military service abroad. Toronto, Can., Williamson Co., 1891. 240 p. il. pors. D. cl., $1.50.

Treats of Canadians who became famous in the service of the English empire. Among the noted names represented are Gen. Sir William Fenwick Williams, Major-General Sir J. E. W. Inglis, Sir Provo William Parry Wallis, and Admiral Sir George Augustus Westphal. A short history of H. M. 100th Regiment, with the names of its officers, is prefixed, and lists of the graduates of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and of authorities consulted, are appended. Index.

Butler, W: Allen. Oberammergau, 1890. N. Y.. Harper, 1891. 9-46 p. il. Q. cl., $2.

From the conditions under which the Passion Play at Oberammergau exists, it derives its power and the possibility of its perpetuation. The author has had regard to these conditions and has endeavored to give in simple English verse, with absolute fidelity and in a spirit of reverence kindred to that which animates the sacred drama, the impressions created by witnessing its performance. In the preface is given a list of the literature on Oberammergau. The notes explaining references on the poem are instructive and written with much tact. Printed in script type on thick paper. The binding is white cloth with rich gilt ornamentation, and the book will make a peculiarly appropriate Easter offering.

Brooks, Rev. Phillips. An Easter carol. N. Y., E. P. Dutton & Co., [1891.] c. no paging, col. il. sq. O. leatherette, $1.

Cundall, Frank. Landscape and pastoral painters of Holland: Ruisdael, Hobbema, Cuijp, Potter. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, [C: Scribner's Sons,] 1891. 12+176 p. por. il. D. (Illustrated biographies of great artists, new series.) cl., $1.25.

The Netherlands were the cradle of landscape art. Those who did most for Dutch art never went beyond the confines of their own country. The four great artists of whose lives and works an account is given lived in the 17th century. "Ruisdael has handed down to us faithful representations of his native Harlem, seen from a distance; Hobbema makes us intimately acquainted with the surroundings of Dutch cottage life; Cuijp with the affairs of the well-to-do classes; while Potter gives us the farm life of his time with a truth that has never been rivalled." The illustrations are directly reproduced from the paintings, and there is a brief bibliography.

Darwin, C: On the structure and distribution of coral reefs; ed. with introd. by Joseph W. Williams. [N. Y., A. Lovell & Co., 3 E. 14th St., 1891.] 24+273 p. il. maps, D. (Camelot ser.) cl., 40 c.

Duret, E. Practical household cookery, containing 1000 original and other recipes. N. Y., F: Warne & Co., 1891. 8+458 p. cr. 8°, cl., $1.75.

Particular attention is paid to Italian dishes, macaronis, tagliatellis, risottos, etc. The author was at one time manager of the St. James Hall restaurant, London.

Edwards, Amelia B. My brother's wife. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 207 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1364.) pap., 20 c.

Ewing, Lucie Lee. Four important faculties, and how to develop them. Phil., Lucie Lee Ewing, [1891.] 32 p. D. pap., 25 c.

The four important faculties are Perception, Memory, Reflection and Imagination. Reason and Understanding are said to comprise reflection.

Falconer, Lanoe, (pseud.) Mademoiselle Ixe. N. Y.. Cassell Pub. Co., [1891.] 4+185 p. D. (The unknown lib., no. 1.) cl., 50 c.

The name of "Mademoiselle Ixe" is an alias assumed for political reasons. The scene is in England. The heroine is a Nihilist who acts as a governess, the better to carry out a fixed purpose. On her action and its results the story depends. The volumes in this library are long and narrow, intended to slip readily into a coat pocket. The type is large and margin generous.

Gardiner, F: Aids to Scripture study. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1890 [1891.] 12+277 p. D. cl., $1.25.

but also adapted to all serious students of the Bible. The author was a professor in the Berkeley Divinity School, and the work has been edited for publication by H: Ferguson, of Trinity College, Hartford. Part 1 treats of the preparation necessary for the exegete: general knowledge of Scriptures, geography and physical geography of Bible lands, natural science, original languages, archæology, principles of textual criticism, personal and religious qualifications, etc. Part 2, "The art of interpreting," directs in what ways to make use of this varied knowledge.

Good, Arthur. Magic at home: a book of amusing science; tr. and ed., with notes, by "Prof. Hoffman," [A. J. Lewis.] N. Y., Cassell Pub. Co., 1891. 140 p. il. D. cl., $1.50.

A free translation of a French work entitled "Science amusante." Rules are given for scientific recreation and sleight-of-hand performance.

Gordon, A. J., D.D. The first thing in the world; or, the primacy of faith. N. Y., Fleming H. Revell Co., 1891. 32 p. 16°, vel., 20 c.

Gribble, Theodore Graham. Preliminary survey; including elementary astronomy, route surveying, tachometry, curve-ranging, graphic mensuration, estimates, hydrography, and instruments; with a large number of illustrations, quantity diagrams, and a manual of the slide-rule. N. Y., Longmans, Green & Co., 1891. 20+420 p. il. 12°, (Text-books of science.) cl., $2.25.

Griffith, M. Josephine. Bible temperance studies for evangelists, Bible students and temperance instructors, containing a lesson on every reference to temperance or intemperance in the Bible. Chic., The Press of the W. T. P. A., [C. E. Griffith, Fairport, Monroe Co., N. Y.,] 1890 [1891.] 144 p. D. cl., 60 c.; pap., 40 c.

The aim is to present briefly the Bible in its relation to temperance and intemperance. This is arrived at by an arrangement of facts and arguments under respective heads. The text of the Revised Version has been used because the author thinks it carries out his purpose better than the King James Version.

Harris, Maurice H. The people of the book: a Bible history for religious schools, with a useful appendix; from the creation to the death of Moses. N. Y., Philip Cowen, 1890 [1891.] c. 2-184 p. map, S. cl., 75 c.

"The author has tried to present a series of human experiences rather than a dry statement of facts" in re-telling the Bible story for children. The ethical bearing of events is emphasized. An appendix gives Hebrew prayers and hymns for school and home use. The author is Rabbi of Temple Israel in Harlem, N. Y.

Harte, Fs. Bret. A Sappho of Green Springs, and other stories. Bost., Houghton, Mifflin & Co., 1891. c. 4+294 p. D. cl., $1.25.

The Sappho of Green Springs has been contributing verses to a San Francisco magazine. Two men begin a search for the unknown poet, and she is found among the beauties of nature she has sung with unerring truth. One man's selfishness and another man's devotion are described with Bret Harte's old-time magic. The Sappho was a woman who "couldn't get the small ways o' the ranch because she had the big ways o' Natur' that made it." Other stories included are The chatelaine of Burnt Ridge; Through the Santa Clara wheat, and A Mæcenas of the Pacific Slope.

Hay, Mary Cecil. My first offer; Hope deferred, and other stories. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 126 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1673.) n. p.

Haydocks' testimony (The); by L. C. W. Phil., Christian Arbitration and Peace Soc., 1890. 275 p. D. cl., $1.50; pap., 50 c.

Holland, F: May. Frederick Douglass: the colored orator. N. Y., Funk & Wagnalls, 1891. c. 423 p. por. D. (American reformers.) cl., $1.50.

The author has been assisted in preparing this sketch by Mr. Douglass himself, his son Frederick Douglass, Jr., Miss Salley Holley, Mrs. Lucy N. Coleman and another lady who knew Mr. Douglass in Rochester. He has also made use of material in the "Life of Garrison," by his sons. But as there were some serious differences of opinion between Garrison and Douglass "under circumstances now but little known to readers generally," he considers it his "plain duty to try and vindicate Douglass, even at the expense of a great philanthropist." The Harper's Ferry episode, socialism, and the southern problem are commented upon. In appendix he gives a list of Douglass' published speeches and of his writings.

This work, by the author of "The dawn of history," is chiefly concerned with the relation of Teutonic heathenism to Christianity, and the contests of the vikings with Christian Europe. The period is that in the history of the Scandinavian races, which preceded their true national history. Historical traditions are shrouded in mythology, and the only illumination of real history is by the pages of the alien chroniclers of Christian Europe. The religion of the vikings, and the character of the Christianity of the time occupy several chapters.

MacCarthy, Emma W. Congressman John and his wife's satisfaction: a novel. N. Y., G: W. Dillingham, 1891. c. 5-283 p. D. pap., 50 c.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fairfax are pleasuring on Lake Lucerne, when he receives a cablegram announcing his nomination as Congressman. During their Washington life, Marguerite Howard, a beautiful Virginian, makes her home with them. She is passionately wooed by a Russian baron, and faithfully loved by the chivalrous son of a high official. Crime, suicide and revenge figure largely in the tale, and the ambitious Mrs. Fairfax at last loses all taste for political prominence.

Scott, F: N. Æsthetics, its problems and literature. Ann Arbor, Mich., The Inland Pr., 1890 [1891.] no paging, D. pap, 25 c.

The writer, who is Assistant Professor of Rhetoric in the University of Michigan, complains that the study of works of art and the study of the theory of art have come to be looked upon as two altogether distinct lines of research. He calls attention more especially to the theoretical side of art study, pointing out some of the more important problems of æsthetics, and indicating the sources in which the solution of them may be found. The chapter devoted to the literature of æsthetics gives a valuable bibliography.

Serao, Matilde. Fantasy: a novel: from the Italian, by H: Harland, ["Sydney Luska," pseud.] N. Y., United States Book Co., [1891.] 6+280 p. D. (Lovell's ser. of foreign literature, no. 8.) pap., 50 c.

An introduction by Edmund Gosse gives a sketch of the author, whom he calls "the most prominent imaginative writer of the latest generation in Italy." Her literary training was acquired in journalism, and she belongs to the realistic school. The story is laid in Italy. Two school-girls—one nervous, overwrought and hysterical, the other practical and affectionate—are the heroines. Their friendship and influence upon each other furnish the incidents in a careful study of "types."

Stephens, F: G. Memoir of George Cruikshank; [also,] An essay on the genius of G: Cruikshank, by W: Makepeace Thackeray. N. Y., Scribner & Welford, [C: Scribner's Sons,] 1891. 12+144 p. por. il. D. (Illustrated biographies of great artists, new ser.) cl., $1.25.

Cruikshank was a "cockney to the core," and "cared little and knew less about what went on, or was to be seen or heard beyond the sound of Bow Bells." He preserved for posterity the lineaments, manners, customs and costumes of a social grade which is disappearing; he created ladies of the Fairy Gamp order, and many of the comic London characters of to-day are only his figures redressed. Sixty pages are devoted to the recounting and describing of his artistic activities; six pages to his private life. Thackeray's essay, which first appeared in 1840 in the Westminster Review, is followed by a chronological list of works illustrated by Cruikshank.

Sturgis, Julian. Dick's wandering: a novel. N. Y., G: Munro, [United States Book Co., 1891.] 245 p. D. (Seaside lib., pocket ed., no. 1698.) pap., 20 c.

After the death of Hector, the Amazons come to Troy to fight in behalf of the Trojans. Their queen, Penthesilea, challenges Achilles to single combat. This incident is told in verse.

Woolsey, Theodore Dwight. Introduction to the study of international law; designed as an aid in teaching and in historical studies. 6th ed., rev. and enl. by Theodore Salisbury Woolsey. N. Y., C: Scribner's Sons, 1891. 19+527 p. O. cl., $2.50.

First published in 1871. This edition brings the subject up to date, and the form is less scholastic than before. The growth in importance of the neutral interest and the spread of the humane principles of warfare are specially brought out. The two appendices give a partial bibliography of the subject and a list and résumé of important treaties. These have been noticeably enlarged.

Wright, Julia McNair. Frû Dagmar's son: a survivor of "The Danmark." N. Y., The National Temp. Soc. and Pub. House, 1891. c. 348 p. il. D. cl., $1.25.

Frû Dagmar's son, a tender-hearted, honest little Dane, is an orphan at the age of thirteen, and is taken in charge by a miserly uncle. Gerda is a clever, elfish child, whose vivid imagination makes life more tolerable for Lars, and whose witty remarks keep Uncle Kars in perpetual discomfort. At last the children are driven by cruelty and starvation to run away. They join a party of emigrants for the United States, are shipwrecked, and have many adventures. Gives vivid descriptions of Danish customs.

The present book is based upon the author's "Elements of astronomy," which has been condensed and simplified. The uranography, or description of the visible heavens, appears in the body of the text. The book has been brought to date by the addition of the new results of Schiaparelli, the latest spectroscopic discoveries of Pickering and Vogel, notes on the legendary mythology of the constellations. An appendix contains a description of the most used astronomical instruments, with instructions to the teacher and advanced scholar.
